National Rail Shutdown Impact May be Tested

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration worked today to head off a midnight nationwide railroad strike, but there were signs the government was bracing to test whether the nation could stand a rail shutdown.

Labor Department officials reported very little progress toward settling the long dispute over eliminating the locomotive firemen's jobs, and the government prepared to authorize emergency bus and truck service in the event of a rail strike.

The strike has been called for 12:01 a.m. Thursday. President Nixon already has exhausted all strike-delaying provisions of federal labor law.

"If it keeps on we may have to be faced with a nationwide railroad strike," said Assistant Secretary of Labor W. J. Usery, working on the nation's fourth national rail labor crisis this year.

Not as Urgent
Usery, in an interview, hinted that although the government must exert every effort to avoid it, a nationwide rail strike might not be as catastrophic as federal officials have said.

There have been only three nationwide rail strikes in nearly half a century, with either the White House or Congress stepping in to prevent others.

"This day and time we are now beginning to look upon it as this — years ago we did not have airlines, we did not have trucking as we have it today. And if it keeps on we may have to be faced with a nationwide railroad strike even though everything should be done to prevent that..." Usery said.

Interstate Commerce Commission Chairman George M. Stafford announced his agency will issue emergency authority to truck and bus lines to haul passengers and freight if there is a rail strike.

Sources in the trucking industry indicated it could pick up a considerable amount of the slack in shipments if there were a rail strike because generally depressed economic conditions have idled many trucks.

The American Trucking Association said trucks normally carry about 21 per cent of the nation's freight, compared with some 41 per cent by rails and the rest by water carriers and pipelines.

Nixon has intervened three times this year under the Railway Labor Act to impose 60-day strike delays. His only recourse in the current dispute would be to ask Congress for a special law.

Emergency Laws
Congress has stepped in with emergency laws in three similar cases in the past seven years.

A special arbitration board ruled in 1963 the railroads could eliminate 90 per cent of the firemen on diesel yard and freight engines, with severance pay and rights to other rail jobs for most of the men.

Some 20,000 firemen's jobs were eliminated under the two-year special law, but the United Transportation Union now de-

Unofficial Use Of U.S. Troops In Past Noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials cite more than 125 instances throughout U.S. history in which the President sent armed forces abroad without a declaration of war or a congressional authorization.

The cases, dating back to the early years of the republic, range from the undeclared war against France in 1798-1800 to the incursion into Cambodia last April.

Jordan Claims Syrians Ousted

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Radio Amman reported Jordanian troops supported by artillery and warplanes drove invaders from Syria out of the country today and King Hussein announced a cease-fire in all Jordan, torn by six days of war.

The 34-year-old monarch also said a delegation of the heads of Arab states meeting in Cairo endorsed an agreement he reached earlier with captured guerrilla leaders on ending the fight with Palestinian guerrillas.

The king appealed to his royalist forces to observe this new cease-fire strictly.

"I earnestly appeal to the armed forces and their great leader, my dear brother, Field Marshal Habis Majali, to strictly observe the cease-fire, to abide by the new agreement and start the operation of reconstruction."

He also appealed for healing of the wounds between the army and "honest guerrillas" and called on both sides as well as all people in Jordan to "shake off the traces of the black crisis and tragedy."

King Hussein of Jordan said in Amman Tuesday "I do not expect military intervention at this time" and that his force had command of the situation.

As fierce fighting went into its seventh day in Amman, the Jordanian capital, Hussein and the captured No. 2 man of the guerrilla movement announced a four-point agreement to end the conflict.

Plan Rejected
The Central Committee of the Palestine resistance movement, however, rejected the plan. It announced in a broadcast from Iraq that it would fight to the last man.

Americans May Evacuate Jordan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is on the point of deciding whether to send chartered civilian aircraft to Amman in the immediate future to evacuate possibly 200 American citizens from war-torn Jordan.

Informal sources reported that the decision is imminent — indicating it would be reached by some time Thursday.

U.S. citizens in Jordan, including wives of Jordanians, total around 400. Nine Americans flew from Amman to Beirut, Lebanon, today on an International Red Cross charter plane.

The precise number in the rescue operation, therefore, cannot be known in advance, but authorities here estimate about 200 persons, for whom they would need two airplanes.

Casualties High
Casualties ran into the thousands, with a high proportion of them civilians.

A broadcast from Baghdad said the guerrilla leader, Abu Ayad, had completed the agreement while a captive "and isolated from the state of affairs in Amman."

The agreement was announced over Amman radio by Hussein and Ayad, who was captured four days ago.

There was no mention of the guerrillas' No. 1 boss, Yasir Arafat, head of Al Fatah as well as the Palestine Liberation Organization, which includes 10 other guerrilla groups.

Power Lost In 5 States

Crisis Continues
On Eastern Seaboard
As Mercury Soars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Excessive heat and humidity brought electrical power cutbacks throughout five Middle Atlantic states and the district of Columbia today as a power crisis continued for a second day on the Eastern Seaboard.

With temperatures again expected to soar into the 90's, the giant Consolidated Edison Co. in New York made three voltage cuts in quick succession, reaching an 8 per cent cutback by 9:25 a.m., when the thermometer rose into the 80's.

Eight per cent is the largest cutback possible without likely damage to electrical equipment. It was also the first time the maximum cut had been made so early in the day—even in the daily crises of July and August.

The Penn-Jersey-Maryland power interconnection announced 5 per cent voltage cuts affecting New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Living Costs Rise Smallest In 20 Months

Hike for August
Is Two-Tenths of
One Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Living costs rose two-tenths of one per cent in August for the smallest monthly rise in 20 months, the government reported today.

The report, by the Labor Department, was good news for President Nixon and his economists who have been insisting their economic policies were beginning to slow the nation's worst inflation in 20 years.

"This was the smallest month-to-month change since December 1968," said the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

It pushed the government's Consumer Price Index to 136.0. The figure means that it took $13.60 last month for every $10 worth of typical family purchases in the 1957-59 period on which the index is based.

The August increase put the index 5.7 per cent above a year earlier. Inflation had been running at about a 6 per cent annual rate most of last year and this year.

The bureau also reported that the average weekly pay check for approximately 45 million rank and file workers rose 70 cents to $122.15 in August, and that after adjustments for price increases, purchasing power was up 32 cents for the month. However, the purchasing power of the average pay check was still nearly one per cent below a year ago.

The price report said groceries declined one-tenth of one per cent during August and transportation costs dropped six-tenths of one per cent.

In other major categories, housing costs rose six-tenths, clothing was up one-tenth, medical care and recreation costs were up six-tenths of one per cent each.

About 146,000 workers with cost-of-living clauses in their labor contracts will receive pay increases ranging from 1 to 9 cents per hour based on index increases over varying periods. Most of them are in the aerospace industry.

Another 31,000 workers with wage escalator clauses will get no wage increase because they have already received the maximum stipulated in their contracts.

Officials Hopeful

Peace Pact's Value Doubtful

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials, hoping for an early end to the civil war in Jordan, doubted today whether the four-point agreement announced by Amman radio would be sufficient to bring peace to the country.

A top level assessment of the reported accord was expected to be made at a regular National Security Council meeting set for midmorning, Washington time. President Nixon called the meeting several days ago and the White House Tuesday called it routine. From Washington's point of view the critical element in ending the week-long struggle between King Hussein's government and the Palestinian guerrillas has been whether Palestinian leadership would be able to control all elements of the guerrilla movement.

Authorities here noted that broadcast reports of the agreement made no mention of the popular front for the liberation of Palestine, which engineered recent airplane hijackings and still hold hostage 54 foreigners, including 38 Americans.

It was also pointed out here that the announced terms made no reference to a cease-fire.

Heavy Firing
Several hours after the agreement was made public reports reaching Washington through diplomatic channels said there had been heavy firing in Amman about dawn today and that machinegun and light arms fire continued into the morning.

There were also reports from diplomatic sources of fighting in the north of Jordan where Hussein's army was said to claim a victory.

Nixon administration leaders have been hopeful that the intervention of an Arab summit mission in Amman would find ways to at least curb the civil war and reduce the chances of possible U.S. intervention.

Cambodians Meet Light Resistance in New Drive

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The biggest government operation of the Cambodian war moved forward again today after being stalled 10 days by North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces.

A spokesman said advance elements were meeting light resistance as they moved toward the major enemy stronghold in the village of Taing Kauk, 47 miles north of Phnom Penh. It was the first forward movement reported by the government since its troops were driven from Taing Kauk and stalled in their drive northward toward the provincial capital of Kompong Thom and the nation's heartland.

Toward Town
The spokesman said the government force had moved about half a mile toward the town. Reports reaching Phnom Penh said up to 2,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were believed still in Taing Kauk.

There were no indications of why the enemy had apparently relaxed its pressure. But villagers reported a few days ago that some of the enemy troops appeared to be moving out, and there was speculation that they were falling back to more easily defendable positions.

Fighting intensified on another Cambodian battle front. South Vietnamese headquarters in Saigon said six South Vietnamese marines and 41 North Vietnamese were killed in heavy fighting along the Bassac River, 30 miles southeast of Phnom Penh. Twenty-three South Vietnamese were reported wounded.

In Laos, the Communist Pathet Lao accused royalist government troops of launching an announcement under its "fairness doctrine" requiring balanced presentation of controversial issues.

How can he now carry only one side of the issue—this time the antismoking side—without violating that same doctrine and perhaps jeopardizing his broadcast license?

Geller suggested a way.

Fairness Doctrine
Smoking may be so widely seen as a health hazard, he said, that the subject is no longer "controversial" and therefore no longer subject to the FCC "fairness doctrine."

"It's an issue," he said, "but we're not so sure a licensed (broadcaster) couldn't reach a judgment that it's no longer controversial. I don't know that we'd upset his judgement."

"He might not be obligated to present two sides of this issue." Nevertheless, said Geller, the broadcaster may be required to continue presenting the antismoking side "under the general public interest standard."

"He has a duty to inform the public," said Geller. "If cigarette continues to cause death, that can't be ignored."

"It could be through public service announcements," he added, "or he might do it by network coverage, documentaries, one-minute spots—he would have discretion."

"But it will no longer be geared to cigarette commercials."

A law passed last spring bans all cigarette commercials from television and radio effective Jan. 2.

Antismoking Ads Must Go on

WASHINGTON (AP) — Antismoking broadcasts, required since 1967 to counteract cigarette commercials, must continue after the commercials end in January, says a top federal communications lawyer.

"We will have to have some transitional period," said Henry M. Geller, general counsel of the Federal Communications Commission, in an interview.

Geller declined to estimate how long the "transition" might take but indicated antismoking broadcasts might be required as long as smoking-versus-health remains a public issue.

Television and radio broadcasters say this leaves them with a curious puzzle.

When he carried cigarette commercials, the broadcaster was required by the FCC to add anticigarette announcements under its "fairness doctrine" requiring balanced presentation of controversial issues.

How can he now carry only one side of the issue—this time the antismoking side—without violating that same doctrine and perhaps jeopardizing his broadcast license?

Geller suggested a way.

TAKE THE RITUAL OUT OF EATING OUT!

Ritual #1 — Wine

Why worry about how many people stomped the grapes to get a particular wine of a particular vineyard in 1965 when the bottlers probably got the labels all mixed up anyway?

We offer you red, white and Rosé wine by the glass... and no one will hit you with a skillet if you like the red wine with your battered fried shrimp.

Ritual #2 — Seafood

Our specialties do not require the surgeon general and a set of chrome utensils to get at the goodies. We serve perfectly prepared seafood that can be eaten with a good old-fashioned knife and fork.

Ritual #3 — Steaks

Many menus warn you that ordering a well-done steak will cause the chef to charge from the kitchen to your table wielding a six foot broad sword.

If you want it burned, just do it for you at no extra cost.

Ritual #4 — Cost

At many restaurants, you are well aware that the chef is from Europe since your looks as though you are in passage.

Our chef is good but lives his own car. Bring a ten dollar bill and three friends for lunch and cocktails.

We maintain three rituals:
1. Excellent Food
2. Excellent Service
3. Modest Price

Governor and J.J., which is one of TV's more underrated shows, returns for its second season with cast and snappy dialogue intact. Seems Dan Dailey, as the Governor, is angry at one of those nasty TV talk show hosts who has insinuated things about the Gov. appointing J.J. (Julie Sommers) to a state committee on ecology. So he agrees they will both be guests on the man's interview show. Only the governor, suffering from a bad throat, totally loses his voice. J.J., very reluctantly, goes on the show, and we learn later (we don't see the show), calls the man a BLEEP.

The first issue has an interview with Pete (Lloyd Haines), but it also has a rough column about teachers, with Alice (Karen Valentine) as one of the targets.

It's got all the ingredients of a shoot-'em-up and lines like "A man has to do what he thinks best" and "Which way did he go?" and it's all put together very well. There are two cases: a policeman's stolen horse and a drug store bandit who is an expert shot.

'Don't Drink the Water'

Woody Allen Comedy A Hit at Green Bay

BY JINGO

A week or so ago, Jingo set is as bric-a-brack as any reported in this space that the Green Bay Community Theater Iron Curtain country could be had completed a professional-caliber lighting system that would be unveiled with the opening of the first show of CT's 1970-71 season, "Don't Drink the Water."

Well, Jingo caught the second night of this madcap Woody Allen comedy last Friday at the CT Playhouse, and he can state without qualification that it's a script that demands good pacing and knowledgeable comedy technique, and Hammerquist — is an enormous improvement on the previous system.

Light spill is minimized; important areas of the set are more evenly illuminated, and there's much less of an impression of switches being thrown and scenes abruptly begun and terminated.

The entire production of "Don't Drink the Water" is, in fact, a step forward, in terms of appearance and of performance.

Robert Lee Brault's ambitious set is as bric-a-brack as any reported in this space that the Green Bay Community Theater Iron Curtain country could be had completed a professional-caliber lighting system that would be unveiled with the opening of the first show of CT's 1970-71 season, "Don't Drink the Water."

Lightweight Comedy This is not, as might be imagined, a heavyweight of a show, even for a comedy. But it's a script that demands good pacing and knowledgeable comedy technique, and Hammerquist — is an enormous improvement on the previous system.

There is a great deal of frantic action, as Hammer and his wife Marion (Dorothea Erickson) take refuge with the local diplomatic corps after the communist police decide they're a passel of capitalistic spies.

Romance develops when the caterer's daughter (Julie Anderson) decides she loves the ambassador's son (Bob Toth) despite his notorious ineptitude (six months is the longest he's ever worked in any one embassy). Then there are other complications... a fugitive priest (Ollie Jacques) who's become an amateur magician in his spare time and is forever demanding that they "take cards," a chef (Bill Sprole) who wants to serve the Hollanders the magician's bunny; bomb-throwers in the street, and an egotistical sultan (John Saxe) whose pride suffers under the caterer's jibes.

Technical Know-How Director Bev Saxe has managed to give the performance a good sense of momentum, and she's fortunate in having as her principal actor a performer with as much technical knowledge as Hammer. His way with Allen's sometimes-inspired one-liners is just what the script requires, and he works well in tandem with such energetic performers as Toth and Mrs. Erickson.

Jingo can recommend "Don't Drink the Water" as a fast-paced, often hilarious evening of entertainment. It will be repeated Thursday through Sunday at the CT Playhouse, 122 N. Chestnut St., Green Bay. Curtain time is 8:17 sharp.

Solons Look for Judicial Advice on Reapportionment

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Leaders of the state Legislature are looking for a court that will advise them on how to reapportion the State Assembly and Senate next year in accordance with the new census.

The quest from conflicting state and federal judicial decisions as they have interpreted the state and United States constitutions.

The joint Legislative Council, mandated by the contradictory mandates of the state and United States courts, Monday approved a motion by Chairman Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton, speaker of the Assembly, asking Atty. Gen. Robert Warren to advise them on how a reliable judicial opinion can best be obtained.

Warren ruled earlier on the subject, but not conclusively enough to satisfy the Legislature, said Froehlich and some of his Council colleagues.

Deviation Illegal

The dilemma arises out of the fact that the United States Supreme Court in a series of opinions amplifying its historic "one man, one vote" rule in legislative representation, has held that a deviation from that standard of more than three percent is illegal under the United States constitution.

But the binding ruling of the Wisconsin supreme court, written in 1962, holds that the Wisconsin constitution prohibits the division of a county in the formation of an Assembly district, thus resulting in unequal situations in the population makeup of districts that cannot be avoided if the legislature follows that guide.

James Sensenbrenner, a Milwaukee representative who is head of a reapportionment planning committee chosen to report to the 1971 legislature soon after it convenes in January, said that under the county line rule a distribution of legislative seats within the United States Supreme Court's ruling is impossible, noting that the range of population will be from very low, in the case of small Calumet County, to very high, in the case of Walworth county.

Ask Ruling

Sensenbrenner suggested asking the federal courts for a declaratory judgement, adding that U. S. Judge James Doyle of the Wisconsin western district has shown a readiness to make such rulings on constitutional questions. Others noted that the Wisconsin court has now shown a disposition to make advisory rulings.

The council agreed to refine the description of its dilemma and to ask Warren for another opinion, and for explicit guidance about how to resolve it.

Froehlich summed up the puzzle facing the lawmakers when he said:

"We are bound by the state constitution, but I don't think it will stand up under the federal government rules."

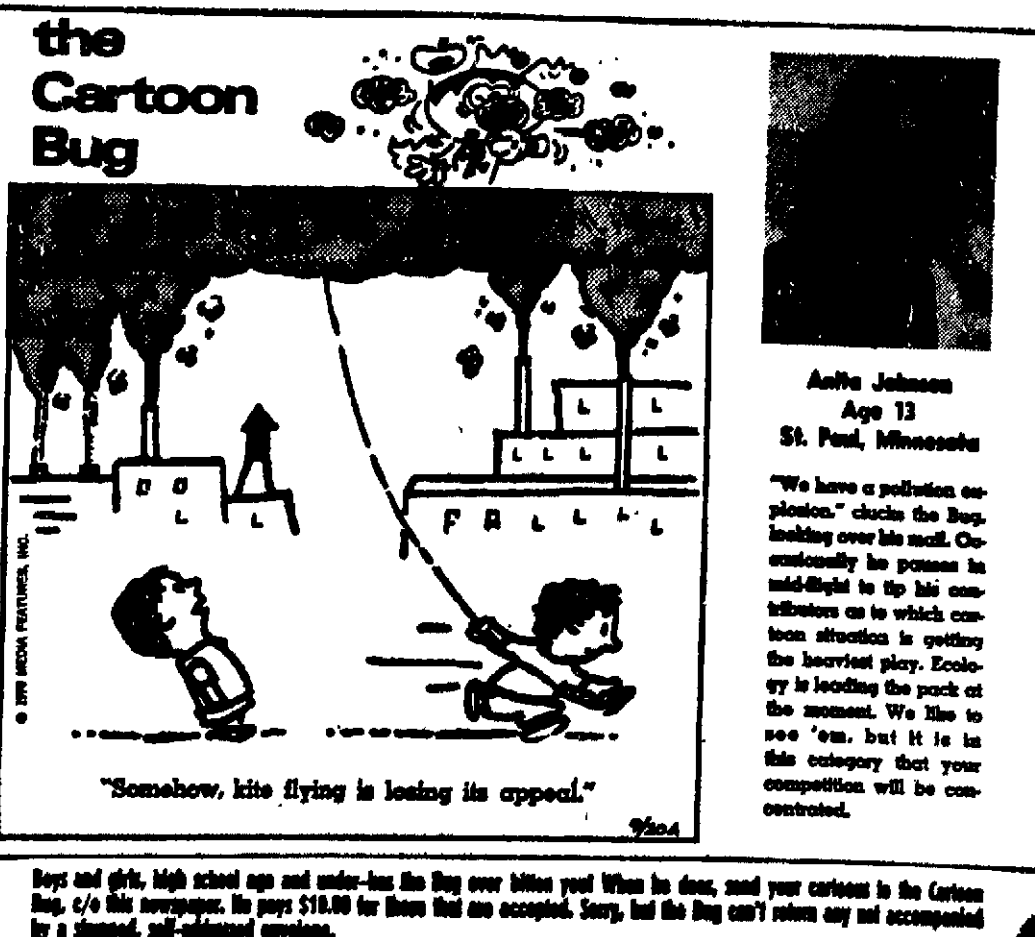

In other developments, the Council:

— Asked the Wisconsin Home and Family Council for a report on all of the Wisconsin legal distinctions between men and women, and statutory preferences granted to women, after the State Department of Industry, labor and Human relations reported that the new federal equal rights legislation voided state rules on working conditions for women that have stood for many years.

Action Deferred

— Deferred action on a proposal to authorize a new variety of debentures by Wisconsin municipalities, pending a review of the suggested deletion of a provision in present Wisconsin laws that permit a referendum to be demanded by taxpayers.

— Named Sen. Robert P. local governments of Wisconsin.

Approximately 550 annuals already have been sold. Students may order yearbooks during the month of September. The books will be distributed in August 1971, to Nagan, Mary Ann McGinnis and a large two-way radio aerial permit a full school year's activities to be included in the Ann Buchinger and Jane Witkowski.

Police & Fire Beat

An Appleton man was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital after 5 p.m. Saturday when his car was hit in the side by another car that failed to stop at the intersection of State 47 and Midway Road.

Winneshago County Sheriff's deputies said James E. Christensen, 23, 1836 W. Marquette St., received a leg injury when a car driven by Walter J. Kiekhafer, 64, 203 Birdsall St., Weyauwega, failed to stop for a red light at Midway Road and hit Christensen's car in the right side.

Police cited Kiekhafer. Both cars received about $100 damage, police estimated.

A 42-year-old Appleton man was fined $100 and costs or 25 days in the Outagamie County jail Tuesday after pleading guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct brought a few hours tomatoes strewn about her yard.

Howard Dickson, 2300 N. Division St., was taken into custody by Appleton police about 1 a.m. after he had become loud and boisterous at home. He appeared before County Judge Nick F. Schaefer.

LITTLE CHUTE — Damage was estimated at $300 to one car and the other was demolished when they collided at Grand and Lincoln avenues about noon Saturday. No one was injured.

According to police, a car driven by Mrs. Mildred Hermesen, 527 W. Cleveland Ave., backed from a stall into the path of a car driven north on Grand by Mrs. Marie Coenen, 908 W. Main St., whose car was demolished. Mrs. Hermesen was cited for unsafe backing.

KAUKAUNA — Firemen were called about 3:35 p.m. Saturday to flush gas from the street at 120 E. Third St., the gas leaking from the tank of a car owned by Richard Robach.

KAUKAUNA — Police are investigating three complaints of vandalism received over the weekend. Gregory Wheeler, 908 Combined Locks Road, reported a rock thrown through the rear window of his car. Mrs. Francis Sink, route 1, Menasha, reported a large two-way radio aerial broken from the back of her car. Mrs. Marlene Grimmer, 928 W. 10th St., reported rotten

OSU Names Head Of News Bureau

OSHKOSH — The former chief of The Post-Crescent's Oshkosh bureau has been appointed director of the news bureau at Oshkosh State University, according to Garner Horton, OSU coordinator of public information.

Named to the post is Allan Ekvall, former staff member with The Post-Crescent and The Paper for Central Wisconsin. He replaces Stanley Peterson, who left the OSU staff late this summer.

Ekvall was with The Post-Crescent for 25 years as a staff writer and later as its Oshkosh bureau chief. He left that position in 1966 to assist in organizing a new daily, The Paper for Central Wisconsin, becoming its first editor. At the time The Paper suspended daily publication a few weeks ago, he was managing its Fond du Lac bureau.

Tryouts for the Appleton Junior High Symphony were held Tuesday night at Roosevelt Junior High School. The orchestra gives music students the opportunity to perform music of a symphonic caliber beyond that which is possible at a single junior high school. # Universities Termed Last Chance for Ills of Society

President Smith Addresses Students, Faculty

Universities are "still the only existing hope for solution" to the persistent problems that face society, Dr. Thomas S. Smith, Lawrence University president, told students and faculty Tuesday.

In a welcoming address at a matriculation day convocation in the Memorial Chapel, Smith described student disaffection and its relation to a college of arts and sciences and recent changes at the school.

"We at Lawrence fortunately were able to voice dissent without seriously damaging the foundations of our college," he said in reference to the type of disruptions that closed universities last year.

He noted that those events, however, spurred consideration at LU to the purpose of a university — to provide society with a place where the examination and generation of ideas can take place.

This means that older ideas and methods must be examined and sifted, he said. What is found useful should be applied to the problems of society.

No Purpose

Smith warned students that regardless of the changes sought for society, there is no purpose in damaging an institution of higher learning.

"Even though some may feel that, given the persistent problems, universities have failed society, they are still the only existing hope for solution," he said.

The university president emphasized that ideas originate from and must remain with the individual. They are his and not the institutions.

Action following the evaluation of an idea also is an individual matter. "If a group of individuals related to an institution, such as a college participate in concerted action, it may seem that the institution is performing the action," he said.

This conception, he believes, resulted last year when universities acted in a way that attempted to commit the entire community to a particular point of view. This is dangerous, he said, because at this point, behavior exists not in searching for ideas but for political action and indoctrination, which negates the true role of the university.

The president indicated that Lawrence has undergone change throughout its 123-year history, but recently the process has been so accelerated that the impact will not be determined for years.

Concerning social legislation, he mentioned changes in dormitory visitation hours and the sale of beer on campus.

The university has a responsible position concerning drug use, he said. He warned students that authorities are seeking traffic lines of drugs, and reminded that university policy conforms with state and federal laws.

Social legislation is premised on the ideas that "no single constituency should gain advantage which, in turn, is a disadvantage to another." There are commitments to past students, benefactors and faculty members he pointed out.

Smith listed various changes in graduation requirements for freshmen. He said that policies carry a notion of the individual nature of entering students. The universities should not shape thought to a preconceived image, but help students develop their own interests, he said.

The inclusion of students on university committees, a recent innovation at LU, helps them to know how and why policy is formulated and decisions are reached, he explained.

In order for Lawrence to continue to grow, academic freedom must be carefully protected, Smith said. This means safeguarding the freedom to think.

"The freedom to think can be abridged by the force of fear. Without that freedom, all the derived freedoms are worth nothing," he added.

Restrictions on University-Bloc Voting Sought

LAND O'LAKES, Wis. (AP)—County officials recommended Tuesday that legislation be adopted to protect college towns from being overrun by non-resident voters at local polling stations.

A resolution adopted by the Wisconsin County Boards Association said a reduction of the minimum voting age to 18 could introduce a disproportionately large voting bloc to a local voting scene.

The bloc, spokesmen said, might swing an election without having full familiarity with local political issues.

Cities Cited

Speakers cited a number of Wisconsin communities, including those with state universities whose enrollments range to 11,800 in Oshkosh, 9,700 in White-water and 8,250 in Eau Claire.

(The impact on Appleton voting if Lawrence University students 18 years old and up could vote would be less than in towns with large state universities. The 2nd Ward probably would experience the greatest effect.

(This year's Lawrence campus enrollment including students of all ages is just under 1,300. The number already eligible to vote was not immediately learned.

(There were 982 voters registered in the 2nd Ward for the Sept. 8 primary election, out of 22,856 citywide.)

The resolution calls for legislative measures which would assure that a student would be registered to vote in his home town rather than in the community where he attends school.

Another resolution adopted by about 300 delegates to the association's three-day convention asked that a larger share of state sales tax revenue be set aside for public schools.

Other resolutions appealed for more homestead tax relief for the elderly, special environmental protection agencies at the county level, limiting to 40 acres the amount of land exempted from taxation for non-profit groups such as the Boy Scouts, and doubling statutory fees charged by court clerks.

More Freedom

Alexander Hopp, Sheboygan County's corporation counsel, said counties should have more statutory freedom to share government functions.

Hopp said money could be saved if counties could share facilities more easily. He also recommended a "piggyback income tax return."

"The day is coming," he said, "when we will file one such return to the federal government, and they will collect state taxes and then allocate this money to the county."

Richard LaFave, chairman of the Racine County Board, said elimination of jurisdictional boundaries within counties must be considered in the interest of efficiency.

"The golden age of the cities has passed. Counties should now provide county-wide service in the areas of fire, police and highway service," LaFave said.

Hopp called for more county-level authority over such functions as construction of streets, and even naming of them to avoid intercity conflicts.

Lay-off Caused By Walkout at Pacon Corp.

Dispute Centers Around Reason for Monday Incident

About 40 to 50 day-shift workers at Pacon Corp. are off work today and Thursday on what the union terms a company lockout and the company calls a disciplinary action.

The lay-off resulted from an incident about midmorning Monday when the workers left their machines and walked outside. After about an hour, company officials and union leaders convinced them to return to their stations.

The dispute is over why they walked out.

A spokesman for Local 228 of the United Papermakers and Paper Workers Union, AFL-CIO, said the workers left because someone had yelled "gas." He claimed that carbon monoxide gas from the machines' motors had made workers ill numerous times and resulted in three being hospitalized earlier this year.

He said the union had filed a grievance with the company asking for compensation for the two days. He said the "lockout" came after the company posted a sign asking that the person or persons responsible for the walkout come forward.

Improved Ventilation

Roy Rickert, Pacon personnel manager, denied the gas problem, but added the company had installed improved ventilation to satisfy the contentions that the gas emissions were harmful. He said that tests had proven the gas being released was no more than that released in any other manufacturing plant.

Rickert said the workers were laid off because they "left their jobs without authorization." He called the walkout "a premeditated thing" resulting from employee's complaints about working conditions not related to any gas emission.

He said the discipline was serious because of the costliness of the half-hour loss of production time. Pacon has about 90 workers on its production staff.

A union spokesman said that a union committee sought to have the layoff stopped Tuesday but the company refused to comply. He said that no workers had come forward because they didn't feel they were unjustly involved, and he called the posted sign "a threat."

He said, however, that he felt the company was attempting to solve the gas problem but still hadn't gone far enough.

Recycle to Save Resources

Garbage Must Have a Future

BY LILLIAN MACKESY
Post-Crescent Food Editor

SAN FRANCISCO — A young chemical engineer with a sense of humor brought the subject of garbage and other solid waste to the attention of 125 newspaper food editors in conference here.

Dr. Robert F. Testin, director of environmental planning for Reynolds Metal Company and one of the nation's leading authorities on solid waste, looks to the recovery and salvaging of municipal solid waste as the answer to America's mounting problem. Garbage has a future, in his opinion.

Testin told food editors Monday that "we better start learning about garbage if we don't want to be buried in it." He said present accepted methods of disposing of municipal waste — incineration and sanitary landfills — do not provide the whole answer to our solid waste disposal problems. They help, but they are not the ultimate solution, he said.

A change in viewpoint toward garbage could help, he said, noting that "carrot tops in eight million garbage cans in New York City are a problem, but those same carrot tops at a food-processing plant in the Midwest can become food for livestock to produce more food."

"The best answer to the waste disposal problem is the complete recycle and utilization of solid waste materials," he said. This concept addresses itself to the problem of what to do with this mountainous mess, yet it also provides a built-in method of saving valuable resources that would otherwise be forever lost."

Testin pointed out that some recycling programs already are under way in the area of reclaiming aluminum cans, paper, glass and tin cans. The ultimate answer, however, he said, "must be in the development of technology to recycle all valuable materials from municipal waste and make use of the remainder." It is Testin's hope that valuable materials that have been thrown away as trash or garbage never get to the landfill or incinerator.

The company: More than 36 million cans were collected in the first eight months of this year by groups and individuals who saved them from their garbage cans or found them mixed with other roadside litter.

"The alternate approach accepts the fact that most waste materials will end up in the trash heap," he said. "With the technologist taking over the problem, hopefully working out a mechanical method of sorting the material in order to salvage whatever is possible and processing the rest into useful new products."

Testin suggested that community groups, even the housewife, could help with the salvaging of specific materials as a fund-raising project, particularly paper and cans.

Convenience Foods

He also noted that most people believe that convenience packaging is one of today's main offenders in adding to solid waste. This is not true, he said. It's one of the biggest fallacies in solid waste discussion.

"A return to the cracker barrel era is not only impossible from a supply-demand point of view, but it actually would make the solid waste problem worse."

He noted there was significant reduction in weight and volume of the food and package waste in convenience foods in comparison to the garbage from those meals prepared "from scratch."

Testin also said it was the responsibility of the public to become properly informed about environmental issues related to foods and packaging. The food industry also has a serious responsibility and obligation in this area, he said, in ensuring that their processes and products are ecologically sound.

Fund for Youth Center Gets Start With Church Donation

A contribution by a local church has encouraged leaders of an effort to provide a free gathering place for Appleton young people.

A $50 donation by St. Joseph's Church has been placed in a special savings account set up in the name of Youth Center, at Outagamie Bank of Appleton, according to Peter Bishop, 326 S. Locust St., one of the adults leading the effort.

Worker Injured In 30-Foot Fall

A 26-year-old construction worker, who fell 30 feet this morning at the site of the new Appleton Vocational School near the Outagamie County Highway Garage, is listed in good condition at Appleton Memorial Hospital where he was taken by Larry's ambulance.

An ambulance spokesman said that Larry Bain, 803 1/2 S. Story St., who is employed by the John Hennes Trucking Co. of Appleton, was putting up steel work when the accident occurred about 10 a.m.

Bain may have suffered a spinal injury, authorities said, in addition to possible fractures of his shoulder and collarbone.

Two Persons Hurt in Three-Car Accident

Two persons received minor injuries late Tuesday afternoon in a three-car accident at College Avenue and State Street.

Appleton police said autos driven by Katherine L. Richardson, 37, 2225 Cherokee Drive, and Loretta M. Navy, 28, 1217 Deerfield Ave., Menasha, were stopped in traffic west of State College Avenue building when a car driven by Dennis D. Miller, 17, 2707 S. Greenview St., struck the Navy car pushing it into the Richardson vehicle.

Mrs. Richardson complained of a sore arm and neck, while Loretta Navy received a cut finger.

School Night For Scouting Is Thursday

Neighborhood schools throughout the Fox Cities area will be open from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday for School Night for Scouting.

This is the time when any boy interested in the Scouting program may sign up with a troop or pack and at the same time learn more about the program and activities.

The special night, sponsored by the Valley Council of Boy Scouts, will feature individual Cub Scouts packs and Boy Scout troops holding open houses at the schools for new members.

Potential Cubs must be either 8 years old or in the third grade and boys joining Scouts must be 11 years old.

West Side to Get Mercury Vapor Lights

Appleton High-West And Northland Plaza Areas to be Effectuated

New mercury vapor lights are being installed in two areas on the west side of Appleton this week as part of the city's comprehensive relighting program undertaken by Wisconsin Michigan Power Company (WMPCO).

The new lights will be placed

in the Northland Plaza area and in the vicinity of Appleton High School-West.

A total of 34 lights will be installed near Northland Plaza from Northland Ave. to Weiland Ave. between N. Mason and N. Richmond Streets. Along the major thoroughfares, Northland and Richmond, 400-watt lights will be used. The residential areas will have 175-watt lamps.

On the west side 400 new lights will replace obsolete incandescent fixtures in the area from Wisconsin Avenue to College Ave between the west city limits and N. Richmond St. The major intersections and N. Richmond St. will have 400-watt lights, while the residential areas will have 175-watt lamps.

"New poles are carefully being spaced and installed along street terraces to evenly distribute light over the pavement," Parker W. Schultz, WMPCO's customers service supervisor, explained. "In a few areas some large tree branches that would interfere with the light distribution are being carefully pruned."

The new lighting system will boost the lighting level fourfold in residential neighborhoods. Illumination will be increased eight to ten times on major traffic arteries, Schultz said. He attributed the increase in the lighting level to the increased efficiency of the mercury vapor lamp, and to the use of additional fixtures.

"The new 175-watt lights we are installing in residential areas are more than twice as efficient as the old incandescent ones," Schultz remarked. "So the city will get twice as much light for the money. The 400-watt lights used in heavy traffic areas are more than four times more efficient, resulting in four

Petition Asks Restoration Of Bus Route

A petition bearing the names of 78 northwest side Appleton residents has been filed at City Hall requesting the restoration of an eight-block portion of a bus route eliminated recently by Fox River Bus Lines.

The signers, residents of Winnebago, Commercial, Summit, Spring and Mason streets, are asking for the bus company to resume bus service along a route from Bennett Street west along W. Wisconsin Avenue to Summit Street, south to Winnebago Street and east to Bennett.

The bus lines eliminated that portion of one of its routes among several route changes recently enacted with approval of city and Fox Valley Council of Governments officials.

The changes were made to help the bus company economize, in an effort to cut down or eliminate the firm's operating losses.

The bus company itself proposed the change that prompted the petition, changing its Route No. 4 bus to travel south on Bennett between Wisconsin and Winnebago, cutting travel distance from eight to four blocks.

Residents on Bennett Street now must walk two blocks east to catch a bus that formerly stopped almost in front of their doors.

Teachers Seek Hike In Neenah

$300 Base Pay Boost Separates Accord On 1971 Contracts

NEENAH — Negotiators for Neenah school teachers and the board of education are $300 apart on a settlement of the base salary for teachers in 1971, spokesmen for the two groups said today.

The negotiating teams are working against an early October deadline for submission of school budget figures to the fiscal control body for inclusion in the 1971 budget.

The salary structure is based on the amount paid starting teachers, currently $7,100, and provision for annual merit increases. At present, the progression provides for increases of 3.5 per cent for the first 10 years and 3 per cent for the remaining five years.

The teachers' latest request is for an increase to $7,600 in the base salary and the board has offered an increase to $7,300. Settlement of the base salary figure would provide teachers that increase plus the annual merit increase.

The contract is for the calendar year 1971. Settlement has been reached on 12 of 19 items, the spokesmen said.

Tentative agreement has been reached on a number of items relating to work procedures and teaching loads. Still to be settled, in addition to the salary schedule, are certain benefits, grievance procedures and the school calendar. The next session between negotiators is scheduled for early next week.

Negotiations between the board and Neenah Education Association, representing 354 teachers, began in May.

Also in progress are negotiations between the board and some 120 members of other groups including mechanics, carpenters, painters, custodians, cooks and school clerical personnel.

The board must have its budget in the hands of the mayor by Oct. 6. If teacher contract negotiations are not completed by then, a lump sum will have to be included to take care of future settlement.

Mediation Seeks Pact In K-C Strike

NEENAH — Federal mediation sessions started this morning in an attempt to settle a 14-day-old strike against Kimberly-Clark Corporation's Neenah Paper Company operation.

H. G. Miller, from the federal mediation service in Green Bay, was slated to meet this morning with company officials and representatives of Local 107, United Papermakers and Paperworkers, AFL-CIO.

Meanwhile, members of Local 482, International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Papermill workers, and Local 467 United Papermakers and Paperworkers are scheduled to vote tonight on the company's latest contract offer.

Local 482 and Local 467 represent workers in the Neenah Mill operation which includes both the Lakeview and Badger-Globe divisions.

Negotiations between the company and union representatives were concluded early last Friday following an 18-hour marathon bargaining session. Negotiations started back in May.

The two-year pact will be taken to the 1,300 workers for ratification, according to a K-C spokesman.

$400 Bond Set For Man After Oshkosh Chase

OSHKOSH — Bond was set at $400 for a 23-year-old Omro man who police say was driving about 50 miles an hour and weaving through heavy downtown traffic Tuesday night.

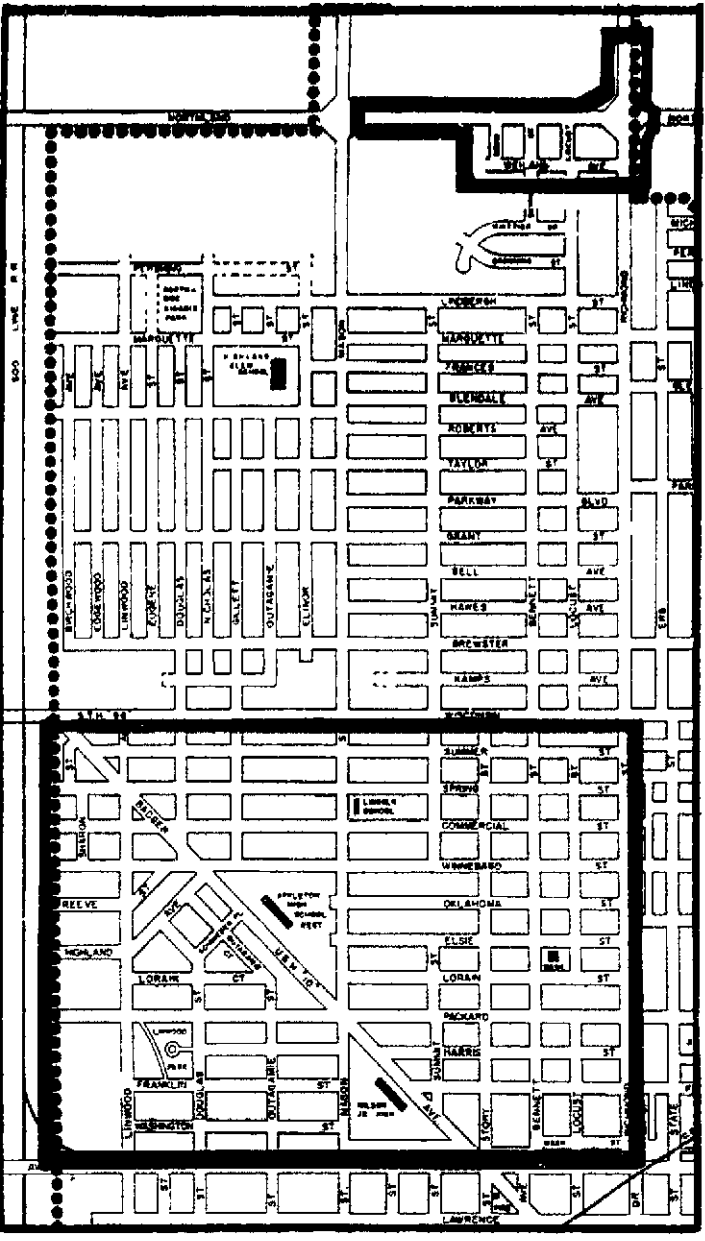

Police charged Robert A. Collins, 23, 540 Spruce St., with reckless driving and attempting to elude an officer following a chase just after 10 p.m. on Main Street.

Collins appeared before Court this morning but was unable to post bond and remained in the Winnebago County jail.

A patrolman said he spotted a car at Main Street and Nevada Avenue traveling south at a high rate of speed. The officer said he attempted to catch the car which was passing other vehicles on the right and left but at 50 miles an hour. The officer said he was unable to get on the other car.

At Lincoln Avenue and N Main Street the officer said he started his red light and siren. He caught up to Collins' car when it turned into a parking lot at 633 N Main St.

Collins did not stop, the officer said, but was having car trouble. The patrolman pulled his car in front of the lot exit and arrested the man.

New Mercury vapor street lights are being installed this week in the two outlined areas on the west side of Appleton. Residential neighborhoods will be lighted with 175-watt lamps and major traffic areas with 400-watt fixtures. The installation work is expected to be completed by the end of December. # Neenah Panel Okays Zone for Apartment

NEENAH — The plan commission, deciding that its role was not to predict residential opposition, but rather rule on whether an apartment complex was good planning or not, approved a change of zoning request for a site at W. Cecil Street and Tullar Road.

Sixth Ward Ald. Lester Herzfeldt told that plan commission, "Personally, I have no objections to the rezoning, but in this case I'll have to go along with the people in my ward and oppose it."

Two weeks ago, when the zoning request came before the city council, Herzfeldt said he had met with the developer of the 32-unit, three building complex, and that he said he could see nothing wrong with it. "My phone has been ringing ever since," he said.

The developers are planning to construct half of the units this fall with the rest coming next spring, according to Frederick Churm of Churm Construction Company.

Mayor Roman V. Hauser warned the commission that "there will be opposition," citing a similar request a year ago, that was turned down by the council after local residents showed up in force to beat down the request.

Commissioner Ronald Lange said, "The location seems to be ideal for this type of zoning. A similar zone is right across the street and it's on a major traffic carrier." The land is bounded on the east by Louise Street, the south by W. Cecil Street and the west by Tullar Road.

Tenants 'Not Neat' According to Herzfeldt, most of the complaints and opposition have come from residents to the north and east of the development. The opposition includes "too many small children, and tenants would not be as neat as people who owned their own homes," Herzfeldt related.

Robert Bues, a member of the plan commission and former Appleton public works director, said, "The function of the plan commission is not to go along with what is wanted, but rather what would be good planning for a specific area and to augment the city council's decision."

"The council's decision is usually based on politics while the plan commission is supposed to base its decision on good planning," he said.

The commission approved the request, but it still has to get past the city council before construction can start.

1,000 to Aid Twin City Drive for $329,930

NEENAH-MENASHA — More than 1,000 volunteers will participate in the drive to raise $329,930 during the Community Chest campaign which will kick off on Oct. 12 and run through Nov. 7.

Lee Forman, general chairman of the 1970 campaign, has announced that Richard W. Wand has been appointed chairman of the industrial division. With his appointment, the heads of all volunteer worker sections have been selected. Forman said.

The complete list of chairmen includes advance gifts division. Russell Flom and Willard Almandinger, co-chairmen; William Fieweger and Russell Ward special gifts; Robert Torserson, professional.

Classified business division. Joel Mead and James Taylor, co-chairmen; public civic section. Bill Hesser, Mayor James Adams, and Dr. Alan Osterndorf; mercantile section. Francis Priest, James Pfeiffer and Justin Kneeland; commercial section. Joel Garlock, Leo Pfister, Ed Cross and William Mayer; service section. David Bunda and Herb Trader; general section. Roy Cross and Walter Ziemke; construction section. Russell Young and Kenneth Holmes.

Some of these include services such as crafts instruction, swimming and life saving, physical fitness, citizenship and character building, vocation workshops, summer camping, businessmen's recreation, activities for elderly and retired

500 Expected At Proxmire, Hephner Fete

CHILTON — About 500 persons are expected to attend the testimonial dinner for Sen. William Proxmire and State Rep. Gervase Hephner at the Altona in New Holstein on Saturday.

The dinner for the two Democratic lawmakers is being sponsored by the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers.

Masters of ceremonies will be Gil Brunner, of the machinists' association, and George Hall, of the AFL-CIO state office.

Menasha Housing Unit Seeks Survey of Elderly

MENASHA — The Menasha Housing Authority (MHA) will be back in business Monday night in another attempt to get local elderly and low-income family housing projects on the road.

In a meeting set for 7 p.m. Monday at city hall, the MRA will give final approval to a survey of elderly persons in the community and okay a 1971 budget that could be as high as $10,000 to $12,000.

That's up considerably from the $270 for this year. But MHA Chairman Gerald Wagner says it's necessary if the authority is to avoid further delays in getting a public housing project going.

And most, if not all, of the money will be reimbursed by the federal government once project funding is approved, Wagner said.

The money is needed to pay for travel expenses and legal fees that will come up in 1971 as the MHA heads towards an application for public housing funds.

Wagner said he hopes to have questionnaires mailed to between 700 and 750 elderly persons in the city who are eligible for an elderly public housing project.

In another two weeks, he said, responses should be in and the MHA will be ready to ask the common council for a cooperation agreement, which would signify the city's willingness to go ahead with a low-income family and elderly public housing project.

COG Survey The survey will show how many elderly persons would be interested in living in a project. Another survey being done by the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) will show what the need is for low-income family housing in Menasha.

With that documentation, Wagner hopes the city can apply for project funding to the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and get high-priority attention.

Funds for public housing are behind the demand, officials say, so the more complete a project application, the better the chances for funding, Wagner said.

He hopes that with a well-documented application, Menasha could get project funding in late 1971 or 1972.

Funds through June 30, 1971, are already allocated, Wagner said. There's also a long list of other cities which hope for public housing project funding after July 1, 1971.

Park Unit Proposes Nature Area for Neenah

NEENAH — A development plan designed to give Neenah a lowland nature study area within the city park system was unveiled Tuesday night by the park and recreation department.

William Miller, park and recreation superintendent, told the plan commission of his department's intention to develop a 15-acre site near Bayview Road and S. Park Avenue into a study area highlighting a wildlife which lives in a lowland.

Natural Habitat "We have all the highland natural area we need at Memorial Park which is just being developed, but until now we have had no area where people can see the natural habitat in a lowland area," Miller said.

The commission gave its nod to a city intention to purchase the site for $27,500, and by doing so gave its implied consent to Miller's proposed development.

According to Miller, the swamp land would be left basically in its natural state with the only work involving digging a pot hole for the natural drainage and a walking and bike path through the swamp.

Ball Diamond Small areas on the north and southwest corners of the site would be developed for organized recreation functions with playground equipment, enough area for a ball diamond plus a picnic spot.

The only challenges to Miller's proposal came from Ronald Lange and Wayne Bryan, public works director.

Lange asked if the swampy soft character of the land might pose a danger to small children. "I can remember when I was a child and nearly lost a couple of playmates down there," Lange noted.

Nature Hazards "We have to expect a degree of parental supervision and there are some hazards in nature," Miller said.

Bryan said, "The 15 acres seems awful small for this type of development and some of the marsh has already been used up by filling to the south."

Miller, however, said filling did not seem to upset the natural balance and character of the area and the size should be sufficient for the park area.

Miller and the park and recreation commission are backing the purchase because there is very little open space on the city's southeast side. He said it would serve the dual purpose of providing a lowland nature study and fill in a void on the southeast side.

"Places where people have an opportunity to see a natural area are very, very rare these days," Miller said.

Police & Fire Beat

A 12-year-old girl was taken to Appleton Memorial Hospital Monday evening for treatment of leg and arm injuries received when she reportedly was pushed onto the pavement by a 15-year-old boy in an argument over a bicycle. Mary L. Becker, 416 N. Durkee St., was taken by ambulance from the 500 block of N. Ida Street.

Michael J. Murphy, 19, 601 W. Michigan St., sustained possible leg injuries Tuesday afternoon when the motorcycle he was driving struck an auto driven by Alice B. Sebra, 47, Chilton, while the car was turning left onto Morrison Street from Wisconsin. Police said Murphy had been going west on Wisconsin.

A rear end collision which sent one car into another Tuesday afternoon in the 1800 block of N. Richmond Street brought minor injuries for an Appleton woman and her daughter.

Police said an auto driven by Rose M. Hertzfeld, 35, 3905 N. Richmond St., and Rosella M. Moede, 50, 800 W. Glendale Ave., were southbound on Richmond, stopped for a vehicle turning left onto W. Parkway Blvd., when the Hertzfeld car was struck in the rear by a car driven by George H. Wendell, 47, Coral Gables, Fla.

Wendell, who also was going south, told authorities he couldn't stop in time. Mrs. Hertzfeld complained of pain to her shoulders, while her daughter, Holly, 9, said she had a sore back.

Smoke in the Sundial Laundromat, 1326A N. Meade St., caused by two smoke bombs, brought five units of the Appleton Fire Department Tuesday night. Authorities said they were unable to determine who lit the bombs.

A 17-year-old Hortonville youth received face cuts late Tuesday afternoon when his car collided with another on State 76 at Casaloma Drive.

Outagamie County traffic officers said that a car driven by Maurice F. Stilen, 41, route 1, Shiocton, was going southeast on 76 when the car driven by the youth, Donald C. Weiland, attempted to turn left in front of the Stilen auto. Authorities said that Weiland was traveling north on Casaloma before the mishap.

Wayne H. Merkle, 22, New Berlin, complained of a sore neck and knee and bumps when his car and one driven by Lee E. Hurley, 23, 431 E. Spring St., Appleton, collided on U.S. 41 Tuesday night, about two miles west of Appleton.

A passenger in the Merkle car, Randall J. Roedl, 20, of Waukesha, complained of a sore back.

Outagamie County police said that Hurley was turning left off 41 onto Pine Street, and was hit by the Merkle car, coming south on 41, as he pulled out from the median strip.

Damages to both cars totaled $500.

LITTLE CHUTE — Village police received two complaints of bad checks from merchants, both resulting from a man posing as a representative from an Appleton parish.

The man placed orders Tuesday for 20 dozen sweet rolls and 20 dozen buns at Sugar and Spice Bakery, 108 E. Main St., and 32 pounds of ground beef at Quality Food Store, 128 E. Main St., indicating they were for a promotion at the parish and he would pick up the food Saturday.

In both cases he paid in advance with checks made out for $35 on an Appleton bank. He received $13 in change from the bakery and $11 from the food store. Clerks took the orders at both business places and checks were returned noting there was no such account at the bank.

LITTLE CHUTE — Victor J. Stedl, 47, 622 Harrison St., pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct and was fined $45 by Municipal Justice Raymond Sanders Monday night.

Stedl was arrested at his home Saturday night after a family disturbance.

KAUKAUNA — Two vandalism complaints are being investigated by police, both involving damage to buildings.

Leo Schmalz, manager of the Kaukauna Savings and Loan, 109 W. Second St., reported a green stripe painted on the side of the building over the weekend.

Ray Driessen, 1705 Crooks Ave., reported eggs thrown against his home at 405 E. 15th St.

A 21-year-old former Black Creek man was fined $50 and costs or 30 days in the Outagamie County jail Tuesday, after pleading guilty to a charge of concealing stolen property.

Thomas Langer, who did not appear in court but entered the plea through a letter sent to County Judge Nick F. Schaefer, was granted 30 days to pay the fine or begin serving the jail term. A county investigator charged Langer in connection with

District Attorney's Office Settles Lawsuit Against Bonding Firm

The Outagamie County district attorney's office, representing the State of Wisconsin, has settled a $10,000 lawsuit it initiated in Circuit Court in June against an Indiana bonding company which previously failed to produce bond for an Ohio man charged with the burglary of a downtown jewelry store.

Assistant Dist. Atty. R. Thomas Cane said this morning the office will file a stipulation for dismissal of the suit against the United Bonding Insurance Co., of Indianapolis, in County Court.

The firm sent the district attorney's office an $8,750 check earlier this week, which will go into the county treasury. With a return of 87.5 per cent, the office considers the case closed.

The litigation begun in June against the firm has its roots in a crime committed in Appleton almost three years ago.

1967 Burglary
On Dec. 17, 1967, the Martin J. Hupka jewelry store, at 336 W. College Ave., was broken into, and about $5,000 worth of merchandise was taken. Later that month, Harold B. Lutchin, 37, formerly of Cincinnati, Ohio, was taken into custody by Ohio authorities as a suspect in the Appleton crime.

In January of 1968, Lutchin was extradited from Ohio and brought to Outagamie County, to face charges of burglary and theft in connection with the jewelry store break-in. He was confined in the county jail until July of 1968, when he had a first court appearance on the felony counts.

On July 13, an Outagamie County judge set bail of $10,000, and Lutchin was later released on a corporate surety bond in that amount, through the United Bonding Insurance Co. of Indianapolis.

Failed to Appear
After legal haggling that lasted more than a year, trial for Lutchin was scheduled for Oct. 15, 1969. He failed to appear. By the agreement he held with the bonding firm, the company was required to pay the $10,000 in exchange for the defendant who didn't show.

Lutchin, however, had been arrested earlier the same day by police in Cincinnati, supposedly while committing a burglary.

In its suit with the district attorney's office, United Bonding argued that since Lutchin had been confined, it would not be required to pay the bond money since it was hardly possible for him to be present at trial.

KAUKAUNA — Omar (Babe) Wolfram and Paul Jansen fired scores of net 68 to deadlock for the Senior Tourney championship at Fox Valley Golf Club Saturday with the former eventually taking the title on the second hole of a sudden-death playoff.

Finishing next with 69 was Gordon Verkuilen while Jerry Lamers carded a 70. Earl "Sap" Schuler was best for competitors of 60 years of age, hitting a par 73.

with the theft of an automobile engine on July 16, 1969, from a Town of Black Creek man. The court noted that Langer is now in Minnesota.

KIMBERLY — Volunteer firemen were called to extinguish a fire in a car in the 700 block of E. Kimberly Avenue about 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

Assembly District Backed

KIEL — The Calumet County Civic Association (CCCA) will have gathered through its meetings around the lake on the pollution problems of Lake Winnebago. He gave Wolf a certificate of membership for CCCA.

The group went on record in favor of the move at a recent meeting here.

William Hertel, legal counsel for the group, said that redistricting may result in Calumet being combined with Brown County for purposes of representation.

A neighboring township or city could become part of Calumet's Assembly district enabling the county to have enough population to qualify as a district itself, he said.

State Rep. Gervase Hephner, D-Chilton, told the group that he feels it is a "must" that Calumet retain its Assembly district, "especially when the census shows that we are the second fastest growing county in the state."

He added that the Assembly could make the decision early in 1971. If the Assembly doesn't do it, the decision would rest with the court.

A special committee will be appointed by CCCA President Clarence Wolf to contact the towns and cities neighboring Calumet County to see if they would consider joining the area for district representation.

Wolf also appointed a committee to meet with the Calumet County Board's Finance Committee to present the group's $1,000 request for 1971.

Ed Casper, president of Save Winnebago, Inc., presented a

Erickson Discusses Legalized Marijuana

On the Wisconsin campaign trail today, Republican U. S. Senate candidate John Erickson told high school students in Shawano he "could conceivably support" legalized importation, manufacture and distribution of marijuana in this country, if medical research shows the weed can be used without harmful effects.

Erickson said his decision would be based upon the results of experiments by the National Institute of Mental Health.

"The marijuana problem is a medical research shows the weed one," said Erickson. He said it is "tragic" that little more is known today about the consequences of using marijuana than was known in 1950 about cigarettes.

If marijuana were legalized, Erickson said he would support a licensing system similar to the "tobacco-alcohol-prescription drug" pattern, and would oppose permitting domestic growing of the weed.

"This way we could discourage a national farmer lobby costs."

times more light for the money."

WMPCO has contracted with two firms for the relighting work. Superior Electric Co., Appleton, is installing the new lights and removing the old ones. Asplundh Tree Expert Co., Jenkintown, Pa., is doing the necessary tree trimming. This work is expected to be completed by the end of December.

During the past four years, Appleton has been upgrading and improving street lighting throughout the city. New mercury vapor lights have been installed in most sections of the city. Each year Charles A. Magnette, director of inspection, and WMPCO officials have worked together to plan the installation work.

Both the city council and its public safety committee have authorized the relighting program to improve nighttime safety. The police department has endorsed the new lighting system because it "aid drivers and acts as a deterrent to crime and vandalism."

Schultz emphasized that neither property owners nor the city are charged for construction and installation of the new system. WMPCO installs the lights. The city pays a monthly fee for energy consumption and maintenance of the fixtures.

Hypothyroid Person Quite Often Is Obese

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

The hypothyroid person quite often is obese. There are several places where excess fat tends to accumulate. The back of the neck, which I have. Would you explain what hypothyroidism is? Can it be treated by special diet and vitamins? — Mrs. J.T.

Don't jump to the conclusion that such fat pads (also sometimes called a "buffalo hump") are a diagnostic sign indicating thyroid trouble. Such patients might have some fat pads; again, they might not.

"Hypothyroid" means a deficiency of thyroid hormone — the thyroid gland isn't producing as much of the hormone as it should.

cause such symptoms. So if you have any real question as to whether your thyroid gland is working properly, your doctor can use any of several laboratory tests which will give definite answers. Treatment is not by diet and vitamins. Rather, one of the thyroid preparations is given by mouth — either extract of thyroid gland or one of the synthetics.

If you have none of the other signs of low thyroid and are concerned only with the "buffalo hump," losing some weight probably will help to some extent. Or, on the chance that it is a lipoma, or benign fatty tumor, it can be removed if the situation warrants it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it wise for a mother to allow a four- or five-year-old to see her in the nude or take baths with her? Will it be helpful or harmful? —

Sometimes too much sportswear, etc., children get a alcohol and highly seasoned pretty fair general notion of foods cause it. Sometimes sheer overeating causes it. Again, an anatomy anyway.

Therefore I feel that there's ulcer may be the real root of no point in deliberate exposure the trouble.

If the youngster just happens to pop into the bedroom or bathroom unexpectedly, don't make a big thing of it. Treat it casually. As to the communal baths, no.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What You can lose weight if you causes gastritis and is there really want to! # Sitter's Grief Not Always Produced by Her Charges

BY HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that young baby sitters get tired of hearing: "When I baby sat at your age, Linda, I only charged 50 cents for an entire evening."

"I'm sorry there's nothing in the refrigerator to snack on but a couple of chicken wings, and they've been there for almost a week. If you don't eat them, would you mind feeding them to the cat?"

"You're five minutes late, Linda. Why is it that no one in the younger generation feels it is important to be prompt anymore?"

"Of course, it is none of my business since I'm not your mother, Linda, but if I were certainly wouldn't let a daughter of mine go out at night wearing a dress that short."

"The kitchen is a total mess, and the sink is simply stacked with dirty dishes. If you don't mind neatening up the place while we're gone, I'll pay you an extra quarter."

"You should have no trouble with Alyce; she's a real angel. Little Jimmy is the one you have to watch. He likes to pretend he's a dog and sneak up behind you and bite your ankles."

"I hear you also baby sit for the Joneses, the family that just moved into the next block. They're supposed to be real weird. Tell me, what really goes on in their house."

"Mind you, if the children ask you to make them some fudge, you'll have to clean up the pots and pans afterwards. But you can take a couple pieces home to your mother—with my compliments."

"Hi, kid, are you the baby sitter? Say, you're a knockout. Maybe I'll have my wife take the children out and stay home and let you sit me."

"Why do we have to have her, Mama, instead of our regular sitter? She looks mean. I'll bet she'll pinch us or make us go to bed early if we try to have any fun."

"I know you read me Cinderella three times, but then you read me about Red Riding Hood and the wolf and that scared me wide awake again. So it's all your fault. But I'll close my eyes and really fall asleep if you

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — 1923, when a major blaze caused dozens of homes lay in ashes in the exclusive Berkeley Hills area today from the worst of a rash of fires that erupted up and down hot, dry California.

Officials would not estimate the damage here but said it was the worst East Bay fire since

2 Panthers Given Terms For Murder

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Two members of the Milwaukee Black Panthers party were convicted Tuesday night of attempted murder of a policeman, and were given terms of up to 80 years each in prison.

The courtroom was almost barren of spectators because of doorway guards as the Circuit Court jury of nine men and three women announced a verdict after deliberating more than three hours.

Trial of Jesse L. White, 21, and Booker T. Collins Jr., 22, began Sept. 14. A third defendant, Earl W. Leverett, 24, disappeared a week ago while free on bond.

The trio had been known to supporters as "the Milwaukee Three," and groups of more than 100 chanting backers had gathered on sidewalks outside the courthouse during the trial. Special security precautions were ordered for the building by Judge Hugh O'Connell.

Patrolman Robert Schroeder, 25, who was not wounded, testified it was White whom he had seen firing at him with a 12 gauge shotgun from a car while he walked his northside beat in September, 1969.

Man Kills 4 Women, Shoots Self

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — A State Labor Department employee reported for work as usual today, pulled a rifle from a box wrapped in Christmas paper that he carried and killed four women employees, each with a well-aimed shot. Then he took his own life.

Police said three of the female employees were killed in a fifth-floor office where the man worked. The fourth woman was shot minutes later on the third floor.

The gunman, police said, then went to a stairwell on the second floor, placed the weapon in his mouth and fired his last bullet. He toppled dead down the stairs.

The gunman was identified as Joseph W. White, 25, of Albany, an administrative analyst for the department. The women, all secretaries, were identified as Mrs. Sandra L. Peters, 24, a recent bride from Amsterdam, Patricia Chromick, 22, of Albany, Linda D. Willis, 21, of Watford, and Mary Ann Reinsche, 27, of Albany.

tacks with American and South Vietnamese support. Hanoi Radio quoted a Pathet Lao broadcast saying 11 battalions of royal Lao troops had staged attacks since Aug. 31 north and south of Attapeu in southern Laos, which fell to the Communist command in April.

The broadcast said the royalist troops were accompanied by U.S. advisers and supported by South Vietnamese special forces.

The U.S. Command repeated a prepared statement saying, "There are no U.S. ground combat troops in Laos." But it is known that South Vietnamese special forces and American reconnaissance patrols operate along the Ho Chi Minh trail in the lower Laotian panhandle.

U.S. Aides Assigned
Military attaches assigned to the U.S. Embassy in Vientiane and Central Intelligence Agency agents also advise and operate with Royal Lao troops.

The Cambodian command in Phnom Penh said that 60,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops have been killed or seriously wounded by Cambodian, American and South Vietnamese forces during the first five months of the Cambodian war. The command said about 5,000 Cambodian soldiers have been killed or wounded.

Claim Too High
Sources in Saigon said the claim of 60,000 enemy casualties appeared exaggerated. A South Vietnamese communiqué said its forces operating in Cambodia had killed 11,446 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops since March. South Vietnamese losses for the period were reported as 1,064 killed and 4,850 wounded.

Official sources said American forces killed about 3,800 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong soldiers in Cambodia in May and June. U.S. losses were reported as 354 killed and 1,680 wounded.

Search for Balloon Is Expanded

NEW YORK (AP) — The Coast Guard today added seven aircraft to the search force combing choppy seas off Newfoundland for three adventurers who disappeared Monday while trying to cross the Atlantic in a balloon.

No trace of the three—two men and a woman—was found Tuesday when seven planes and three cutters took part in the search. Searchlights were used to continue the operation through the night.

The Coast Guard Search and Rescue Center here said the augmented force of 14 planes and three cutters would cover an area of a little over 50,000 square miles today.

Aboard the 80-foot-high balloon, named "the free life" were Malcolm Brighton, 32, a British aeronautical engineer and professional balloonist, and Rodney Anderson, 32-year-old New York commodity broker and his wife Pamela, 28.

The craft apparently went down in a heavy rainstorm off St. John's, Nfld., some time after its last radio message was received at 7:05 p.m. Monday.

The message said: "Six hundred feet and descending. Signaling off. Will try contact after landing."

Coast Guard officials at Governors Island, N.Y., headquarters for the search, said the search was spread over a wide area because of uncertainty of the effect of winds on the balloon.

The balloon's gondola, made

Aspin Wins With Recount In 1st District

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP)—A ballot recount requested by Leslie Aspin, a former White House aide, indicated Tuesday night he won the Sept. 8 Democratic nomination for the seat held by Rep. Henry C. Schadeberg, R-Wis.

Douglas La Follette, a Racine college teacher and a distant relation of the late Sen. Robert (Fighting Bob) La Follette, had been declared the unofficial victor in the 1st District primary by 26 votes.

The recount eventually produced extra votes for Aspin in Kenosha County, giving him a 20-vote margin over La Follette. Recounts in the district's three other counties were concluded last week.

Little-Known Crisis Panel Has Top White House Role

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major force behind the making of U.S. policy in the current Jordanian turmoil is a little-known government panel designed to develop answers for such crises before they erupt.

The name: the Washington Special Action Group, known in the bureaucracy as "WSAG."

It was designed to be a crisis-anticipating body — one that in ideal circumstances would protect President Nixon against international surprises.

For all its announced purposes of looking far into the future for possible trouble spots, WSAG has been preoccupied with present trouble much of the time since its creation.

Ever since Palestinian guerrillas hijacked three airliners and forced them and their passengers on the Jordanian desert, WSAG has been in the forefront of White House handling of that and later more ominous developments.

Members Named

Members of the once-secret group include Deputy Secretary of Defense David Packard, Undersecretary of State U. Alexis Johnson, director Richard Helms of the Central Intelligence Agency and Admiral Thomas Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The chairman from the outset has been Henry E. Kissinger, Nixon's assistant for national security affairs.

In the current crisis, the group's membership has been expanded to include Joseph J. Sisco, assistant secretary of state for the Middle East and a key figure in unsuccessful efforts by the United States to arrange Middle East peace negotiations.

Nixon Attends

A measure of the influence being exerted by WSAG in the Jordanian crisis was Nixon's unannounced presence at one of its sessions in the White House situation room Sunday evening.

After that meeting, it was learned, Nixon conferred privately with key WSAG members in his Oval Office and, long after dark, met again with some of them in his less formal quarters in the neighboring Executive Office Building.

WSAG meets several times daily in times like these and Chairman Kissinger, a ready conduit of the group's thinking,

Homeowner Fights Truckers With Fence

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — For three years truckers refused Marjory J. Cobb's request that they quit using the street in front of his house at all hours as a shortcut to a nearby warehouse.

"One driver hit me with a tire tool," Cobb said.

But they can't use the street anymore. Cobb built a fence across it, leaving only about enough room for a motorcycle.

The truckers summoned police who looked at city and private surveys showing Cobb's property line extended 25½ feet into the street and at a building permit he had obtained. The officers just ordered lighted barricades to protect the fence.

is in repeated personal contact with the chief executive.

Created in April 1969, WSAG was the direct product of the shooting down of a U.S. Navy intelligence plane which North Korea claimed had invaded its air space.

In his first "State of the World," report to Congress in February, Nixon took the wraps off WSAG and said:

"This groups drafts contingency plans for possible crises integrating the political and military requirements of crisis action. The action responses of the departments of the government are planned in detail and specific responsibilities assigned in an agreed time sequence in advance."

The White House insists WSAG has met regularly in periods of calm. However, the only times the group's activities have been publicized have been when Nixon faced grave decisions — first in committing U.S. ground forces in Cambodia and now in the Middle East.

The White House said WSAG's actions necessarily have been influenced by what might be termed unpredictable events, but, sources said, the aim still is to prepare for trouble before it arises.

In his message to Congress, Nixon stated:

"While no one can anticipate exactly the timing and force of a possible crisis, the WSAG's planning helps insure that we have asked the right questions in advance, and thought through the implications of various responses."

Zimmermann to Make 59 Graduate First Major Speech

Robert A. Zimmermann has announced plans for the first major speech of his campaign for secretary of state.

Edmond Hou-Sey of Sheboygan, the American party candidate for the U.S. Senate, announced that Zimmermann, Democratic nominee for secretary of state, is to speak Sunday in La Crosse.

Zimmermann, a service station attendant at a Cedar Grove station operated by Hou-Sey, astonished veteran politicians Sept. 8 by winning the Democratic nomination in the secretary of state primary, virtually without having campaigned except to declare himself to be a "Wallace Democrat."

The La Crosse unit of the American party is one of several political groups which Zimmermann said have asked him to make campaign speeches.

The candidate said he and Hou-Sey have a strategy about getting elected, but declined to elaborate extensively on it during a news interview last week.

Hou-Sey, who has described himself as Zimmermann's confidant and guru, said Tuesday night that his employee will speak at Concordia Hall in La Crosse, but declined to elaborate on what Zimmermann might speak about.

Lake Operation at Sunset Point Park
Cost Village $7,343

KIMBERLY — Operation of the new swimming lake opened for the first time this year at Sunset Point Park cost the village $7,343 for the season.

Some 88,248 people used the facility, according to figures compiled by Mrs. Katherine Lochschmidt, village clerk.

Cost of lake maintenance and operation was listed at $15,900 while total fees collected amounted to $8,556.

The lake was opened June 8 and operated through the Labor Day weekend. It was closed for a week while youngsters were in school prior to the holiday.

The largest single source of revenue was the 471 family passes issued for a total of $3,788. An additional $3,303 was collected in daily swimming fees. Over revenue included 40 adult passes for $160; 94 student passes for $282; 170 children passes for $340; swimming lessons, $636; tags, $28; and canteen share, $38.

During the first week of operation, 14,109 used the lake. This was achieved despite closing of the pool for a day when mosquito and lake fly larvae were discovered and pool attendants unsure of the larvae, closed the lake until the wrigglers were identified. The largest single-day attendance was June 30, when 3,561 people made use of the facilities.

Flag Now Flies At County Airport

An American flag now flies in front of the terminal at the Outagamie County Airport, the result of efforts of employees in Air Wisconsin's maintenance department.

There never had been a flagpole put up at the present terminal because the County Board's Airport Committee did not want to spend the money now and then have to remove the pole when a permanent terminal is built, hopefully in the near future.

In a letter to Ed Godec, director of operations for Air Wisconsin, Airport Mgr. Charles Olson praised the employees who donated time and money to put up the flagpole and assured them a permanent flagpole would be included in new terminal plans.

Youth Found Guilty, Fined

OSHKOSH — A 19-year-old youth arrested in May during a disturbance at Oshkosh State University was found guilty of three charges and fined $300 and court costs Monday in Circuit Court.

Gary C. Nelson, 19, who lived at 954 Gruenhagen Hall last school year, was found guilty by the court on an amended charge of attempted battery of a police officer, unlawful assembly and criminal destruction of property.

Nelson pleaded no-contest to each charge. He originally was also charged with disorderly conduct, but the charge was dropped Monday.

A Sheboygan County sheriff's officer who was called to Oshkosh in May for riot squad duty testified that Nelson threw large rocks that nearly hit him while he was marching in a riot squad on Algoma Boulevard.

The officer said he did not break ranks to chase the youth. He later saw a newspaper picture of the youth and the officer identified Nelson as the one who threw the rocks.

Nelson paid a $125 fine for the unlawful assembly charge, $100 on the attempted battery charge and $75 on the destruction of property charge.

Auxiliary Has Clothing Drive

SHERWOOD — A used clothing drive for Indians in Menominee County, is again being conducted by the Thomas E. Kees American Legion Auxiliary.

Clothing should be packed in boxes and taken to Mrs. John Stumpf's Sherwood home during October. It will be taken to St. Anthony's Indian School at Neopit for distribution.

The auxiliary unit has handled the project for many years, as part of its child welfare work. Many appreciative letters have arrived from families who received clothing.

Clothing, of all types in good condition, is needed.

Wise Old Owl Contest Offers Printing Plant

BY CAPPY DICK

For solving the puzzle of the Wise Old Owl, five boys and girls are going to become national prize winners in this contest. Their awards will be the Superior Flash Printing Plant which includes an all-metal rotary printing press, 200 pieces of movable rubber type, picture dies to print, supplies of ink and paper, tools to use in setting the type and operating the press and a booklet of tips and suggestions for junior printers and publishers.

These Printing Plants, manufactured for boys and girls by the Superior Marking Equipment Company, will be awarded for the five nearest and most original correct contest entries.

The puzzle problem is to unscramble a famous proverb of seven words. The words, each mixed up, appear adjoining the owl. When you know what they are, clip out the picture, paste it on a sheet of paper, print the unscrambled proverb beneath it along with your name, age, address and Zip Code number, then decorate the entry in any neat, original way, using paints, crayons or cutouts.

Finally mail the entry to Cappy Dick's Midweek Printing Press Contest at The Post-Crescent and mail it before midnight of day after tomorrow.

To qualify for a chance to win a printing press outfit, a contestant's entry must first win a local prize, 5 of which will be awarded to boys and girls of the Fox Cities area. These prizes will be an intriguing pocket-size magic trick called The Snapper.

Judges' decisions will be final. All entries will become Cappy Dick's property; none can be returned. Names of the prize winners will be published here and their awards will be sent to their homes by mail.

Tomorrow: A file of your summer vacation snapshots!

It Would Have Been Simpler to Leave

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: About six months ago my husband's father went to work in a shop that employs 12 men. Apparently all these men talk about is sex organs and women. Since my father-in-law took this job his conversation is nothing but filth, dirty words and rotten jokes which he thinks are hilarious. Sometimes he laughs so hard he can barely finish the sentence.

Sunday at our house, my father-in-law got going on the dirtiest stuff I've ever heard.

It had to do with sheep, goats, chickens, dogs — sodomy and perversion with a little incest thrown in. When I couldn't stand any more I interrupted my father-in-law and told him if he couldn't think of anything more sensible to talk about to keep quiet. He became very angry and screamed, "You have insulted me and I am leaving." He stalked out, slamming the door behind him.

My husband says I should go to his father and apologize. I don't feel I owe him an apology. Do you? Your opinion is wanted and needed.

Madge of Thunder Bay Ontario

Dear Madge: I agree with you. However, here's a suggestion: You could have made your objections known by simply leaving the room.

Do so, if the occasion should arise again — and it probably will.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If you concur, please say it — loud and clear. I need some backing.

Everytime I include a certain friend of mine she jumps up from the dinner table as soon as she has gobbled down her food and carries her plate to the kitchen. Once she started to take the plate of another guest and he asked, "Do you mind if I finish eating?"

I am well organized and can handle a dinner for six with ease. If I need help I'm not shy about asking someone to give me a hand.

This same guest wants to dive into the dishes immediately after dinner "to get them out of the way." I happen to believe it is impolite for a hostess to leave guests while she does KP in the kitchen. My wishes fall on deaf ears. Can you penetrate? — Over-Ridden

Dear Over: You sound plenty articulate to me. Or is this your paper personality? If so, I suggest that you write down what you would like to say to this gal and rehearse it aloud. Keep in mind she's a compulsive "helper." To win your point you'll have to come on like Ana Pauker. Good Luck.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Add me to the list of people who never thought they'd be writing to Ann Landers.

I'm a woman in my 40s going with a man about 10 years older. I am divorced. He is a widower, a successful attorney, very charming, and attractive and I enjoy his company. Something odd happened last night and I'd like your interpretation.

We were walking from a concert to the garage when he suddenly stopped, bent over and picked up a penny out of the gutter. He laughingly mumbled some corny cliché like, "A penny saved is a penny earned."

I said nothing but it bothered me. Why would a grown man stoop to pick up a penny on the street? I have never noticed any signs of cheapness in him, but this was a shocker. What do you make of it? — Dim View

Dear Dim: Your friend has a good memory. He recalls when a penny bought something. I don't view this as a sign of cheapness, but rather a hang-up from childhood. I see nothing to criticize.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers Send for her booklet "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request. (Copyright 1970)

The Ailing House
Use Calcium
To Dry Out Basement

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: I've heard about calcium chloride, the poor man's dehumidifier, and that it draws moisture from the air. I would like to try this in my basement. How do I use it? — Peoria.

A: Hang it in thin cloth bags, each suspended over a vessel to catch the water. Has the disadvantage of having to be checked regularly. As soon as it becomes saturated, it releases the water it has absorbed. So you dry it out in the oven and hang it up again.

Q: After 10 years, our concrete driveway began blistering, then crumbling so much that parts look like a gravel drive. Does it have to be completely replaced? — Milwaukee.

A: While the symptoms sound as though the original mix was skimpy on cement, it should serve well as a good base for another layer of properly proportioned concrete. There's no reason to break it up into pieces, or remove it. Only catch is that this new driveway, on top, may be to high; it should be at least four inches thick, and six inches would be even better.

If this would seem too much like a causeway to your garage, then you really haven't much choice except digging out the old to make room for the new. Patching, even if there are only two or three places, can't help looking pretty blotchy.

Q: What will clean a mild amount of smoking off the front of the fireplace brick? — Milwaukee.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE by IRA G. CORN JR. TEAM CAPTAIN

A competent jury never renders a verdict until all available evidence is considered. Similarly, a competent declarer postpones an important decision in one suit until he has examined all available evidence in the other suits.

Today's hand was played by Mike Lawrence, who demonstrates the proper technique used in sifting and examining evidence. All that is required is an average ability to reason and count to 13.

The bidding:
South 1♥ West 1♠ North 4♦ East Pass
4♥ Pass 5♦ Pass
6♥ Pass Pass Pass

*Swiss bid.
Opening lead: Queen of spades.

The bidding was standard up to North's bid over one spade. The four diamond bid is a "Swiss" bid incorporated into Aces' Standard. The jump to four of a minor describes a balanced hand of opening bid strength (13-16 support points) and four-card trump support. A bid of four clubs shows 15-16 support points; a bid of four diamonds shows 13-14 support points.

Lawrence initiated slam investigation by cue-bidding four spades. The cue bid promised first round spade control and expressed slam interest. North's cue bid of five diamonds showed first-round diamond control and slam interest. Lawrence bid the slam knowing that his side had either first or second-round control in all suits.

Lawrence captured West's opening lead with his spade king. He played trumps, West winning the ace. At this point, West's instincts told him to lead his singleton club. The ace-king of diamonds in dummy, and declarer's known holding of the spade ace, pointed at the club suit as the only possible source for the setting trick.

However, West correctly reasoned that Lawrence must have the club ace to justify his slam bid. Once West got this far in analysis, it was easier for him to see that a club lead could serve only declarer's interests and not his. Therefore, West continued with the spade jack. (As is obvious to the reader, a club lead removes all of declarer's problems.)

Lawrence won the spade ace and extracted the outstanding trumps, noting that West started with three trumps. The ace-king of diamonds were played and a diamond ruffed. A spade was ruffed in dummy and the last diamond ruffed in his hand.

This completed Mike's examination of the evidence. He timed his plays so that he would have a complete picture of the opponent's distribution.

East's hand was known to contain only three spades (West's overcall in a suit missing the ace and king marked him with five spades), one heart and three diamonds. This accounted for seven of East's cards in three suits. Therefore, East must have six cards in the fourth suit, clubs. West was marked with a singleton.

It was now easy to lead a low club to dummy's king and, when the queen failed to appear from West, take the assured club finesse.

Goldminer's Brunch

Message from San Francisco

By Lillian Mackesy POST-CRESCENT FOOD EDITOR

SAN FRANCISCO — Shut your eyes and imagine yourself about half-way up Nob Hill in a beautiful dining room in a shiningly beautiful hotel. It's true what everyone says about San Francisco — it definitely is a place to lose one's heart.

The view from the window matches the elegance of the food. The scene is one of sparkling lights, bridge towers and moving beams of headlights as cars are maneuvered up and down the steep hill. At the bottom lies Fisherman's Wharf and out in the bay a ship can be seen moving slowly and silently through the waters.

Outside, the famous cable cars grind their way up and down the hills with a stop only a step away from the Fairmont Hotel doorway. The sights of the city are superbly compact, easily reached and with 150 newspaper food editors ready and willing to eat, taste and delight in the bills of fare of many famous restaurants that abound in this place.

So much has happened and the week-long conference only just begun. Already food editors have made tour of California wineries, which will be talked about in later food columns. Dinner has been eaten at the elegant Old World Ben Johnson, an authentic Elizabethan restaurant that's an entrancing step back into history as well as a fine place to eat. The menu (Bill of Fare) has a facsimile cover of a folio of one of Ben Johnson's works and inside are featured such foods as "Fore-Dishes" (appetizers), several main courses such as prime ribs, roasted duck or fish of the day and such thoroughly English desserts as Sherry Trifle and Gooseberry Tart.

Between and betwixt some very interesting meetings on nutrition, new foods and equipment, the editors have eaten their way through first days. There was an hors d'oeuvres breakfast (an excellent idea for show), a Goldminer's Brunch hearty with eggs, meat patties and such, a luncheon with one of California's extravagantly delicious salads (one in particular is the Nob Hill Salad that makes a meal with wine).

Since the United Nations had its start in San Francisco a quarter of a century ago, there was a party salute to the organization (with food, of course, and in this case the afternoon event was a tea party with the most melt-in-the-mouth Orange Scones (taken from a Scottish recipe) ever eaten. This is a recipe every

Nutrition Keys Opening of Food Editors Conference

Post-Crescent Food Editor
SAN FRANCISCO — Nutrition is the watchword this week for 125 newspaper food editors from the United States and Canada attending the 1970 Food Editors Conference at the Fairmont Hotel.

They have listened to Drs. Phillip and Hilda White, noted husband and wife team in the field of nutrition; Richard E. Lyng, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, authority on the Food Stamp Program; Dr. Fredrick J. Stare, professor and chairman of the department of nutrition in the Harvard School of Public Health and recently under critical fire in Washington for his views.

Members of the food industry, hosts for the week long program sponsored for the 28th year by the American Association of Newspaper Representatives, also presented various aspects of nutrition.

New Idea Begins

A new industry idea launched in September by Hunt-Wesson Food, Inc., is designed to combat inflation and the spiraling cost of living by a computer selection of budget menus. Facts and figures supplied by each participating family is fed into a computer at the firm's Computer Meal Planning Center in Dayton, Ohio, and out comes a programmed menu plan for a month, personalized to fit each individual family's needs and its food budget.

Newspaper ads and participating supermarkets and grocery stores will carry the coupons, according to company officials. The consumer will list the number of adults in the family, the number and ages of children, plus the total money allowed for the family's weekly budget. This information is to be sent to the Dayton center, where it is fed into the computer and the machine does the rest. The program is called, "We'll Help You Make It," the specific menu planning is the second phase of the firm's low-cost cookery campaign started last year.

The consensus of most speakers was that consumer education is needed on all levels, but that the time has arrived for the food industry, the government and the citizen-consumer to work together for the same goal.

Augustine R. Marusi, chairman and president of Borden, Inc., and recent Nixon appointed chairman of the Business-Industry Council of the White House Conference on Children and Youth, spoke

Ann Landers and Bridge
On Page B-12

Monday night on the changing role of food companies in the overall effort to bring sound nutrition to the consumer. In his opinion, business has been too partisan in its promotion of nutrition. Individual companies, he said, including his own, have been too concerned with brand identification.

Nutrition Message

"The time has come," he stated, "for food companies to sharply separate their product publicity efforts from their Nutrition information efforts. In short, it should do its part to see that the private sector and government speak as one voice in bringing the message of sound nutrition to all consumers."

The Whites gave a team presentation at the Kraft Foods meeting in which they pointed up the need for concerted effort by the food industry, the government and nutritionists. Dr. Philip L. White is director of the department of foods and nutrition for the American Medical Association while his wife, Dr. Hilda S. White, is nutritionist and associate professor of home economics at Northwestern University.

Educational Efforts

"Nutritional ills can be corrected in part by the educational efforts," they said, "but existing food standards of identity also must be updated or, in some cases, repealed." The Whites also believe that national foods and nutrition standards must be developed through a new evaluation and revision of the whole concept of food enrichments and fortification.

The Whites described the current decade as the "surveillance '70s," a time when consumers will survey food supplies, dietary habits and welfare assistance programs. Industry, the government and nutritionists must cooperate to reach the common goals of better informed consumers and a wholesome, nutritious food supply, they said.

Dr. Stare championed the breakfast cereal as one of mankind's oldest foods for sustenance, calling today's cereal among the earliest of convenience foods. He stressed the importance of the 24-hour intake of food and considered breakfast cereals and the milk that eaten with it.

"Our food habits have changed and are changing in the direction of more frequent and smaller meals," he said. "I don't think any meals needs necessarily to provide any arbitrary percentage of the total daily nutrient requirements, and certainly one breakfast made up of two foods — cereal and milk — should not be expected to provide one-third of the minimum daily requirements of the various nutrients and calories.

Total Daily Intake

"What is important is the total daily intake over 24 hours and not at any one meal," he said. "Good nutrition comes from foods, not a single food. Cereals, including breakfast cereals, can hold their heads high for their contributions to total nutritional intake."

Richard Lyng pointed to more than $100 million per month in consumer purchasing power represented in the Food Stamp Program as a realistic base for improving the nutritional intake of financially deprived families. Here is where food editors can make a worthwhile contribution by informing readers, he said, helping the needy use food stamps wisely to give their families balanced and healthful meals.

National Hadassah Leader Pledges War Won't Destroy Medical Program

BY MARY WITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Despite the "dire and fateful situation" that threatens to drain Israel financially and turn the Middle East into a holocaust, H a d a s s a h, the Women's Zionist Organization of America, Inc., will continue its multi-faceted medical program in a time of open war as it has in years of troubled peace.

That was the message Mrs. Edward H. Lewis delivered to the Appleton Chapter of Hadassah Tuesday afternoon, when it opened its 1970-71 season at Moses Montefiore Synagogue.

As a national vice president and the newly appointed fund raising chairman for the Hadassah Medical Organization, Mrs. Lewis visited the local chapter to express appreciation for its past contributions and to make a plea for continued service and monetary assistance in support of Hadassah's vast complex of hospitals, clinics, medical schools and research centers concentrated primarily in Jerusalem.

Her appeal coincided with the current campaign being conducted to meet the inflationary costs of financing medical research and services in a country at war. In an effort to prevent deterioration of their projects, the 300,000 members of Hadassah have pledged to raise one million dollars in a year's time to be donated in honor of Hadassah Medical Organization's 10th anniversary in its current location in Ein Karem, a suburb of Jerusalem.

Referring to the past months of conflict, strife and hatred that have drawn Israeli, Arab and Palestinian into open, world-shaking warfare,

Mrs. Lewis described the occasion as an historic one, when Hadassah must offer sustenance, support and hope as never before.

"The situation in Israel is now worse than it was in 1967. I tell you that Israel is in direct confrontation with the Soviet Union whether it is said or not," she warned.

Predicts Purge

Personally familiar with the Soviet Union, Mrs. Lewis attributed the blame for much of the current crisis to the strong anti-Semitic bias of the power that has been supplying the Arabs with technicians and weapons. Humiliated, denigrated, belittled and shamed, the three million Jews of Russia "face spiritual and actual physical imprisonment," according to the Hadassah leader.

"I have heard rumblings of the fact that the winds of events in the Soviet Union will probably bring another purge of the Jewish community," she added.

To defend itself from a fate similar in its inevitably tragic consequences, Israel is suffering from a huge military budget that now takes as much as 81 per cent in taxes from the person earning $200 per week, said Mrs. Lewis.

Medical Budget Suffers

Government measures to raise salaries amid inflation have in turn affected the finances of Hadassah, which employs some 2,000 persons in medical research. "The result has been that at this moment, our medical budget has a deficit of seven million pounds," Mrs. Lewis reported.

Currently saddled with the largest per capita debt in the world, Israel is seeking aid on a private and public basis from Western countries. But in recognition of Hadassah's invaluable medical services, the country has adopted a "hands off" policy towards the organization's medical funds.

"In this time when decisions must be made, what shall we curtail of Hadassah's medical work?" asked Mrs. Lewis. She concluded that Hadassah's work with Arab refugees, its rehabilitation pavilion, its cancer research, its medical training programs, its hospitals and its emergency units are equally important at a time "when Israel needs these things more than ever."

Reminding her audience that Zionism means "the survival of the Jewish people not only as individuals, but as a people," Mrs. Lewis advised the women to draw strength from Hadassah's past achievements.

"We have always coped with an emergency when it has existed. At the same time we've made plans for the future because we have said there will be a future and it will be a good one," she said.

Pledged to a Cause, Mrs. Edward H. Lewis, center, arrived Tuesday in Appleton to speak with the local chapter of Hadassah concerning the nationwide organization's medical projects in Israel. Chatting with her at Moses Montefiore Synagogue are Mrs. Stanley Hamilton, past chapter and regional president, and Mrs. Summer Richman, current chapter president.

Sew Your Own New Hemlines

You can have the hemline question sewed up neatly by fall if you make your own lengths — cropping off the long ones and letting down the short ones, as you please.

To try out the new fall looks without investing in a new wardrobe, the National Cotton Council suggests you get out the sewing machine and stitch up a midi or two.

Many patterns include coats and dresses that can be adapted to any length. You can even mix and match lengths by wearing the long and the short together.

For instance, a short tunic dress worn under a long midi coat is a popular costume look this season. Ideal fabrics for such layered costumes are lightweight, comfortable cottons like tweed-texture or jersey knit. If you use a bonded cotton knit, the coat need not be lined.

Taking a Ride Through Time

They Don't Make baby buggies like this one anymore. Purchased in 1901 by Mrs. William Steiner, the ornate carriage, complete with parasol, carried and shaded her 10 children all over Appleton. Now 69 years later, Mrs. Steiner's great-grandson, Bradley Knaack occupies the buggy to the delight of his mother, Mrs. Glen Knaack. The carriage became a part of the Knaack family recently when the Steiner home was sold and the item was discovered packed away in the attic. (Post-Crescent Photo by Edward Deschler Jr.)

Updating Nursing Skills

Mrs. Halverson reminds inactive nurses that they will be able to update their skills by watching "Return to Nursing," a videotaped series shown on WFRV-TV, Channel 5. The 25-week program which began Sunday can be seen at 7 a.m.

Funded through the Wisconsin Regional Medical Program, Inc., the series is being presented by the station as a public service.

Recipe Idea From Sunny California

Wednesday, September 23, 1970

hostess who is a cook in the Fox Cities area will want to try.

An idea learned at one of the sessions concerned the feeding of the young with emphasis on the teen-ager. To please the teen-ager, says the nutritionists, the food has to suit their tastes and their personalities. Then they'll eat. Good idea, too, when the example turned out to be the same old bacon and eggs — only served pizza-style. (Why didn't we think of that?)

So here are a few recipes direct from San Francisco, sent to all food page readers with enthusiasm.

NOB HILL SALAD

1 head western iceberg lettuce
1 can (15 oz.) asparagus spears
¼ cup thinly sliced fresh mushrooms
4 or 5 pimiento strips
Creamy Wine Dressing
Core and rinse lettuce; drain thoroughly. Chill in disposable plastic bag or plastic crisper. Drain and chill asparagus. At serving time, arrange crisp outer lettuce leaves on four or five chilled salad plates. Shred remaining lettuce by cutting head lengthwise into halves. Then place cut-sides down on board and slice crosswise with thin-bladed knife. Place shredded lettuce in lettuce cups. Arrange drained asparagus spears on lettuce. Top with mushrooms and pimiento strips. Serve with Creamy Wine Dressing. Recipe makes about five servings.

CREAMY WINE DRESSING

½ cup white dinner wine
1½ teaspoons cornstarch
½ teaspoon seasoned salt
1 egg yolk, lightly beaten
1 teaspoon wine vinegar
¼ cup corn oil
1 teaspoon chopped capers.

Combine wine, cornstarch and seasoned salt in small saucepan. Heat and stir to boiling. Stir in egg yolk; return to very low heat and cook a minute longer, stirring. Cool. Gradually stir in wine vinegar and corn oil. Add capers. Stir again just before serving. Makes about one cup.

Note: Like most French dressings, this separates on standing. It will go back together quickly on stirring and does not separate too rapidly.

HORS D'OEUVRES

For BREAKFAST

This is not as strange as it may sound at first, when fruit takes the stage. Served in a basket or on trays, the fruits look charming. The fruits can be anything in season or canned fruits. The conference breakfast featured kumquats, pickled watermelon rind, white peaches, pineapple chunks, mandarin oranges and threaded on skewers were papaya and mango pieces.

BEEF BREAKFAST

PATTIES

1 pound ground chuck, ground once
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon thyme
4 slices toasted sour dough French bread

2 tablespoons soft butter
Creamy Chive Scrambled Eggs

Mix meat lightly with salt, pepper and thyme. Divide into 4 or 5 portions and gently shape into small patties. Pan fry or broil to desired degree of doneness. Toast bread and spread with butter. Top each slice of toast with a beef patty. Serve with Creamy Chive Scrambled Eggs.

CREAMY CHIVE SCRAMBLED EGGS

Beat 6 eggs lightly. Add 6 tablespoons light cream, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper and 1 tablespoon chopped frozen or freeze-dried chives. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in skillet. Pour in egg mixture and cook slowly until set but still moist. Do not stir, but lift egg mixture gently from bottom of skillet with spoon or spatula as it begins to set. Recipe makes four to five servings.

GINGERED CIDER PRUNES

¼ cup preserved or crystallized ginger
3 cups apple cider
1 pound pitted prunes
2 whole cloves
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
¼ cup sugar

Chop ginger fine. Combine with cider, prunes, cloves and vinegar, simmer 10 minutes. Add sugar and cook 2 or 3 minutes longer. Let stand overnight or longer before serving. Recipe makes about one quart. Serve prunes plain or combine with sliced oranges.

ORANGE SCONES

2½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar

¼ cup butter or margarine
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
½ cup currants
3 tablespoons vinegar
¼ cup orange juice
1 egg, beaten
Milk
Sugar
Butter

Mix flour with baking soda, baking powder, salt and sugar. Cut in butter with two knives or pastry blender until mixture resembles coarse corn meal. Stir in orange rind and currants.

Combine vinegar and orange juice. Make a well in center of flour mixture; add liquid and egg all at once. Stir mixture with a fork until all dry ingredients are moistened.

Turn onto a floured board; knead gently 8 to 10 times, adding a little more flour if necessary. Roll into a 12 x 6-inch rectangle. Cut into eight 3-inch squares; cut each square in half diagonally to make two triangles. Brush tops with milk; sprinkle with sugar. Place on greased baking sheets. Bake in 425 degrees oven for about 15 minutes or until golden brown. Serve hot with butter. Recipe makes 16 scones.

BACON 'N EGGS

PIZZA STYLE

1 can (8-ozs.) refrigerated flaky buttermilk biscuits
3 eggs, beaten
1 tablespoon milk
Dash of salt
5 strips crisply cooked

bacon, crumbled

1 teaspoon chopped chives
1 cup (4-ozs.) shredded sharp cheddar cheese

Press the flat sides of two biscuits together. On a baking sheet, flatten into 5-inch circles, if desired. Recipe makes five building rims around each; re-servings.

frigerate.

Combine eggs, milk and salt. Pour into biscuit shells. Sprinkle with bacon, chives and cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Top with additional strips of crisply cooked bacon, if desired. Recipe makes five servings.

United States Lags in Effort To Label Textiles

Many hang tags on textile products give specific and accurate instructions on care and maintenance. Unfortunately, these are usually disposed of with all the miscellaneous tags and wrappings that come in with each purchase, reports Mrs. Shirley Watson, University Extension Home Economist for Winnebago County. When the time comes to wash or clean a garment, the consumer does not know how. For this reason consumers and retailers have been urging wider use of sewn-in care labels.

Some positive steps were taken in 1966 when the President's Committee on Consumer Interests asked Mrs. Esther Peterson, the President's Special Assistant for Consumer Affairs, to appoint an Industry Advisory Committee on Textile Information. This committee, made up of some 36 representatives of every part of the textile fabrics business community, was given a mandate to come up with recommendations for care labeling information.

In April, 1966, they recommended permanently attached care labels on all textile products where special-care instructions are needed. Many countries — Sweden, England, and the Netherlands, among others — already have permanent care instructions and, in addition, information on material colorfastness, and shrinkage. So far, nothing has happened in this respect here.

Honorary Degree Granted To Mrs. William Chester

Mrs. William M. Chester, who was chairman of the committee which brought the Alice G. Chapman Teakwood Room to the Lawrence Campus in 1968, was granted an honorary doctor of Humane Letters degree at Lawrence University's Matriculation Day Convocation Tuesday.

Unable to attend the ceremony because of her health, her daughter, Mrs. Verne Read of Milwaukee, accepted the citation and the academic hood with its white velvet band awarded to recipients of the L. H. D. degree on her behalf.

Mrs. Chester, who served on the Milwaukee-Downer College Board of Trustees from 1931-64, became a member of the Lawrence University Board of Trustees when Milwaukee-Downer and Lawrence Colleges consolidated in 1964.

University President Thomas S. Smith, in conferring the degree, declared that Mrs. Chester has "enriched the lives of all she has touched."

"Lawrence gained a devoted trustee when Mrs. Chester willingly transferred her affection and loyalty at the time of the consolidation of the two institutions.

"Through her generous efforts the Teakwood Room was preserved in its original beauty and brought to the Lawrence campus, where it serves as a constant reminder of the Downer tradition, and delights all who visit Jason Downer Center."

Smith noted that Mrs. Chester's leadership "reached beyond college boundaries and pervaded the community of Milwaukee." He cited her for her work in organizing the Milwaukee Junior League and the Girl Scouts of Milwaukee.

Mrs. Chester is a member of the Chapman family of Milwaukee, whose name has been prominent in the affairs of Milwaukee-Downer College for more than 75 years. Her aunt, Miss Alice G. Chapman, donated a million dollars to Milwaukee-Downer at her death and is memorialized on the Lawrence campus in the Teakwood Room in the Jason Downer Food Center. Originally the music room of the Alice Chapman home in Milwaukee, the Teakwood Room was moved to the Downer Library in 1938.

The former Alice Miller, Mrs. Chester graduated from Bryn Mawr College in 1914. She became first president of the Milwaukee Junior League in 1915 and during World War I, she and her husband both served with the American Expeditionary Force in France. Later she acted as secretary to the head of the YMCA in France.

In 1921, she organized and became president of the Girl Scouts of Milwaukee.

Parents and Children

Try Giving Your Child a Misbehave Day

Do you ever get sick of saying "no" and "don't" to your child? Are you bothered by the frequency with which you say: "If you don't do as I say..."? The kids get pretty tired of it also, whether they are three-year-olds and eat with their mouths open, or whether they are teen-agers who don't let you know when they'll be home. Childish misbehavior and adult nagging can feed on each other. Together they create a steady deterioration of relations among family members. When parents automatically respond with "no" to everything their children do and say, the kids tune out on them.

Many children, in some cases quite justifiably, feel that the only way they can get adult attention is to create nuisances, to misbehave and to do things that they know are outrageous. Such children seem especially frustrating to their parents when, after a rare treat or outing, they behave even worse than usual, in order to prolong the pleasure of adult attention.

Virtually every parent and every child is entrapped in these or in similar patterns of self-perpetuating misery from time to time. It is then extremely important for you to reverse such a deteriorating parent-child relationship. You must quickly devise strategies so that you and your child can speak to, reach and deal with one another in friendly and mutually considerate ways.

One remedy is to offer your child a weekly or bi-weekly "misbehave day." The ground rules are that behavior that is ordinarily disapproved of is allowed on that day without consequence, as long as your child does not threaten his own safety and that of others, and as long as he isn't wantonly destructive. Children as young as three and four years old appreciate this idea. As a result they get a better understanding of the reasons for rules of behavior. They realize that this is a funny way to learn and to teach.

Remind your child on his "misbehave day" to "misbehave" properly and to stop being "good." Threaten (but do not dole out) punishment for "good" behavior. Reward him for being noisy, for not saying "please" or "thank you," and for other mild breaches of good conduct.

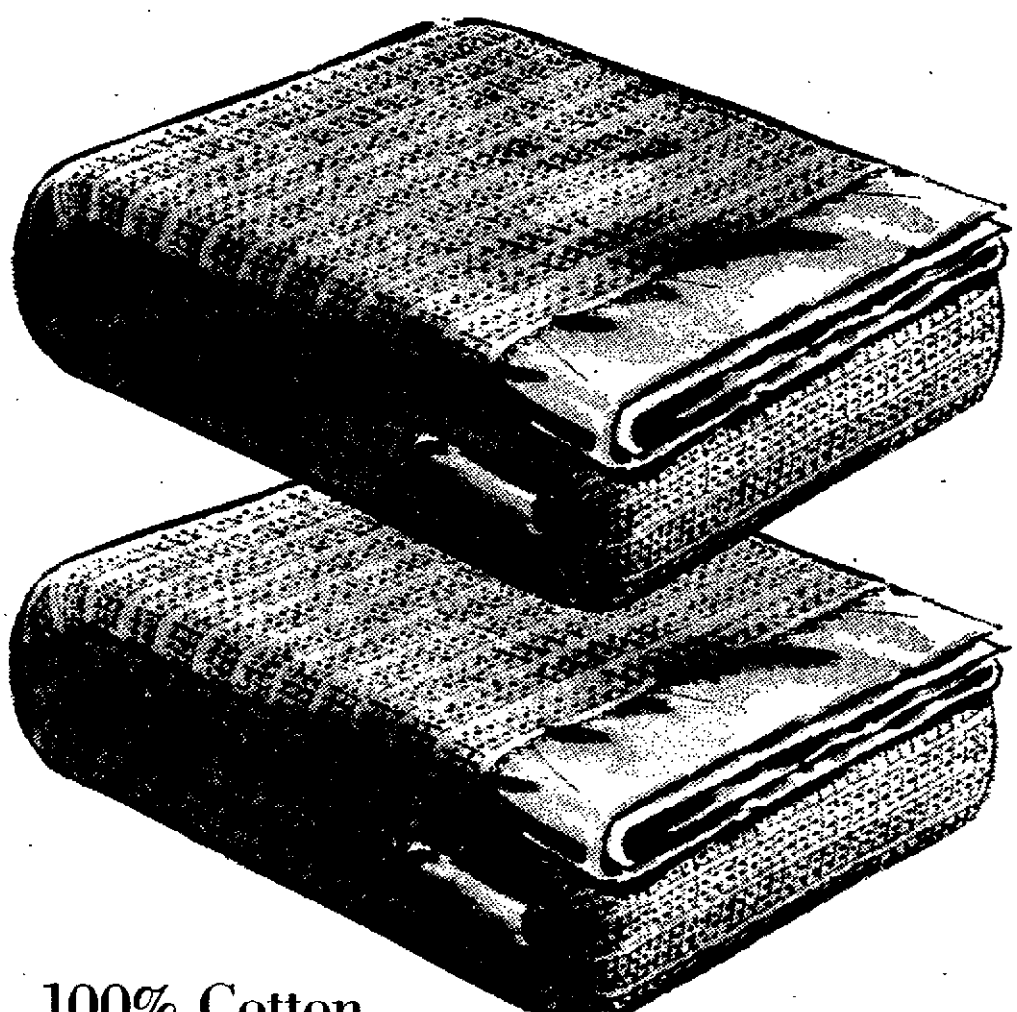

You can then point out to your child during the rest of the week that these are not his "misbehave days," and that he better save up whatever mischief he has in mind for the next one. In practice, your child is most likely to be especially well-behaved on his "misbehave day." He'll be satisfied that you are paying him attention and that you understand what it is like to be a child.

WINE On the Table

By William Clifford

Vintage charts are only half truths at best.

While it's not wrong to say that on the average, 1967, for example, was a good year for fine French wines and 1968 a poor year, this is about all that most charts can say.

They don't begin to tell which large areas were exceptions to the average, which vineyards were picked too early (or late) or bottled too soon, which got hit by hailstorms, were recently replanted, etc.

The best chart I've ever seen — best because it gives the most detail for a limited area — is a pocket-size leaflet called "Vintage Chart, Vin de Bordeaux." The current edition covers vintages from 1926. It gives separate evaluation of red and white wines for each year.

To begin with it tells how generally successful each vintage was (red and white separately), rated at one of three levels. Then it tells each year's style of wine, one of four choices for red, three for white. Finally it tells which of four stages of maturity the vintage is in now. (This changes with each new edition of the chart.)

That's a lot to put on a small chart — far more than the usual simple rating of 1 through 10.

What the chart still doesn't tell is differences between major areas in Bordeaux — occasionally Sauternes is more successful than Graves (1960), or vice versa (1963, 1965). And which single vineyards did exceptionally well in bad years, or who made mistakes in good ones.

Nixon Plans To Visit Again With Franco

Roles Different Than at Meeting
7 Years Ago

MADRID (AP) — Seven years ago Richard M. Nixon, as a private citizen, held his first meeting with Gen. Francisco Franco, the dictatorial leader of Spain.

"I came away convinced," Nixon told newsmen in 1963, "that Franco is giving a lot of thought to the future of his government."

This future has become the present, as President Nixon will see when he meets Franco in Madrid next week.

The years that propelled Nixon into the White House have pushed Franco to the twilight of his career. They also have changed the image of the stern little general and his government.

Nothing underscores the acceptance of Franco Spain outside its borders more than this meeting between the two leaders.

"It is a natural conclusion to years of isolation of Spain," says a Foreign Ministry official. "It's a comeback almost as good as Nixon's."

Spain's isolation began after Franco came to power in 1939, the victor in the Spanish civil war. It was heightened by Spain's officially neutral but often pro-Nazi stance during World War II.

Secured Until 1955
The Franco government was refused membership in the United Nations until 1955 and scorned by many Europeans and Americans.

The isolation began cracking with U.S. aid and the first military bases agreement in 1953. In 1959, President Dwight D. Eisenhower paid an official call on Spain and rode through the streets with Franco to the acclaim of an estimated one million Spaniards.

Tourists pried a flood. With it came new customs, new money and new ideas. It is now the country's biggest industry, with a forecast of 23 million visitors this year.

The Franco government started to let other religions operate, although Catholicism remains the official state religion. In 1966 a new press law allowed newspapers to publish without submitting their copy to pre-censorship.

This year Spain has become a preferential trading partner in the Common Market. A new U.S. military bases agreement, in effect linking Spain to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization network, is becoming effective.

In June, Franco welcomed Charles de Gaulle, hardly an ally during World War II, to Spain as a tourist.

Stevenson Liberalism Political Handicap

Illinois Democratic Candidate for U.S.
Senator Makes Peace With Daley Machine

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
CHICAGO — The ambivalence of Adlai E. Stevenson III's campaign for the senate is shown by his overriding of his advisers in embracing the prosecutor of the Chicago conspiracy trial at the same time that he is shying away from law-and-order rhetoric prepared for him.

Stevenson's dilemma is faced by liberal Democrats across the country: to satisfy the public's concern over crime and disorder without betraying liberal principles. Stevenson, in particular, is politically schizophrenic — at times the super-pragmatic politician intent only on victory, at other times the liberal idealist who would rather be right than senator.

What makes this critical here is that Stevenson's underdog Republican foe, Sen. Ralph T. Smith, is burdened by no such ambivalence. His carefully planned strategy is to depict the front-running Stevenson as a coddler of terrorists and enemy of the police. Any hesitancy by Stevenson in dodging that label could quickly dissipate his lead.

Lawyer Campaign Officer
Stevenson, however, showed no hesitancy whatever in recently naming Thomas Foran, the former U.S. attorney here who was the hard-boiled prosecutor in the uproarious Chicago conspiracy trial, as a vice-chairman in his campaign.

Contrary to a widely circulated rumor, Foran's appointment was not dictated by Mayor Richard J. Daley. It was

Evans Nowak

Stevenson's own idea as a way of avoiding that anti-police image. Moreover, he was advised against it by his principal campaign aide: Daniel Walker, the Montgomery Ward executive who earned the Daley machine's everlasting enmity by heading a commission that described a "police riot" at the 1968 Chicago convention.

When Stevenson insisted upon Foran's appointment, Walker concurred in it. But lesser Stevenson campaign workers, including scores of young volunteers, were traumatized. In fact, Stevenson's supporters on the left have been sliding into progressively deeper disillusionment since Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen's death created a vacancy in the senate a year ago and Stevenson instantly sought after it. Until then, Stevenson had been moving leftward as an anti-Daley Democrat. Since then, he has made his peace with the Daley organization, attacked last November's anti-war demonstration, refused to blast the conspiracy trial, and, most recently, criticized school busing. But if Stevenson is more the practical politician than his father, he also wrestles periodically with his conscience. For instance, some of his more conservative advisers would like Stevenson to scrap completely

In contrast, Sen. Smith's campaign labors under no inner doubts. Campaign manager James Mack, a tough young protege of conservative Republican mastermind F. Clifton White, has mapped out an expensive media program to dispel Smith's anonymity and to darken Stevenson's illustrious name. "What has Adlai got against the FBI and the Chicago police?" asks a Smith TV spot which repeats Stevenson's two-year-old description of Chicago police as "storm troopers in blue" at the 1968 convention. Smith's television advertising will grow in weeks to come, identifying Stevenson as anti-police and Smith as pro-police. The intent is to erase the present genial public view of Stevenson as the son of a famous and well-loved figure.

Boys School Head Uses Modern Methods

PRINEVILLE, Oregon (AP) — Each school day Mel Lambert, dean of boys, hustles to the local radio station and broadcasts the names of students missing from class at Crook County High School.

Some of the students call it snitching. A few parents say it is an invasion of privacy. However, since Lambert started his broadcasts the truancy rate has dropped 25 per cent.

Banker Named to Equality Board

F. Walter Turner of the First Wisconsin National Bank of Milwaukee has succeeded Robert V. Thoms, Kimberly-Clark Corp., as chairman of the Wisconsin Equal Employment Opportunity Association (WEEOA).

P. Knowles "to bind together in one voluntary association the resources of business, industry and labor located in all geographic areas of Wisconsin to the end that equal employment opportunity, based solely on merit, is advanced and more fully realized throughout the state of Wisconsin."

Name Appleton Native To Secretaries Board

Carl K. Wettengel, director of personnel for the State of Wisconsin, has been appointed to a one-year term on the Institute for Certifying Secretaries. Wettengel is a native of Appleton and a graduate of Lawrence University. He is one of six members appointed from management to serve on the 20-member board.

Mets Win; Pirates Divide With Expos

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

A seeing eye-single that weaved its way through Philadelphia's pulled-in infield, has the New York Mets thinking pleasant thoughts again about the final 10 days of the National League East race.

Tommie Agee delivered the ninth inning hit for two runs and a 7-6 victory over Philadelphia Tuesday night that pulled the Mets back within three games of Pittsburgh and left them one behind second place Chicago.

The Pirates protected their edge by coming back to knock off Montreal 3-1 in the second game of a two-night doubleheader after being shut out 1-0 in the opener by Bill Stoneman.

Chicago was rained out at St. Louis.

In the fifth, loaded the bases with none out on Dave Cash's double, a hit batsman and Veale's bunt single. Matty Alou beat out an infield hit for one run and Richie Hebner's sacrifice fly scored another.

Gibson came out of the bullpen in the seventh inning and struck out Staub, leaving two Expos stranded. Then he sailed through the eighth and ninth to preserve the victory.

The Pirates, with a two-game edge over Chicago and three over the Mets, have eight games remaining, the same as the Expos.

Oshkosh Ranked No. 2; Chilton Is Fourth in Big 10

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Any resemblance between the season's first Wisconsin Associated Press high school football poll and last year's final roundup is purely coincidental.

Antigo and Oshkosh, No. 2 and No. 5 last year, hold the two top spots in the Big 10 poll, with Chilton moving up from eighth to fourth. All others are newcomers. Last year's king, Fond du Lac, is well down among the also-rans.

In the Little 10, Auburndale, 4-0, is first, after finishing fourth last year.

Royal is second, was No. 3, and defending champion Gale-Etrick is third.

Port Edwards moved up from 10th to fifth—but again there are five new faces.

The poll is compiled from balloting by Wisconsin sports writers and sportscasters, with 10 points for each first-place vote, nine for each second, eight for third, etc.

In this first poll, there are plenty of undefeated teams, with most schools playing four or fewer contests. Balloting and points were widely scattered.

Pattin Posts 13th Win as Angels Lose

Harper Slams His 30th Homer in Brewer Victory

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Tommy Harper, the American League's base-stealing legend a year ago, fished around in his silk top hat Tuesday night and came up with some more of the wonders he keeps on tap.

"I guess I'm one of those mystery ball players," he chuckled. "With me, you never know what is going to happen next."

Harper, quicker than most rabbits that happen out of a pitcher's reservoir, chose the home run limelight for Tuesday's performance, producing a two-run clout that helped Milwaukee to a 4-2 victory over the California Angels.

He becomes one of only five men in major league history to hit at least 30 home runs and steal at least 30 bases in the same season, the others having been Willie Mays, Ted Williams, Hank Aaron and Bobby Bonds.

The Brewers pivoted a four-run seventh-inning rally around Harper's accomplishment. Harper couldn't resist chatting to well-wishers about some other secret ambitions.

He said he started thinking about No. 30 after he had hit his 25th of the season. He hit No. 28 and No. 29 off the Angels Monday.

Went Into Slump

"I thought of it quite a lot when I got my 25th," he said. "Then I went into a slump, and when I got my 27th homer, I thought I still had a shot at it."

"Actually, I had so many Racine wins as runner-up in this goal, it was hard to concentrate on one. For example, I had a chance to score 100 runs; I now have 94. I wanted to drive in 80 runs, and I had a chance at 40 doubles," he said.

He has 73 RBIs, 33 doubles, 11 home runs and 21 stolen bases.

McCluskey Wins USAC Stock Title

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Roger McCluskey has wrapped up the U.S. Auto Club's stock car championship for a second year, thought I still had a shot at it, and teammate Norm Nelson in this goal, it was hard to concentrate on one. For example, I had a chance to score 100 runs; I now have 94. I wanted to drive in 80 runs, and I had a chance at 40 doubles," he said.

He has 73 RBIs, 33 doubles, 11 home runs and 21 stolen bases.

Twins Clinch Division Title

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tony Oliva quickly ended any no-hit thoughts by Oakland and Jim Holt put the finishing touch to the A's as the Minnesota Twins wrapped up their second successive American League West title.

The Twins, denied clinching the West race Monday night when rookie left-hander Vida Blue of the A's tossed a no-hit went five innings, allowing one run and six hits. Chuck Dobson, 16-14, took the loss.

Andy Etchebarren drove in six runs with a single, double and homer in the Orioles romp. It was the Tigers' sixth straight loss.

Jerry Kenney capped a two-run New York fifth inning with a run-scoring single, giving the Yanks their fifth triumph in a row. It was Washington's fifth consecutive loss.

Tony Conigliaro and Rico Petrocelli ripped two-run homers for the sizzling Red Sox, who captured their seventh straight win in knocking out 20-game winner Sam McDowell of the Indians. It was No. 33 for Conigliaro and 29 for Petrocelli.

Al Fitzmorris, 8-5, scattered eight hits and capped a three-run Royals' fifth with a run-scoring single in the nightcap of their sweep over Chicago. Lou Piniella cracked a sixth inning RBI single in the opening game triumph. Ed Kirkpatrick added a homer for the winners. Rich McKinney had a two-run shot in the nightcap for the Sox.

didn't waste any time Tuesday night.

After a leadoff walk, Oliva drilled his 23rd home run for a 2-0 Minnesota edge in the first inning and Holt drove in two more in the sixth inning with a bases-loaded single as the Twins swept to a 5-3 victory over runnerup Oakland. The Twins held an 8½-game edge with only eight games to play.

Open Series

Minnesota will open the best-of-five playoff series at home against East champion Baltimore on Oct. 3.

In other AL action, the Orioles took their 100th victory of the campaign, trouncing Detroit 10-2. New York edged Washington 2-1. Milwaukee trimmed California 4-2. Boston slugged Cleveland 8-2 and Kansas City swept a pair from Chicago 2-1, 6-2.

Oliva, who also singled and doubled, helped build another run in the seventh, stroking a two-out double, stealing third and coming in on Rich Reese's hit. Winner Jim Kaat, 13-10,

Saturday's Game On

Syracuse Takes Back Eight Black Gridders

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The members of the Syracuse University football team have voted to accept eight suspended black athletes back on the squad, apparently amid suggestions their failure to do so would force cancellation of Saturday's home opener against Kansas.

There was no immediate comment from the black athletes, and it was not immediately known how many of the eight remained eligible physically and academically, to play.

Among the eight were last year's two leading ground gainers, Al Newton and Greg Allen.

Three weeks ago Chancellor John E. Corbally, Jr., indicated the black players' failure to accept university terms for reinstatement in time for the opening of fall practice meant the suspensions would remain in effect for the season.

The official reinstatement announcement from the University came late Tuesday. It followed by about six hours a meeting with the state's Commissioner of Human Rights, Robert J. Man-gum, and a later meeting of the team.

Coach Makes Recommendation

The announcement said head football coach Ben Schwartzwalder "recommended" the reinstatement to the chancellor.

Schwartzwalder told the Associated Press, however, that Tuesday night's team meeting had been recommended by university officials.

He said the unnamed officials predicted that if the team voted to accept the eight back on the squad "we might have a chance to play the game."

A statement by the 68 team members was carefully worded, Schwartzwalder said.

He quoted the team as saying: "We'll take the suspended players back in order to play the game."

He indicated the university officials were present at the meeting and that they predicted if a statement first developed was not issued down to the released form an injunction might be sought to prevent a potential for violence on Saturday.

Only Unsigned Packer

Don Horn Insists He Isn't Playing Out His Option

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Packer quarterback Don Horn insists, despite any other published indications to the contrary, that he is not playing out his option.

"It's true that I haven't signed my 1970 contract," he said, "but I haven't signed it because of personal reasons."

"I haven't really sat down with Coach Bengtson to discuss it. The Packers have been more than fair with me. I have no intention of signing my contract right now, I might add, but only because of personal reasons."

Horn issued his statement after being quoted in Tuesday's Milwaukee Journal as saying, "I haven't signed yet. I've tried to be patient, but my patience is wearing very thin. Not playing is part of it, and there are some other things. But basically it's the money. We haven't gotten together on it."

Did Not Reflect Position

The former San Diego State athlete later said, however, that these words did not accurately reflect his position.

"I'm not considering playing out my option right now," he insisted. "Coach Bengtson has been more than fair with me for not pressing me about it. . . . My reasons for not signing have nothing to do with the football team, with Coach Bengtson or Packer management and the team is aware of it. . . . That's the extent of it."

"I'm impatient," Horn admitted. "That's true, in the sense that I'm one of 40 players, all of whom want to play. That's what we're here for."

"In my situation, playing behind Bart Starr, you've just got to realize that you can't play as much as you would like to."

"I'm only human, like everybody else," Horn added. "I didn't mean anything but what I said. After you lose a game like we did Sunday, it gets to you."

Basically, Bengtson corroborated Horn's explanation of the delay in reaching accord.

Packer Offensive Unit Given Overtime Work

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — During the regular season, Tuesday is normally a light, almost leisurely day for the Packers.

The only physical demand upon them is a 2-mile run, or a series of sprints, required purely for conditioning purposes and to loosen any stiff muscles that may have developed in the preceding Sunday's game.

But this Tuesday was a notable exception. Disturbed by the offense's futility in Sunday's 40-0 bombing at Detroit Lion hands, Coach Phil Bengtson had his athletes out on the practice field for nearly a hour.

That session followed a lengthy classroom meeting, centered around a showing and critique of the game film, which also ran overtime.

Personal Supervision

The field practice was devoted exclusively to the attack—under Bengtson's close personal supervision. He and Ray Wiebach, offensive line coach, lectured at length on maneuvers and techniques while the offensive and defensive units stood quietly in place, facing each other.

The offense subsequently was required to run through a series of plays with emphasis on what had been just outlined to them.

Later, Bengtson explained, "We were basically trying to improve our techniques. . . . We were trying to get something with a lot of running in it and still incorporate football techniques and assignments."

The personnel of the offense was unchanged and Bengtson said no decisions in that direction had been made. "It's a little early for that," he explained.

He also extended a vote of confidence to the attacking unit, which did not produce a first down until only 6:27 remained in the third quarter.

"I'm confident we can move the football," Bengtson said. "We've got good backs, although they could run harder. We also have a good enough line and we've certainly got the receivers."

Bengtson indicated any extra emphasis on recharging the offense will depend entirely upon what other preparations may be needed or Sunday's Lambeau Field match with the Atlanta Falcons.

"If we can, we'll spend additional time on it," he said.

"There are, of course, a certain number of things you always have to do on defense."

There was at least one encouraging note to report in the wake of Sunday's unhappiness, Bengtson informed.

"Dick Himes (who suffered a knee injury) is not too bad," he said. "The doctor advised him not to run today, but he exercised and was riding the bicycle."

The Pack's other current casualty, cornerback Bob Jeter, also reported his sprained foot to be "100 per cent better than it was yesterday. . . . I could hardly walk on it then."

Cyclone Soccer Team Ties After Pair of Victories

The Fox Valley Campus soccer team scored two goals in the first five minutes of play for a quick 2-0 lead but eventually was tied, 3-3, by the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay jayvee team Tuesday.

Tim Meuch tallied two of the goals for the Campus, while Equadorian student Fernando Coronel added the other. Neils Rosacker paced Green Bay with a pair of goals, and Tibby Higgs scored the other.

Fox Valley, which had opened its campaign with 3-1 and 3-2 victories over WSU-O Fond du Lac and Barron County, respectively, makes its next start against the Oshkosh Oldtimers Sunday at Menominee Park in Oshkosh at 2:30 p.m.

In the tilt against Fondy, Dennis Wood, Tim Josephs, and Julian Coronel tallied twice and close goals. Against Barron, Julian Coronel tallied twice and Fernando Coronel converted a penalty kick for the remaining

Ed Mathews to Coach Braves?

Bartholomay Refuses To Confirm Report; Harris Rehired

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves announced Tuesday that Luman Harris has been rehired as manager for the 1971 season, but declined to confirm published reports that former team captain Eddie Mathews will rejoin the club next year as a coach.

William C. Bartholomay, Braves president and chairman of the board, told a news conference that the coaching staff probably will be increased from four to five next year, but added: "Any announcement concerning the coaching staff for 1971 will be made at a later date."

Harris, who will be starting his fourth season as manager of the Braves, will receive a "handsome raise," Bartholomay said.

"This is taken response for the type of job he has done under very difficult circumstances this year," he said, referring to pitching staff injuries which struck the Braves early.

Earlier, in regard to reports about Mathews, Bartholomay said, "It is an exciting prospect that he may be interested in returning as a coach."

Ron Berger NFL Defender Of the Week

NEW YORK (AP) — When the underdog Boston Patriots dumped Miami's quarterbacks eight times Sunday on the way to a 27-14 upset win, 6-foot-8-inch Ron Berger led the charge.

Berger, the biggest lineman ever to play for the Pats, played minor league ball in St. Petersburg, Fla., and spent two years on the Los Angeles Rams taxi squad before he came to Boston last year as a free agent.

Because the former Wayne State star dropped the passer three times and joined with Ike Lasserre, Houston Antwine and Jim Hunt to pressure the Miami offensive line all day, Berger has been named Defensive Player-of-the-Week in the National Football league by The Associated Press.

The Pats' new front four also smothered the Denver quarterbacks eight times in their final exhibition game with Berger getting his man three times.

Berger, slowed by an early training camp injury, had come back to beat rookie Dennis Wiggowski of Purdue for the starting job at right defensive end.

Campus Violence Must be Curbed

There can be little disagreement with President Nixon's statement that "those who resort to the rule of force have no place on the college campus." The explosions, the violent demonstrations that keep other students from their academic pursuits, even the threats of such violence, to enforce demands are serious breaches of civilized behavior and could destroy academic freedom and the universities themselves.

But the President and Professor Sydney Hook, whose article Mr. Nixon sent to more than 1,000 college and university presidents, have avoided really facing up to at least part of the reason why things have become so serious.

It has been that use of force in Vietnam by American troops sent by the United States Government that started much of the trouble. In a way President Nixon seemed to be approving of the use of violence when he invited leaders of the "hard hats" to the White House not long after some of their underlings had attacked antiwar demonstrators (who were being peaceful at the time) with clubs and iron pipes. The White House has never condemned that "police riot" in Chicago during the Democratic National Convention. Sometimes it appears that criticism of violence and force from both sides depends only upon who is using it.

Professor Hook, who has generally taken a sound and realistic view of campus problems — some years ago he wrote a book titled Dissent, Yes, Treason, No in which he ably defended campus critics but not revolutionaries — said in his recent article that "American colleges and universities today face the gravest crisis in history." But "the problem and threat is not academic unrest but academic disruption and violence which flows from substituting for the academic goals of learning, the political goals of action." This may well be true but where did it start?

One of the protests of the student and faculty dissenters has been the enthusiasm with which some institutions of higher learning and some faculty members have accepted funds and contracts with the United States government in military as well as peaceful pursuits. To some extent at least the university thus risks the danger of becoming the creature of the state and its role in the defense industry can at least be honestly questioned. If college laboratory facilities are being used to manufacture a more deadly gas which may be used in a highly controversial war, has it not already become part of the political machine rather than aiming at purely academic matters? When faculty members take part in advising leaders of foreign governments along our way of thinking are they not taking part in politics? If there is opposition to their particular interpretation of the role of the United States in world affairs it is hard to claim it is not just as academic as theirs.

We do not feel qualified to determine exactly what should be the role of the university in national and local affairs. Entirely aside from the problems over the war, many students and faculty members have become more involved in urban affairs and how the university should offer assistance, in working with members of minority groups and the poor which certainly can be counted as part of the academic area in some departments.

It would appear impossible for the university to return to the ivory tower position it once held and of which there once was much criticism. But violence must be curbed or there will not much longer be that "climate of free discussion and inquiry" which the President cited as vital.

Nuclear Power and Lake Michigan

The report by three agencies of the Department of the Interior that warm water discharged into Lake Michigan is definitely harmful and could turn it into a "dead lake" in 30 years should be taken seriously.

The Federal Water Quality Administration, the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries and the Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife warned that the increasing discharges of heated water by plants in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin would increase the growth of algae because heated water speeds this through use of oxygen. Fish and other water creatures would have difficulty breathing in such algae clogged waters and in addition the heated water would stimulate the growth of a bacteria, E. botulinum, which kills shore birds.

These are serious charges especially at a time when there is more and more concern about other forms of pollution — waste materials and pesticides — changing the ecology of our lakes and streams. Spokesmen on the other side contend that the heated water will not have such serious effects but so far they have not been able to show much evidence. There is only one nuclear power plant currently in complete operation on the Lake Michigan shore in Michigan but six more are under construction or have been proposed including the Point Beach nuclear power plant at Two Creeks in Wisconsin.

The matter is highly controversial for a number of reasons. The valuation of such plants can vastly alter tax bases in places like Two Creeks unless there is a program of state sharing. The conflict between both commercial and sports fishermen and advocates of the plants is obvious, just as it has been between the fishermen and the chemical plants which have been dumping mercury into streams such as the Wisconsin River and making the eating of fish dangerous. The tourist industry, which is big business in Wisconsin, is bound to be affected by dying lakes. The algae growth in Green Bay and Lake Michigan in the last decade has been very noticeable and experts have yet to come up with convincing reasons as to the massive die-off of alewives a few years ago and why another hasn't occurred.

The Interior Department report suggested that cooling ponds or dry cooling towers to lower the temperature of water being returned to the lake be connected so that it is less than one degree warmer than the natural temperature of the lake. This would probably be a far more expensive process than simple return of the heated water. But in these days of a clearly deteriorating situation in water quality it should be considered. The agencies of the Interior Department put it stronger and recommend an absolute ban on the discharge of heated water.

Tinker Owns De Pere Hotel

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Post for Sept. 23, 1870.
The National Hotel, popular hostelry at DePere, which has been under the management of Tinker & Fisk for some time back, has passed into the hands recently of Mr. H. F. Tinker alone, senior proprietor.

He will henceforth manage the hotel which will continue to be in his charge. Mr. Tinker is a natural landlord and no man is better qualified to look after the comfort of his guests better than he.

DePere is noted for its good hotel accommodations, and Mr. T. deserves the greater part of the credit for making this so.

25 YEARS AGO
Wednesday, Sept. 19, 1845.
Officers of the Friendship Guild of First Baptist Church, Appleton, were planning activities for the year. They were Mrs. Vernon Riebel, president; Mrs. Wesley Latham, vice president; Mrs. Roy Harriman, secretary-treasurer. Members of the program committee for regular meetings were Mrs. Roy Morris, Mrs. William Delrow, Mrs. Ray Dawson, Mrs. H. A. Downey and Mrs. Harriman.

Mrs. O. R. Orrick, Waupaca, state president of the Dorcas Society of the Seventh Day Adventist Church, spoke at the Appleton society meeting. Mrs. Olof Lundquist, presented a report and president of the Appleton society, Mrs. Claire Woodard, discussed fall activities.

Officers of the American Legion Auxiliary at Appleton included Mrs. Ray Haase, president; Mrs. William Retza, vice president; Mrs. Harry Cunningham, treasurer; Mrs. Oscar Christianson, poppy treasurer; Mrs. John Court, chaplain; Mrs. Bert Bewick, secretary, and Mrs. Fannie Spencer, historian.

10 YEARS AGO
Wednesday, Sept. 21, 1860.
Appleton High School Student Council took over its duties with the first meeting of the school year. Officers were Peter Kafura, president and Peter Treiber, vice president, both elected to office the previous spring, and the newly elected by Council members, Jean Becker, secretary; Sandra Monteith, treasurer; Jerry Gendron and William Polzin, sergeants-at-arms.

John S. Drayna, director of social services at Winnebago State Hospital, was named commandant of the Grand Army Home at King. He succeeded G. H. Stordock, who was to retire at the end of the month after 11 years in the post. Stordock was active in veteran affairs in Wisconsin for many years; he served the American Legion as its department adjutant. Robert Wink and Robert Greenwalt, Appleton, were among the 17 young Wisconsin scientists whose articles were published in the quarterly Wisconsin Academy Review.

Taylor Writes

West Learning Trade With Yugoslavia Really a Trap

BY HENRY J. TAYLOR

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — The great charade known as East-West trade, now boosted by the Russo-German pact, is glaringly exposed in the heads-we-win, tails-you-lose performance here. And if America's businessmen do not beware of it they should have their heads examined. How nutty can you get?

Three years ago Yugoslavia passed a law making this the country to establish credit lines with important Western European international banks.

But three meetings with the Central Planning Committee of the Communist Party in Belgrade and Zagreb have been informative. Its members tell me they are "vigorously making reforms," relaxing their top-to-bottom controls, decentralizing the authority and reducing the incredible red tape. They told me the same thing, however, when I was here several years ago. Only the faces are changed, not the facts.

Taylor

first Communist country to invite direct capital investment by the West. Thus Tito's 1967 enactment pioneered the Red acceptance of capitalistic enterprises as operating companies within the Communist bloc. Since then 21 contracts with free world firms have sucked in about $50 million a year in Western investments.

Yet, officials of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, based in Paris, described to me the headaches and bluntly stated that the Yugoslav bait has resulted in a merciless trap.

Now Color Television
Moreover, last year Yugoslavia obtained more than $300 million in imported Western equipment and is even on the verge of receiving color television broadcasting and receiving equipment from Radio Corporation of America.

In addition, the tourist industry is booming — to the benefit of Yugoslavia's hard-currency reserves. The best (and cheapest) Adriatic vacation boats, running from Venice down the Dalmatian coast to Greece, are Yugoslavian. The resorts, dilapidated but in beautiful surroundings, are along this shore.

There is also the abundance of raw materials — bauxite, timber, etc. — and the sent-home pay of Yugoslavs working in Italy, Switzerland and elsewhere in Western Europe. Such combined factors have allowed this

Baiting the West

What they will not admit is that the only way to reorganize a Communist system is to abandon it. Tito is simply baiting the West to his own advantage. He has merely led in practicing what Moscow, Warsaw, Sofia, Budapest and Prague have now been told by the Kremlin to preach since the Russo-German pact last month.

When I was in Paris the Organization of Economic Cooperation and Development officials pointed especially to Yugoslavia's 49 per cent limit on Western voting power in the sucked-in enterprises. The Communists remain in control of the Western money, the enterprise and everything else.

The plants' workers, in turn, sit on the top operating committees and serve as censors and vetoers of the joint Communist-Western management.

Beyond this, the Westerners sucked in are paying a 35 per cent federal tax on any profits approved by the Communist party. And they must reinvest 20 per cent of such approved profits inside Yugoslavia.

To top all that off, there are iron-clad limits on transferring any funds out of this country — so iron-clad and so loaded with red tape that, in fact, transferring any earnings out of Yugoslavia is utterly hopeless.

Behind the scenes, this is true character of the touted East-West "bridge-building" process now spotlighted in the world news by the Brandt-Kosygin pact last month.

Formula Doesn't Vary

Nor does the Red formula vary. First the Communists beat the West over the head. This is done, among other things, to soften up the West for later use. It's like the old Russian story of the wife who kissed her husband's hand after he beat her over the head with a club because it felt so good when he stopped.

Then finally contracts come. But when the Red chiefs dispute the contracts, as they usually do in due course on one contrived objection or another, the Western firms' only redress is to go into a Communist court — which is like automatically committing hara-kiri.

In this heads-we-win, tails-you-lose charade about all the Western firms can do ultimately is to write off the loss in the Red investment and leave the rewards of the Red bait in Communist hands.

Again, why read a crystal ball when you can read the book?

Potomac Fever —

The contractors on the ABM system have it made. So what if the system fails to work — who's going to be around to complain?

Pat Nixon told reporters the thing she likes best about the White House is sharing it with others. And in less than five minutes Hube Humphrey was on the phone.

Arabic peoples believe there's only one civilized way to travel — which explains that old Arabic saying, "I'd walk a mile for a Camel."

There's been a revolution in men's fashions. And now the conservative man is one who refuses to wear a green and purple shirt with his polka dot business suit.

Wisconsin Report

Should Public Pay For Press Agency In Our Universities?

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — So pervasive has become the phenomenon of ghost writing and so numerous are the hired publicity artists in Wisconsin public affairs today that an earlier discussion about it and the people's liability in taxation to finance it probably deserves elaboration.

Quite by accident the other day I discovered that some of the educational institutions financed by the state budget have harnessed the science of computer technology to the trade of press agency.

Information about students is stored in the computer and retrieved at intervals for "print outs," in the jargon of the flaks, to provide the materials for steadily flowing rivers of "news" releases to the press and other media. H. G. Wells' imagination could not have been stretched to anticipate such an extravagant exploitation of machine technology for institutional and political interests.

Grinds Out News

When Freddie joins a fraternity, he may be sure that his hometown editor hears about it. When Susie is elected treasurer of her class, the computer will grind out the awesome news. All this is no doubt pleasurable enough for the beneficiaries, including the students who enjoy the attention of the homefolk and the hometown editor who likes items that have a high readership quotient. But what does it contribute to the cause of higher education? More particularly, how can it be justified in the burgeoning cost of higher education?

The answer ought to be evident to anyone with even a remote awareness of the painfully pressing needs for legitimate public services and the increasingly acute problem of accommodating them. The explanation is that such items are virtually immune from discovery by the legislature or the governor in the preparation of a budget. To use a familiar analogy, the chances of detecting such nonsense in a budget proceeding is roughly equivalent to 10 per cent of the probability of drawing successfully to an inside straight. But, of course, this reporter is an incorrigible scold, and in the eyes of the most luminous of the young liberal politicians, probably a dangerous reactionary to boot.

Doubts Accounting Methods
Yet I tend to remember things, and they occasionally come alive in strange contexts. A few years ago the governor of the state established with considerable fanfare a blue ribbon commission to examine state government business administration practices. It suggested some fairly obvious improvements, got some favorable notice in the papers, and retired.

What I remember most about it was the candid remark of one of its members, during a talk in a Madison restaurant one night, that he had the most profound doubts about the accuracy of cost accounting in some of the major state services, and notably in higher education. When I was a boy in college, scores of enterprising young men and women earned a few dollars writing local-angled news items for their hometown papers and others about students whose activities or achievements made news in the estimate of local editors. And I hasten to add that it was well into the 20th Century.

Statements Are Identical

In an earlier report on high priced puffery by the hirelings of the legislature — in both parties — I inadvertently omitted giving credit for the theme to a respected editor who sardonically sent me a note recently. Can you imagine, he inquired, the picture of Sen. LaFave of Oconto laboriously writing out a press release on his kitchen table about the university campus bombing?

I cannot. Nor is anyone else likely to do so, given the remarkable coincidence that three other state senators on the same day were putting out clamorous statements in virtually identical language, rich in rolling rhetoric and denunciation, but quite devoid of constructive thought.

It is useful to try to picture in the mind's eye the nameless man in Madison who fueled the mouths of those officials and who had so little regard for the intelligence of the electorate — not to mention his conscience — as to produce those identical statements to be attributed to four "authors."

I have a surprise for him. The people are not stupid, whatever he and his employers believe. There is also a limit to the forbearance of a self-respecting statehouse correspondent.

Strictly Personal

Parents Can't Force Children Into Molds

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Among the letters I never answer are those that want specific advice. Such as the one from the lady in Wisconsin whose nephew has just been graduated from high school. She has faith in my judgment, she writes flatteringly, and therefore wants to know whether I think the boy should go to a small college or a large one. This is the sort of advice no one can give who does not know the nephew.

Whether any young person should attend a large or a small college — or attend college at all — depends on a dozen individual factors: his personality, intelligence, emotional problems, home life, habits, loyalties, needs, desires, talents. Without knowing the answers to these questions) any advice I might give would be stupid and presumptuous.

The point I am making is that we try to fit individuals into our ideas rather than modify our ideas to fit the individual. I personally, am in favor of small colleges — but not for everybody. This woman's nephew might very well do better at a large state university, a correspondence school, or none at all.

This is why the professional advisers — in the press, on the radio, and elsewhere — are futile, misleading and, in some cases, downright dangerous. They are not dealing with precise mathematical formulas, but with variable human beings.

It takes a great deal of interest, study and affection to understand another person — even those we are closest to. To prescribe for somebody else's needs is something not even a psychoanalyst will do: he lets the patient find out for himself what he really wants to be and do.

Parents who try to force their children into a mold — to go to the same school father went to, or enter the same profession, or marry the same type of girl — fail to respect their children as individuals. They think they are interested in the child's happiness, but actually they are more interested in having the child contribute to their happiness.

Rousseau wrote an excellent book on the rearing of children, and let his own offspring grow up neglected in a founding home. This is not to say that all professional advice-givers are hypocrites, but that if we cannot recognize our own needs, how can we prescribe for others?

Berlin, Omro and Hortonville — currently sharing the East Central Conference lead — will be looking for their third straight conference wins this weekend.

Waupaca will seek to end its winless skid Friday when it entertains New London in what could develop into one of the classic games of the ECC.

Other games Friday will pit Berlin against Weyauwega at the Wega field and Omro journeying to Ripon, Saturday, Hortonville invades Winneconne.

Hortonville, among the league leaders, may face the strongest test. Winneconne spotted Omro a 14-0 lead in the first period before battling on even terms.

The Polar Bears have defeated Waupaca and Weyauwega, both still seeking their first league wins.

Winneconne likes to use the razzle-dazzle and a passing attack. The Wolves also sport a big defensive line and play a grudging defense.

The Polar Bears were extended last week by Weyauwega before pulling out the win on a 22-yard touchdown pass by quarterback Scott Nelson with 19 seconds remaining.

New London and Waupaca haven't played each other in recent grid campaigns. The proximity of the two cities make a bitter rivalry possible.

The Bulldogs (1-1) don't have any conference rivalries carried into the East Central as they are the lone former Mid-Eastern conference team.

Tough Game
Jack Wohl, New London coach, expects a real tough game from the Comets who have a long-existing rivalry with Weyauwega — a team he quarterbacked in the early 1960s.

"I don't know if this will replace the rivalry we had with Clintonville or Hortonville," Wohl said. Lee Solberg, a hard running fullback and tough linebacker, and tackle Mark McDaniel impressed the Bulldog mentor when he saw the Comets play.

Weyauwega will have to stop Berlin's running attack, led by Larry Hollmaier and Bernie Bitney, and the passing of Guy Lubbert.

Hollmaier is on the verge of running away with the league rushing title. The speedster has last weekend for 149 total in 28 picked up 317 yards in 57 attempts. Omro came up with the top defensive performance last week in disposing of Winneconne. The Foxes held Winneconne to minus 42 yards rushing and yielding 69 yards passing but intercepted three Wolves attempts.

Berlin limited Waupaca to just 30 yards on the ground and another 45 passing. Guy Lubbert hit on three of five passes for 101 yards and a touchdown for Berlin, while Bernie Bitney gained 63 yards in 13 carries.

3 Phils Ousted From Rhubarb-Filled Game

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The New York Mets beat the Philadelphia Phillies, 7-6, Tuesday night but you would have thought it was the Phillies not the Mets who were fighting for the National League Eastern Division pennant.

Three Phillies were tossed out of the rhubarb filled game, including manager Frank Lucchesi. The losers engaged in a heated debate with home-plate umpire Stan Landes and second-base ump Sach Davidson.

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The third America's Cup race avoided the hospitals and floating mines Tuesday but left Australia's Gretel II out near the end of the plank.

Reedsville and Denmark Will Square Off

Brillion to Face Freedom '11' in Olympian Circuit

OLYMPIAN CONFERENCE

	W	L	TP	OP
Brillion	2	0	44	24
Denmark	2	0	30	6
Reedsville	2	0	76	6
Mishicot	1	1	44	22
Valders	1	1	25	22
Freedom	0	2	70	40
Hilbert	0	2	12	67
Wrightstown	0	2	0	67

Friday's Games:
Mishicot at Valders

Saturday's Games:
Brillion at Freedom,
Denmark at Reedsville,
Wrightstown at Hilbert

Denmark and Reedsville, each with two impressive league victories under their belts, battle on the Panthers' field Saturday afternoon in the most significant clash to date in the Olympian Conference.

The circuit's remaining unbeaten squad, Brillion, also puts its 2-0 record on the line at winless Freedom Saturday. Wrightstown goes to Hilbert in the third game of the day as both clubs seek first wins.

In the only Friday encounter, Mishicot journeys to Valders where both schools will be trying to improve upon 1-1 marks.

Reedsville goes into Saturday's match as the highest-scoring outfit in the Olympians with 76 points, having rung up 54-0 and 22-6 verdicts over Wrightstown and Mishicot, respectively. But the invading Vikings rank as the second-leading point producers with 50 on the strength of 18-0 and 32-6 conquests of Hilbert and Freedom, respectively.

Nifty running back Jeff Barnard is the key to Panther hopes against Denmark. After bolting for three touchdowns and 72 yards against Wrightstown in the first league game, Barnard came back with another standout effort against Mishicot — racing 55 yards for one score and catching passes of 20 and 72 yards from Bruce Behnke for two more.

The 155-pound senior back finished with 109 yards in 15 carries, and topped off the effort by scoring both Panther conversions — thus accounting for all of his team's points for the day.

Denmark's strong rushing attack built around Dan Karbon and Dave Kempfert who ground out a combined total of 247 yards, paced the Vikes past Freedom. Karbon, who had 126 yards in 10 carries, scored twice while Kempfert added 121 yards in 12 tries and another TD.

While the Reedsville-Denmark struggle appears to be in the tossup category, Brillion should be favored to win its third start at Freedom. The Lions, led by the running of Steve Tienor and passing of Tom Schwahn, fought past Hilbert, 22-12 in their last start. The Irish have yet to get their attack moving, having dropped successive 38-0 and 32-6 defeats to Mishicot and Denmark, respectively.

Following in order were Steve Swan, Pennings, sixth; Jerry Farrell, St. John, seventh; Pete Falk, Pennings, eighth; Chuck Albers, Pennings, ninth and Dave Wittman, St. John, 10th.

In the javayee meet, St. John posted a 15-49 victory with Mike Ryba taking first in a time of 15 minutes, one second.

Pro Cage Debut Disappointing For Maravich

Scores Only 16 But Wins Praise From Heinsohn

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — To hear Pete Maravich tell it the "pistol" was shooting blanks in his first pro basketball exhibition game for the Atlanta Hawks.

"Pistol Pete," the all-time major college basketball scoring leader, scored but 16 points for the Hawks in a 121-105 loss to the Boston Celtics Tuesday night.

That's not even half of Maravich's 40 plus averages at Louisiana State.

"I really didn't play worth a damn," said the soft-spoken Southerner as he pulled on a pair of natty bell bottoms in the cramped, steam-bath-hot locker room at Florida State University's Tully gym.

"I was too tired and I couldn't move," he said. "I was physically exhausted."

Part of the trouble, Maravich said, was the oppressive heat in the tiny gym.

Some 4,500 spectators crowded into Tully, pushing the court-side temperature near 90 on a muggy night.

"It felt like it was a thousand degrees in there," Maravich said. "I couldn't even breathe. When you can't breathe you can't get your second wind."

Improved Through Game

But the performance of the shooter with the floppy socks belied his own appraisal. Maravich simply got better as the game went on.

His first shot, a 20-foot jumper thrown up as a teammate cried "Put it in, Pete," fell off the rim.

Maravich shot six more times in the first half, hitting only on a jumper at 10:30 of the second period. But the "pistol" shot true in the second half, sinking six of 11 field goal attempts and two of three free throws.

In fact, Maravich hit 12 of his 16 points in the final period when he bargained the basket with looping, off balance jump shots from the 25-foot range.

In typically self-deprecating fashion, Maravich's only comment on the deadeve passes he zipped to — and through — Hawks teammates was "I was just throwing the ball."

Three Assists

Maravich was credited with three assists, one of them on a pass to 6-9 center Jim Davis off a between the legs dribble. Davis earned an easy layup.

But Maravich, a playmaking guard in the Hawks offensive scheme, could have doubled or even tripled his assists had the Hawks been ready for his bullet passes. That is an adjustment that will come from knowing the rookie's style better.

So no matter how Maravich graded himself, he passed two of the toughest tests. He had the fans screaming with glee at his incredible shots and passes. And the pros were impressed.

"Maravich is going to be a hell of a ballplayer," commented Celtics Coach Tom Heinsohn.

Kaukauna Chamber Backs River Project

KAUKAUNA — Members of the Chamber of Commerce board of directors voted recently to support Mayor Gilbert Anderson, chairman of the Fox Valley Council of Governments, in his efforts to have the Fox River basin used for a pilot project by the federal government demonstrating the most advanced concepts of water control management.

Similar support and endorsements have been made by Wisconsin senators and representatives in Washington, D. C., as well as many cities and planning agencies throughout the state.

In other action, the board also agreed to aid the mayor in his efforts to establish a Fox Valley Area Chamber of Commerce, noting the proximity of the various communities eventually would require such a business group.

Erik Madison explained procedures to be followed in setting up an industrial brochure. He showed a portfolio, much like the one under consideration by the chamber, and recommended its use. Directors agreed a portfolio should be produced as soon as possible, but delayed action for further study and discussion.

Chamber vice president Lyle Vandenberg pointed out that it is a good time to put on an all-out campaign for the purpose of attracting new industry to the Fox River Valley.

"Kaukauna has much to offer. It is ideally located, has adequate housing facilities, a large area on which to draw for a labor force, fine schools, a good system of transportation, exceptionally attractive power and water rates, and many more qualities that are being sought by industry," said Vandenberg. "Right now industry is diversifying and looking for sites in small towns to escape the many problems of the large cities," he concluded.

Directors voted to continue their campaign for signatures discovered the body and called on a petition to have prisoners released. To date, over 800 signed petitions have been received and an effort is planned to try to double this amount by the end of the week.

Mrs. Gen. Anderson notified Chamber officials that the Grignon Home will be open for visitors from noon to 5 p.m. Saturday for "Wonderful Wisconsin Week."

Bowers Raps Conradt for 'No' Vote

Democrat John Bowers of Greenville has criticized State Rep. Ervin Conradt, R-Shiocton, for voting against annual sessions of the State Legislature.

Bowers said the shift from biennial to annual sessions was "one of the major reforms in procedures pressed in the last session of the Legislature."

The challenger said that by meeting every year the Legislature could take "a more businesslike approach to state government" and could do a better job of watching how state tax funds are spent.

He also spoke in favor of a similar shift from biennial to annual state budgeting, also to increase efficiency in government operations and spending.

Bowers noted that in January an effort was made to draw the annual sessions bill from committee for legislative action, but the attempt narrowly failed.

A landlady, living downstairs, discovered the body and called on a petition to have prisoners released. To date, over 800

Letendre Hits Cutbacks in Defense Funds

Says Effectiveness Of Navy Reduced In Mediterranean

STEVENS POINT — Cuts in defense spending have reduced the effectiveness of U.S. naval strength in the Mediterranean during the current Middle East military crisis, according to Andre Letendre, Republican congressional candidate from Wausau.

In a speech prepared for a GOP Women's Federation gathering here Tuesday, Letendre said the effectiveness of the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean has been reduced by "demands by the Democrat-controlled 91st Congress" to reduce military spending below already lowered levels recommended by President Nixon.

"Current defense spending, now running under $74 billion per year, conceivably could result in a serious weakening of United States security throughout the world," Letendre continued.

"The present Middle East situation should serve as a dire warning of the Soviet Union's continued military buildup," he said, praising Defense Secretary Melvin Laird's recommendations that this country match Soviet military strength equally.

Letendre, challenging Democratic incumbent Rep. David Obey of Wausau, is seeking election to the seat vacated by Laird when he was named defense chief.

"The Soviet naval presence in the Mediterranean has been greatly increased, and more and more Soviet air and missile power has been deployed to Egypt and guerrilla terrorist forces in the area," he said.

Letendre warned that the Middle East situation is a result of moves by the Soviet Union and Communist-backed terrorists "obviously designed to agitate the United States into irrational action that would plunge us squarely in the middle of an international mess of larger proportions than even that in Southeast Asia."

Introduced by Sears
New Phosphate-Free Detergent on Market

A phosphate-free laundry detergent that may be a significant breakthrough in the fight against water pollution will be introduced here this week by Sears, Roebuck and Co. Market introduction of the detergent follows an announcement last May that the phosphate-free formulation had been developed by DeSoto, Inc., of Des Plaines, Ill., a major Sears supplier. James W. Button, Sears senior vice president-merchandising, said the detergent will contain no phosphate, the compound that is generally blamed for polluting lakes and streams through excess growth of algae, which depletes oxygen. "While the phosphate has been removed, no other ingredients have been added. The ingredients were reformulated to achieve the cleaning efficiency without using phosphate," he said. The company's current Laundry Detergent and Enzyme Active Laundry Detergent — both of which contain phosphate — are being phased out, he said. Button said a major problem in marketing phosphate-free detergent is that, although most homemakers are concerned about water pollution, most don't realize that phosphate in their detergents contributes to it. The advisability of removing

New Berlin Firm to Manufacture Exhaust System for Nino's

Nino's, Inc., which operates a chain of steak houses throughout the Midwest including one in Appleton, has licensed Mueller Industries, Inc., New Berlin, to manufacture and market a patented restaurant exhaust system developed by Nino F. Costarella, who heads the restaurant chain, and Anthony Giuffre, a vice president. The grill exhaust system would be handled by a new division called Polutrol, Inc., and adapted for industrial applications as well as restaurant use. It eliminates smoke and cooling odors and reduces the possibility of grease fires, its inventors say. The 21 steak houses will use the system.

Man Sentenced to Term at Reformatory

A 24-year-old former Kaukauna man was sentenced to the Green Bay reformatory for 15 months Monday on two counts of check forgery. Circuit Judge Andrew W. Parnell said he would consider the three months which Kenneth Gloudemans already has served in the Outagamie County jail in the final disposition. Gloudemans previously pleaded guilty to the felony counts, brought last May 21. He issued the two checks, totaling $240, after endorsing them with the name of a Combined Locks man who formerly roomed across the hall from him in Kaukauna. The transaction was made at Appleton State Bank.

Appleton's 1st National Lowers Interest Rate

The First National Bank of Appleton became the fourth Fox Cities bank Tuesday to reduce its prime interest rate from 8 to 7 1/2 per cent. "The reduced prime rate will be offered to our customers, those who borrow very large amounts and maintain substantial balances on deposit with us," said Harold Adams, president. On the heels of rate drops by certain major banks on the East coast, Appleton State Bank, the Bank of Menasha and the Marine National Bank, Neenah, lowered their prime rates from 8 to 7 1/2 earlier Tuesday. Adams released the announcement this morning. "The rate reduction was unusual in that it was being made in the face of continuing strong loan demand," he said.

Treats Sewage

Atom May Solve Water Problems

FISHEATING CREEK, Fla. — Dr. David D. Woodbridge lifted a glass of water to his lips and drank it dry. Hours earlier the water had been raw sewage from this south Florida campground.

"It's clean and it's good," he said.

The sewage had been transformed into pure, odorless water—like slightly warm distilled water—by gamma radiation at the first commercial nuclear sewage disposal plant built in the United States, perhaps the world.

The $87,000 plant essentially treats sewage in the usual way, just before final filtering, the effluent is bombarded with rays from radioactive cobalt-60.

The process is flexible. Water can be treated to such pureness it can be drunk, or it can be

Streams Will Be Protected From Mercury

Council Also Told Tourist Industry Not Harmed by Scare

MADISON — State orders restricting or prohibiting the discharge of industrial mercury wastes will be issued to protect additional streams in Wisconsin, a spokesman for the State Department of Natural Resources has informed the Governor's Council on Economic Development.

The forecast came from Oliver Williams, assistant chief of the environmental protection division of DNR.

The council also heard a report by a state economist showing that a nationally publicized order to control mercury discharge into the Wisconsin River has not harmed the tourist business in the Valley. This area stretches from Vilas county downward to Prairie du Chien.

There had been cries of alarm that publicity of the DNR order covering the Wisconsin city would depress tourist traffic, when the decision came at the height of the tourist season.

Fred Pierce of the division of economic development said his agency surveyed bank business during three months following the mercury scare, and found that their receipts in the Valley had increased nearly 10 per cent over the same period last year. Local Chambers of Commerce were polled also, and reported no evidence of a decline in tourist business volume.

Williams decried what he called an "alarmist" response to the discovery of toxic mercury wastes in the big river. He remarked that state officers believe the mercury problem is not as severe here as in other parts of the country.

"We'll be haunted by this for a long time, but probably we caught it in time," he told the governor's council.

He reminded also that tests have shown the existence of mercury in natural waters where there is no evidence of industrial discharge.

Police Stop Youth After Speedy Chase

KAUKAUNA — A 19-year-old rural Kaukauna youth reportedly led police on a chase Monday night at speeds estimated at 120 m.p.h., ran several stop signs and narrowly missed another car before being cut off by a roadblock near where the chase began.

A Kaukauna squad car began chasing Allan J. Vissers, route 1, shortly after he sped away from a stop sign in the city. Heading north on Outagamie County Trunk J. Vissers allegedly ran signs at County Trunks 00 and S. before turning south onto County Trunk E towards Freedom.

Police said Vissers tore through a stop sign just beyond the town at State 55, barely missing another auto Kaukauna police reported speeds of 120 m.p.h. as Vissers, still pursued by the squad car, headed south on 55.

He turned onto County Trunk J.J. going west, where, when met by an Outagamie County roadblock, banked sharply to the right onto Buchanan Road, and into a field at a dead end, where he was stopped and handcuffed by county police.

Kaukauna police, who said Vissers has been released, said state charges are pending. Vissers was named in city count of exceeding a reasonable and prudent speed and attempting to elude police by his actions before the chase began at 8:15 p.m.

ceive lesser treatment for use in irrigation.

Irradiation with cobalt does more than rid the sewage of disease-causing viruses and bacteria. It also breaks up deadly pesticides and reduces by up to one third the quantity of phosphates and other nutrients in the water.

The plant has been in commercial operation for more than six months, treating sewage from trailers, bath houses, toilets and laundry machines at the Fisheating Creek campground west of Lake Okechobee.

Some 10,000 gallons are treated daily, with as much as 22,000 gallons on peak weekend days.

The plant is the brainchild of Woodbridge and his colleagues at Florida Institute of Technology — FIT — in Melbourne, Fla. Woodbridge heads the physics department and is research director. He founded FIT's University Center for Pollution Research in 1968.

Private Financing
He and his team of scientists, most of whom previously worked in space-missile programs, developed a pilot plant at FIT three years ago, treating between 50 and 1,000 gallons of sewage a day. As their work progressed, they formed Energy Systems Inc., with Woodbridge as president, and secured private financing.

When they decided to build a larger commercial plant, they needed a place to test it. The answer came from Lykes Brothers of Tampa, Fla., a meat-packing and food-processing firm which has been working with FIT on nuclear irradiation as a possible means of preserving food.

Lykes owns the Fisheating Creek campground and suggested it be used for the plant. Lykes and Energy Systems each contributed to the cost.

William R. Garrett, a Woodbridge assistant who supervised construction, explained that water from campground sources feeds through pipes into a wet well where paper and other solid objects are trapped and either screened out of broken down so they can enter the system.

Water Sterilized
The sewage flows from there into an air-bubbling aeration facility common to most sewage disposal plants. Then it goes into the radiation chamber where it is sterilized by gamma rays. The water does not directly contact the Cobalt-60 but circulates around a core containing the radioactive material.

The water then moves into a dilution tank where ash created by oxidation of waste is removed. From there it goes into a primary vacuum filter, a polishing carbon filter and finally empties through a pipe into a nearby swamp.

Perfectly Safe
There is no radioactive material in the outflowing water, and it is perfectly safe to the surrounding area, Garrett said.

Woodbridge said the treated water is not used for drinking at the camp because there is a plentiful normal supply.

He said there is a problem that will have to be overcome if cities one day are to recycle drinking water through a nuclear plant.

"Some people have a psychological barrier about drinking water they know comes from sewage treatment," Woodbridge said. "It's going to be a matter of educating them. However, there already are many people in this country who are drinking reconstituted sewage and don't know it."

80% Saving
Allowing for evaporation Woodbridge said a municipality could save 80 per cent of its water by recycling it any number of times through an irradiator.

He claimed the system removes 90 per cent of detergents; 99.99 per cent of all bacteria; reduces by up to 33 per cent the phosphates and other nutrients, and is lethal to viruses causing such diseases as influenza and poliomyelitis.

Woodbridge said some advanced conventional treatment plants can produce an effluent of drinking water quality. But he said the nuclear system's capability to break down nutrients, pesticides and most viruses "creates a system which can help with the water pollution problem today."

Stunts Vegetation
He noted that water put through conventional plants, with chlorine added, will stunt vegetation. The irradiated water is so pure that not one weed has been affected at Fisheating Creek, he said.

The Fisheating Creek plant has been approved by the Atomic Energy Commission and the state of Florida. Thomas Savage, an environmental biologist from the Florida Department of Natural Resources, said the process "certainly seems to be very promising, especially the nutrient-reduction aspect."

Mercury a Stubborn Pollutant

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The cleansing of Wisconsin rivers of mercury dumped in years past could take decades if left to natural processes, Gov. Warren P. Knowles' operating cabinet has been warned.

Investigations in Sweden indicate that mercury pollution of stream beds results in continuing water pollution even 30 to 40 years after mercury contamination of the river bottom takes place, the top state department heads were told by Stanton J. Kleinert, coordinator of emergency mercury studies for the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources.

The mercury pollution which has closed much of the Wisconsin, Chippewa and Flambeau Rivers to limited sports fishing is almost certainly the result of mercury dumping done some years ago, but is likely to continue to pollute the streams for many years, Kleinert told the cabinet.

Polluted Earlier
Indications are that the pollution of the Wisconsin River bottom occurred before 1950, when paper mills in this state evidently stopped using mercury in paper preparations, said Kleinert.

But other industries, such as battery manufacturing plants and similar industries, are being checked as possible sources of mercury pollution, he said.

The search for water pollution from metallic dumpings is being expanded as well to cover arsenic, lead, cadmium and selenium, none of which is expected to pose a problem as large as that caused by the dumping of mercury compounds in past years, Kleinert told the cabinet.

Knowles asked Donald Mackie of the natural resources agency to renew the state's request for federal aids for the emergency study. Mackie had told Knowles that the federal government had not even responded to Wisconsin's initial request almost five months ago when the first indications of mercury pollution were detected in the Wisconsin River below the Wyandotte Chemical Corporation plant at Port Edwards.

Dumping Reduced
Kleinert said that a 100-fold reduction in the mercury dumping by that plant had been accomplished, but that trace elements are still being released into the river.

Since that time the mercury study has been expanded to include virtually all state waters, and Wisconsin River has been virtually closed to heavy fishing for most of its length. Warning signs have been posted instructing people not to eat more than one meal of fish caught in the 350 mile stretch per week.

The same warning has been issued for a 90-mile stretch of the Chippewa-Flambeau River systems.

The cabinet was told that the state division of health regards that restriction as being about 18 times tighter than is necessary for public health, but that no risks are being taken in the new-found area of mercury poisoning dangers through contaminated fish caught in mercury-polluted waters.

Study Wildlife
The study is being expanded as well to include Wisconsin wildlife, Kleinert told the department heads.

No conclusions have been reached, but similar studies

Agency to Accept Views on Sanguine

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — State Department of Natural Resources, Bock emphasized, organizations concerned about the holly controversial Project Sanguine proposal of the United States Navy may submit comments and suggestions to the President's Council on Environmental Quality in the office of the Secretary of Defense in Washington, the science adviser to Gov. Warren Knowles has informed the Natural Resources Committee of State Agencies.

Project Sanguine is a plan of the Navy to construct a vast underground electronic grid covering much of upper Wisconsin as the foundation for a worldwide system of national defense communication. Wisconsin environmentalists have attacked it since the Navy began planning and researching the project tentatively several years ago.

University of Wisconsin Prof. Robert Bock, cochairman of the ad hoc committee, reported that the sponsors of Project Sanguine must make a statement of their desired action and proposed intentions to the Department of Defense for inclusion in the report to the President's Council.

But private citizens and local officials are also invited to make their comments and if they desire background counsel they may call upon the heads of the committees of the Illinois, Colorado and North inter-governmental state board, Carolina, gave Wisconsin officials a list of recommendations Kabat, and A. 50 Astronauts, Wives to Appear HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The nation's 50 astronauts and their wives have agreed to appear in a series of television documentaries on the U.S. space program, a film production firm says.

Part of the $100,000 fee for each program will go to the widows of astronauts who have died, with the remainder shared equally among the living astronauts and their wives. They also will share in the profits from the series.

The agreement was announced Monday by David L. Wolper, president of Wolper Productions Inc., and Louis Nizer, New York attorney for the astronauts.

A maximum of 12 documentaries over three years will be produced starting in 1971, the announcement said. The films would be made for worldwide distribution and for use in schools and libraries.

Obey, Utech Criticize Plans For Ky Speech

Candidates Oppose Appearance at Washington Rally
Two Democrats campaigning in separate Wisconsin congressional races were critical Tuesday of South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky's planned appearance at a Washington "victory rally" next month.

But Rep. David Obey of Wausau, seeking re-election to the state's 7th District seat in the House, urged Ky to call off his appearance, while 6th District candidate Franklin Utech of Oshkosh said that if Ky must appear all Americans should listen courteously.

"Since President Nixon already has more than enough pressure on him, I urge that Mr. Ky cancel his plans to speak," Obey said in a speech on the House floor.

Obey said the Vietnam war "has caused us enough political, social and economic problems." He described Ky's appearance as an effort to pressure the President and Congress into stiffening Southeast Asian policy. U.S. policy "will be determined on the basis of our own national interest and not on the basis of harping by outsiders," Obey said.

Utech urged showing Ky "something he has not yet tasted. Let us give him a clear, unmistakable display of American democracy in action." While he termed it "discouraging that a foreign political leader has chosen to go beyond

National Rail Shutdown Impact May be Tested

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration worked today to head off a midnight nationwide railroad strike, but there were signs the government was bracing to test whether the nation could stand a rail shutdown.

Labor Department officials reported very little progress toward settling the long dispute over eliminating the locomotive firemen's jobs, and the government prepared to authorize emergency bus and truck service in the event of a rail strike.

The strike has been called for 12:01 a.m. Thursday.

President Nixon already has exhausted all strike-delaying provisions of federal labor law.

"If it keeps on we may have to be faced with a nationwide railroad strike," said Assistant Secretary of Labor W. J. Usery, working on the nation's fourth national rail labor crisis this year.

Not as Urgent

Usery, in an interview, hinted that although the government must exert every effort to avoid it, a nationwide rail strike might not be as catastrophic as federal officials have said.

There have been only three nationwide rail strikes in nearly half a century, with either the White House or Congress stepping in to prevent others.

"This day and time we are now beginning to look upon it as this — years ago we did not have airlines, we did not have trucking as we have it today. And if it keeps on we may have to be faced with a nationwide railroad strike even though everything should be done to prevent that..." Usery said.

Interstate Commerce Commission Chairman George M. Stafford announced his agency will issue emergency authority to truck and bus lines to haul passengers and freight if there is a rail strike.

Sources in the trucking industry indicated it could pick up a considerable amount of the slack in shipments if there were a rail strike because generally depressed economic conditions have idled many trucks.

The American Trucking Association said trucks normally carry about 21 per cent of the nation's freight, compared with some 41 per cent by rails and the rest by water carriers and pipelines.

Nixon has intervened three times this year under the Railway Labor Act to impose 60-day strike delays. His only recourse in the current dispute would be to ask Congress for a special law.

Emergency Laws

Congress has stepped in with emergency laws in three similar cases in the past seven years.

A special arbitration board ruled in 1963 the railroads could eliminate 90 per cent of the firemen on diesel yard and freight engines, with severance pay and rights to other rail jobs for most of the men.

Some 20,000 firemen's jobs were eliminated under the two-year special law, but the United Transportation Union now de-

Unofficial Use Of U.S. Troops In Past Noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials cite more than 125 instances throughout U.S. history in which the President sent armed forces abroad without a declaration of war or a congressional authorization.

The cases, dating back to the early years of the republic, range from the undeclared war against France in 1798-1800 to the incursion into Cambodia last April.

Jordan Claims Syrians Ousted

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Jordanian troops supported by artillery and warplanes launched a drive in northern Jordan today and drove invaders from Syria out of the country, Amman radio said.

A communique from Jordan's military governor, Field Marshal Habis Majali, said the Syrian withdrawal began at noon "and by 2:15 p.m. the last Syrian soldier left Jordanian soil."

He said Jordanian forces were in complete control of Irbid, the country's second largest city 50 miles north of Amman, and Ramtha, 10 miles east of Irbid.

If true, this would lessen the possibility of U.S. intervention. It was the invasion from Syria on Sunday that touched off talk that the Americans might intervene.

King Hussein of Jordan said in Amman Tuesday "I do not expect military intervention at this time" and that his force had command of the situation.

As fierce fighting went into its seventh day in Amman, the Jordanian capital, Hussein and the captured No. 2 man of the guerrilla movement announced a four-point agreement to end the conflict.

Plan Rejected

The Central Committee of the Palestine resistance movement, however, rejected the plan. It announced in a broadcast from Iraq that it would fight to the last man.

King Hussein of Jordan and the captured No. 2 man in the guerrilla movement announced a four-point agreement to end the conflict, now in its seventh day. But the Central Committee of the Palestine resistance movement rejected the plan and announced in a broadcast from Iraq that it would fight to the last man.

Observers in Israel reported the retreat of the forces from Syria. But they were uncertain whether the forces were moving back to Syria, whence they came Sunday.

The roar of gunfire sounded through Amman during the night and throughout the morning, with most of the firing in the Jebel Weibdeh residential district.

This is a district that the Jordanian army has been trying to clear of guerrillas since Sunday. Guerrillas told newsmen the army had been unable to capture the district despite attacks. But it looked as if the army had wrested control of much of the capital from the guerrillas, who were still holding out in pockets.

Casualties High

Casualties ran into the thousands, with a high proportion of them civilians.

A broadcast from Baghdad said the guerrilla leader, Abu Ayad, had completed the agreement while a captive "and isolated from the state of affairs in Amman."

The agreement was announced over Amman radio by Hussein and Ayad, who was captured four days ago.

There was no mention of the guerrillas' No. 1 boss, Yasir Arafat, head of Al Fatah as well as the Palestine Liberation Organization, which includes 10 other guerrilla groups.

Arafat said Tuesday night that he could never again negotiate a cease-fire with the Jordanian government because "20,000 dead and wounded and a sea of blood separate us from them."

Crisis Continues
On Eastern Seaboard
As Mercury Soars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Excessive heat and humidity brought electrical power cutbacks throughout five Middle Atlantic states and the district of Columbia today as a power crisis continued for a second day on the Eastern Seaboard.

With temperatures again expected to soar into the 90's, the giant Consolidated Edison Co. in New York made three voltage cuts in quick succession, reaching an 8 per cent cutback by 9:25 a.m., when the thermometer rose into the 80's.

Largest Possible

Eight per cent is the largest cutback possible without likely damage to electrical equipment. It was also the first time the maximum cut had been made so early in the day—even in the daily crises of July and August.

The Penn-Jersey-Maryland power interconnection announced 5 per cent voltage cuts affecting New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Con Edison said today's early and drastic action came because of generator problems in the Penn-Jersey-Maryland grid, which deprived New York of power it might have borrowed from other utilities in the grid.

Con Ed said it was committed to supply 60,000 kilowatts to the P-J-M grid, power Con Ed would otherwise have pulled in from the state pool for New York City's own uses.

The Virginia Electric and Power Co. announced today its broken down generators had been put back into service, and its customers could resume normal use of electricity.

Officials Hopeful Peace Pact's Value Doubtful

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials, hoping for an early end to the civil war in Jordan, doubted today whether the four-point agreement announced by Amman radio would be sufficient to bring peace to the country.

A top level assessment of the reported accord was expected to be made at a regular National Security Council meeting set for midmorning, Washington time. President Nixon called the meeting several days ago and the White House Tuesday called it routine.

From Washington's point of view the critical element in ending the week-long struggle between King Hussein's government and the Palestinian guerrillas has been whether Palestine leadership would be able to control all elements of the guerrilla movement.

Authorities here noted that broadcast reports of the agreement made no mention of the popular front for the liberation of Palestine, which engineered recent airplane hijackings and still hold hostage 54 foreigners, including 38 Americans.

It was also pointed out here that the announced terms made no reference to a cease-fire.

Heavy Firing

Several hours after the agreement was made public reports reaching Washington through diplomatic channels said there had been heavy firing in Amman about dawn today and that machinegun and light arms fire continued into the morning.

There were also reports from diplomatic sources of fighting in the north of Jordan where Hussein's army was said to claim a victory.

Nixon administration leaders have been hopeful that the intervention of an Arab summit mission in Amman would find ways to at least curb the civil war and reduce the chances of possible U.S. intervention.

Cambodians Meet Light Resistance in New Drive

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The biggest government operation of the Cambodian war moved forward again today after being stalled 10 days by North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces.

A spokesman said advance elements were meeting light resistance as they moved toward the major enemy stronghold in the village of Taing Kau, 47 miles north of Phnom Penh. It was the first forward movement reported by the government since its troops were driven from Taing Kau and stalled in some of the enemy troops' drive northward toward the provincial capital of Kompong Thom and the nation's heartland.

Toward Town

The spokesman said the government force had moved about half a mile toward the town. Reports reaching Phnom Penh said up to 2,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were believed still in Taing Kau.

There were no indications why the enemy had apparently relaxed its pressure. But village reports a few days ago that their drive northward toward there was speculation that they were falling back to more easily defensible positions.

Fighting intensified on another Cambodian battle front. South Vietnamese headquarters in Saigon said six South Vietnamese marines and 41 North Vietnamese were killed in heavy fighting along the Bassac River, 30 miles southeast of Phnom Penh. Twenty-three South Vietnamese were reported wounded.

In Laos, the Communist Pathet Lao accused royalist government troops of launching at-

Use of FBI In Bombings Is Supported

Nixon Plan Gets Prompt Attention From Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's request for authority to send the FBI onto campuses hit by bombings and arson is getting prompt and favorable action in Congress.

Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, said the provision would be added to an omnibus crime bill on which the panel is putting finishing touches.

Nixon outlined his request Tuesday to Republican congressional leaders at a White House conference attended by Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

Wants More Men

In addition to seeking expanded federal authority to intervene in campus bombings, Nixon wants the FBI's strength boosted from 7,000 to 8,000 men to help bombing investigations and also to deal with airplane hijacking. The extra agents would cost $23 million a year.

The administration's latest move to meet the bomb threat was announced by GOP leaders Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan and Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania after the White House meeting.

The use of the two Republican leaders to announce Nixon's request aroused the wrath of Celler, who has been driving his committee long and hard in the past two weeks to get out a big crime bill Nixon has accused him of blocking.

Celler Aroused

"Why not communicate directly with the chairman instead of going only through Republicans?" asked Celler. "That's a hell of a way to get something out of a committee."

The administration sees law and order as a top issue in the coming congressional elections and would like to keep a GOP stand on any tough antibomb legislation. The omnibus crime bill already includes an administration-backed provision calling for the death penalty for anyone convicted of a fatal bombing.

Celler's agreement to go along with Nixon's request despite his unhappiness at the way he received it indicates the strength of the law-and-order issue in Congress.

FCC Issues Ruling Antismoking Ads Must Go on

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anti-smoking broadcasts, required since 1967 to counteract cigarette commercials, must continue after the commercials end in January, says a top federal communications lawyer.

"We will have to have some transitional period," said Henry M. Geller, general counsel of the Federal Communications Commission, in an interview.

Geller declined to estimate how long the "transition" might take but indicated antismoking broadcasts might be required as long as smoking-versus-health remains a public issue.

Television and radio broadcasters say this leaves them with a curious puzzle.

When he carried cigarette commercials, the broadcaster was required by the FCC to add anticigarette announcements under its "fairness doctrine" requiring balanced presentation of controversial issues.

How can he now carry only one side of the issue—this time the antismoking side—without violating that same doctrine and perhaps jeopardizing his broadcast license?

Geller suggested a way.

Fairness Doctrine

Smoking may be so widely seen as a health hazard, he said, that the subject is no longer "controversial" and therefore no longer subject to the FCC "fairness doctrine."

"It's an issue," he said, "but we're not so sure a licensed (broadcaster) couldn't reach a judgment that it's no longer controversial. I don't know that we'd upset his judgement."

"He might not be obligated to present two sides of this issue." Nevertheless, said Geller, the broadcaster may be required to continue presenting the antismoking side "under the general public interest standard."

"He has a duty to inform the public," said Geller. "If cigarettes continue to cause death, that can't be ignored."

"It could be through public service announcements," he added, "or he might do it by network coverage, documentaries, one-minute spots—he would have discretion."

"But it will no longer be geared to cigarette commercials."

A law passed last spring bans all cigarette commercials from television and radio effective Jan. 2.

Hilbert Citizens Committee To Study School Merger

HILBERT — A meeting with Wittenberg-Birnbaum school officials to learn about reorganization of those two schools is planned today by the citizen subcommittee for school sites, the Board of Education learned Monday night, during a discussion of a possible merger with Stockbridge.

Supt. Richard Yenchsky reported on the preliminaries being carried out before the merger referendum tentatively set for Nov. 18.

Yenchsky said that information meetings had been conducted with subcommittee members recruited by the Citizen Advisory Committee to explain the reasons for seeking the merger. These groups will handle promotion activities in the two communities.

Creek Still A Concern of Educators

Hilbert Board Presses Villages For Pupil Protection

HILBERT — The Board of Education Monday night continued to express concern about the creek at the north side of the school, which they claim is a hazard to youngsters.

Recently a request was made to the village, under whose jurisdiction the stream lies, to enclose it with a fence.

After reviewing fence prices, the village suggested the money might better be spent closing it and school authorities were asked for their views.

Monday the Board of Education agreed that while it was a worthwhile idea, this probably would not be done this year. They thought that a fence could provide almost immediate protection. They agreed that legally they could not get involved in cost-sharing as suggested by the village, because school funds are for education, not public works.

School officials said their prime concern is for the safety of the children in the school and they could not dictate to the municipality, only recommend that the hazard be removed.

The superintendent was asked to write to the village, and the possibility of meeting with the Village Board also was suggested.

Brillion Club To Release 30 Pheasants

BRILLION — The Conservation Club soon will release 30 pheasants to help hunters train and practice with their dogs.

By hunting season, there will be 400 banded birds, nearly all cocks, placed on the 6,000 acres leased by the club. Signs will be placed this week on all farms in the program, the club decided at its monthly meeting.

A poultry shoot will be held Oct. 11 on the club grounds. Lunch and refreshments will be served. Pheasants will be awarded as prizes at the shoot.

Nine directors will be elected at the Oct. 15 meeting to replace those whose terms will have expired. Trophies also will be awarded for the summer's trap league. A free lunch will be served.

Tribute to an Educator

CLINTONVILLE — Reverend for "kids," it was noted. He Laske, junior high school principal, was saluted as an outstanding educator by the Clintonville Branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) and the Junior Woman's Club.

They were co-sponsors of Youth and Education Day Monday, as part of Wonderful Wisconsin Week. Mrs. Clifford Rafoth represented the AAUW as area representative in education, and Mrs. David Secore represented the Junior Woman's Club as its president.

In honoring Laske, Mrs. Rafoth and Mrs. Secore said, "Clintonville and Wisconsin are fortunate indeed to be able to have such an outstanding educator, promptly and he must 'Like It Here' because he came to Wisconsin from Dakota and stayed here. Clintonville and its students have felt his influence since 1937."

"This gentle man in his quiet, unassuming way, has managed to give something of himself to more students than we can count, and helped to make education in the Clintonville schools something of which the community can justifiably be proud."

Something for Kids Laske started the rifle club here, simply because he thought it would be something good for the boys and girls every week night, a request by the Hilbert Athletic Association to use the facilities for practice on Wednesdays was approved for after 9 p.m., if arrangements could be made.

The "unwritten rule" of having Wednesday night for church activities was mentioned, and it was reported that area churches no longer had instructions every week, but had reduced them to during Lent and about six other nights.

Yenchsky said the school wanted to cooperate with the community and youngsters, and board member Paul Kees said he felt some leeway should be given athletic students to attend church activities on the nights they were scheduled, which met with no opposition.

Several members of the panel said they would attend the Wisconsin Association of School Boards fall conference Oct. 8 at Reedsville and a session on "School Law Today," sponsored by the State Bar of Wisconsin in Madison Oct. 2.

The board was informed that school taxes still had not been received from the Town of Rantoul.

New London JV Defeats Waupaca

NEW LONDON — The fighting Bulldogs Junior Varsity football team bit the tail off the Waupaca Comets, 26-8, Monday night.

The Bulldogs first six-pointer came through a 14-yard run by Rick Kamke, followed by a run for two extra by Rick Kaepernick, in the first quarter.

In the second period, the Bulldogs continued their drive, with Kaepernick coming across for six more.

At the end of the first half the Bulldogs had gained 53 yards on the ground and 40 in the air. The Comets were down 22 yards, and had not recorded a single first down.

In the third quarter, Waupaca caught a short pass from Mark Kiernert, and loped 93 yards to put the Comets on the board. Two more points were added by running the ball across the line on the bonus attempt.

The Waupaca touchdown ended the Bulldog's scoreless record, in their 11th quarter of play.

Mark Pichelmeyer ran two touchdowns, one in the third and one in the fourth quarter to complete the Bulldogs scoring.

In the third quarter, he ran a Kaepernick pass 14 yards for the six-pointer and in the fourth he made a 63-yard trip.

The Bulldogs had the advantage both in the air and on the ground. Their aerial game gained them 132 yards and they made 105 yards on the ground. They were penalized seven times for a total of 65 yards.

The Comets gained 114 yards through the air and only 12 on the ground. They had four penalties for a total of 40 yards.

New London had three interceptions, two by Steve Puls. Waupaca intercepted one of Kaepernick's bombs.

New London attempted 14 passes, with 6 completions. Waupaca threw 19 passes and completed 6.

Letter From Kahl Hilbert District To Get State Aid

HILBERT — The school district here has been informed that it has again been classified as integrated, and will receive state aids at this level for the 1969-70 school year.

According to the letter from State Superintendent William C. Kahl, he said "the people of your school district are commended for their efforts and their accomplishments with respect to the improvements of your educational program."

Kahl added: "There are some aspects of a district's educational program which require continuing evaluation, such as the length of the school year and day; the preservice and inservice education of teachers; materials, equipment, and physical facilities; and the offering of equal education opportunities for all. We anticipate that further effort will be directed toward improving the educational opportunities for the children and youth of your district."

Supt. Richard Yenchsky, in discussing the communication with the Board of Education Monday, pointed out that though the school qualified for integrated state aids the amount would be 9 per cent, compared to the state average of from 25-28 per cent.

Unfairness of the computation of state aids in the district which has five parochial schools, has often been pointed out by the superintendent, who recently brought it to the attention of the Kellett Committee at New Holstein.

Yenchsky said Monday that the formula used is to divide the number of children in the public school into the district's assessed valuation, which is $44,000 to $46,000 behind each child, indicating that it is a wealthy district, when actually taxpayers are paying double for education here and in Calumet County.

A solution to the unfairness could be reached by counting all district children, whether in public or parochial schools, and raising the aid to the public school, thus reducing the tax burden of the property owner, Yenchsky said.

Garbage Must Have a Future

BY LILLIAN MACKESY
Post-Crescent Food Editor

SAN FRANCISCO — A young chemical engineer with a sense of humor brought the subject of garbage and other solid waste to the attention of 125 newspaper food editors in conference here.

Dr. Robert F. Testin, director of environmental planning for Reynolds Metal Company and one of the nation's leading authorities on solid waste, looks to the recovery and salvaging of municipal solid waste as the answer to America's mounting problem. Garbage has a future, in his opinion.

Testin told food editors Monday that "we better start learning about garbage if we don't want to be buried in it." He said present accepted methods of disposing of municipal waste — incineration and sanitary landfills — do not provide the whole answer to our solid waste disposal problems. They help, but the are not the ultimate solution, he said.

A change in viewpoint toward garbage could help, he said, noting that "carrot tops in eight million garbage cans in New York City are a problem, but those same carrot tops at a food-processing plant in the Midwest can become food for livestock to produce more food."

"The best answer to the waste disposal problem is the complete recycle and utilization of solid waste materials," he said. This concept addresses itself to the problem of what to do with this mountainous mess, yet it also provides a built-in method of saving valuable resources that would otherwise be forever lost."

Testin pointed out that some recycling programs already are under way in the area of reclaiming aluminum cans, paper, glass and tin cans. The ultimate answer, however, he said, "must be in the development of technology to recycle all valuable materials from municipal waste and make use of the remainder." It is Testin's hope that valuable materials that have been thrown away as trash or garbage never get to the landfill or incinerator.

Provide Incentive

"We must do for waste what George Washington Carver did for the peanut and Mr. Armour for the hog," he declared. "We must learn to use it — recycle it but don't throw it away."

One way to facilitate salvage is to provide sufficient incentive for people to make them want to salvage it. The Reynolds Company has done this, he explained, through its aluminum can reclamation programs which to date have been established in six cities. All-aluminum cans are purchased at 10 cents a pound by the company: More than 36 million cans were collected in the first eight months of this year by groups and individuals who saved them from their garbage cans or found them mixed with other roadside litter.

"The alternate approach accepts the fact that most waste materials will end up in the trash heap," he said. "With the technologist taking over the problem, hopefully working out a mechanical method of sorting the material in order to salvage whatever is possible and processing the rest into useful new products."

Testin suggested that community groups, even the housewife, could help with the salvaging of specific materials as a fund-raising project, particularly paper and cans.

Convenience Foods

He also noted that most people believe that convenience packaging is one of today's main offenders in adding to solid waste. This is not true, he said. It's one of the biggest fallacies in solid waste discussion.

"A return to the cracker barrel era is not only impossible from a supply-demand point of view, but it actually would make the solid waste problem worse."

He noted there was significant reduction in weight and volume of the food and package waste in convenience foods in comparison to the garbage from those meals prepared "from scratch."

Testin also said it was the responsibility of the public to become properly informed about environmental issues related to foods and packaging. The food industry also has a serious responsibility and obligation in this area, he said, in ensuring that their processes and products are ecologically sound.

Mrs. Russell Rieck added that the director would have the time to provide adult programs as well as junior programs.

One of the largest backers of the leisure time director has been Staskal's congregation, who jointly sent a resolution to the council on Jan. 15, 1969 asking for a serious study into the area of leisure activities.

In his discussion of the director Krostue pointed out that the director should be concerned with programs for the "young, old, and those in between who pay the taxes."

Strong Interest

Many of the teen agers have taken a strong interest in the recreation needs. One group had approached the council at an earlier date in an attempt to get a youth center. Their attempt failed, due to the lack of specifics on the project.

Others when contacted, noted that there was an interest among the young people to have a recreation program. They stated that they felt there was a need for supervisors and organizers.

Burt Phillips, president of the New London Senior Citizen's Club, strongly endorsed the idea of having a leisure time director. "It can keep the older folks occupied," he noted. "It's better for them to have something to do than sit around and do nothing."

Phillips pointed out that Waupaca had a recreation director, and that he worked hand in hand with their senior citizens group, as well as with youngsters.

Questions Raised

Among the questions raised in polling people was the matter of priorities, problem of transportation, question of who he worked for, and the definition of the job.

Cost-wise Mayor Krostue noted "that with little or no increase in tax dollars a much better recreation program for all can be inaugurated, at least let's see if we can come up with something."

He also added that the project should not be just a city project, but rather a community one. "Maybe the school district should be brought into this picture," he noted.

It was pointed out that the district had most of the equipment and facilities necessary for the program. It was also noted that the city served more than just the residents in the community.

School Centered

John Lehman, curriculum coordinator at the senior high school, pointed out that the transportation problem probably wouldn't arise. "After most of the activities held now are already school centered," he pointed out.

As far as priorities go the need is here now. At the present time there is a newly formed senior citizens group that would be able to use the services of a leisure time director. The young people have tried unsuccessfully to get their own recreation center going and could use the services of a director, and the softball leagues were unable to organize last year because of the lack of a director.

It was also pointed out that many of the surrounding communities have already established recreation programs. One community, Waupaca, which is slightly smaller has a full time director and a new recreation center.

Staskal summed up the whole idea of a recreation director "today, people of all ages, have more and more leisure time and are, therefore, more available than ever before to participate in enriching experiences."

Clintonville Heritage Day Celebrated at Finney Library

CLINTONVILLE — About 50 visitors toured the open house display of Clintonville historical items and antique doll collections Sunday at Finney Public Library.

It was sponsored by the Clintonville Woman's Club to observe Heritage Day as part of Wonderful Wisconsin Week.

Collections were loaned by club members, Mrs. Earl Bettin, Mrs. Clarence Quall and Mrs. Marlin Steinbach.

Pictures of early FWD trucks and personnel; the dental tools and picture of "Chet" Bennett, one of the pioneer settlers and founders of the city; were of special interest. Also displayed were books on early Wisconsin days, as well as books by various Wisconsin authors of present and past days.

One of the latest books, "New Poetry Out of Wisconsin," by August Derleth has poems from three Clintonville writers. They are Orel Barker, Doris Bettin and Scott Stromberg. Mrs. Bettin is currently serving as a new officer of the Clintonville Woman's Club.

Club members, in turn-of-the-century dresses, who greeted visitors and served refreshments were Mrs. J. H. Stein, Mrs. E. K. Bard, Mrs. Quall and Mrs. Steinbach.

Besides the open houses, the day's festivities included visits to the FWD Museum and an antique car display by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bruemmer and William Kuester.

The Woman's Club chairman for Heritage Day was Mrs. Donald Christensen. Also helping were Mrs. Harold Danner, president, Mrs. Gordon Rindt, Mrs. Rey Laske and Harriet McCauley, city librarian.

Rural Marion Youth Held on Drug Count

WAUPACA — A Marion youth was arrested and arraigned Tuesday, for selling and delivering a dangerous drug (LSD) to a person under 21 years of age.

Karl E. May, 19, route 2, Marion, appeared before Judge Nathan Wiese, County Court branch 2, and his preliminary hearing is set for 9:30 a.m. Monday.

Meanwhile, May was remanded to the Waupaca County jail until the time of his preliminary hearing, or until he produces a $5,000 cash or property bond.

May allegedly sold 18 tabs of LSD to an 18-year-old girl Tuesday in front of a Waupaca Main Street business establishment. Within hours he was arrested and arraigned.

Parents, Faculty Are Introduced

CLINTONVILLE — The St. Martin Parent-Teacher League held its first meeting Monday night in the choral room of the church. The theme was "Have You Dialed Your Heavenly Father Today?"

Mrs. Harry Caskey and Mrs. William Christian gave a report of the league's convention which they and Mrs. Ed Justman attended as delegates.

The school faculty was introduced by principal Harold Lindhorst. Harold Kopplin, superintendent of the Sunday School, presented the Sunday School faculty.

The film, "Call Collect," was shown, which emphasized that the present generation has more than any other. Discussion sessions followed the movie.

Parents visited with teachers in classrooms after the program, and refreshments were served while the business meeting was conducted.

Co-hostesses for the refreshments were Marvin Baerenwald and Mrs. Donald Nordwig. Opening and closing devotions were given by Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Kersten.

Woman's Club to Hold Attic Sale

Woman's Club Meeting

Your Money's Worth
Clean Environment
Will Cost You Money

BY SYLVIA PORTER
"I read with interest your column, Sylvia, stating that it's the U.S. consumer who will pay for the control of pollution. You are so right. There will inevitably be either higher prices to the customer for most products, or there will be a big dent made in the private enterprise, profit motivated economy we have in this country, with serious repercussions on the value of equities, etc., etc."
Okay, Bob — a friend, and the president of a world-famous chemical company — has zeroed in on a basic question. Are you, as a consumer, prepared to pay for the staggering costs of not only cleaning up today's environmental mess, but also preventing further air, water and other types of pollution?
Are you, as a stockholder, willing to support the measures the company in which you own stock takes to prevent or combat pollution — if the measures mean costs which bite into profits?
You Must Bear Costs
Are you, as a taxpayer, ready to pay anti-pollution taxes and to bear the costs of more and more bond issues in your community to raise bigger and bigger sums of money for pollution controls?
You have to pay for them, you know, in one guise or another. There is no one else but you to pay for them. No one.

Pollution is unmistakably, undeniably on your mind.
More than seven in ten Americans say they are worried about environmental pollution; a recent Gallup poll disclosed that 10 per cent of a cross-section of Americans now consider pollution one of the most important problems facing the nation, vs. only 2 per cent in June; some observers go so far as to say this single issue of cleansing our air and water will close the generation, racial and affluence gaps.
But are you prepared to put your money where your mouth is?
Tragically, the probability is that you are not.
Item: In a recent public opinion poll Americans were asked whether they would pay $15 more in federal taxes to finance a meaningful pollution control program. By two to one, younger Americans vowed that they would, but by two to one those in the over-50 age bracket opposed the tax. By two to one, the better educated were for the tax, but by two to one the less educated were against it. Only $15! And this is just the beginning of conflict. The evidence points clearly to a real showdown in the 1970s between the business-as-usual segment of our population which looks upon pollution as a price we just have to pay for our material affluence and the younger environmentalists who insist that factories must close if they cannot meet rigid standards.
Item: Local taxpayers the nation over are voting down record numbers of bond issues proposed to raise funds not only for schools but also for pollution being refused are utterly inadequate to meet most local needs.
Item: Federal income taxpayers are battling — via their representatives and senators in Washington — even the paltry sums being debated by Congress to fight pollution. Total federal spending for pollution control now amounts to only about $1 billion a year, and the typical billion-a-year city taxpayers annual federal tax bill for pollution abatement is estimated at only $4 — against $26 a year for federal highway construction.

Item: Motorists are shunning the slightly more expensive lead-free and low-lead gasolines now being sold.
But the fact remains. As another reader, Kerry W. Mulligan, chairman of California's water Resources Control Board wrote me: "People will have to come to grips with the fact that environmental protection costs money. To search for cheap solutions will be the most expensive step in the long run."

Senate Pollution Bill Aims at Auto Engine

WASHINGTON (AP) —With style now faces a severe challenge from a House-Senate conference called to forge one new law from two sharply differing bills.

The House earlier passed a bill considered weaker than the Senate version written by the air and water pollution subcommittee of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

The House Resisted efforts earlier this year to clamp curbs on noxious emissions of the automobile, branded by Muskie a "pollution monster."

The Senate bill, passed 73-0, is keyed solely to steps needed to protect the public health. It sets a series of deadlines over a five-year period in which national after the deadline, and a repair quality standards would be set and enforced.

And it specifically authorizes stern enforcement tools: Criminal penalties of up to two years in jail and $50,000 fines, the banning of autos in the central cities, authority to close factories emitting hazardous substances.

Nixon OK's U.S. Arms Aid For Greece

Strategic Importance As NATO Flanker Given as Reason

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has okayed renewal of fullscale U.S. arms aid to Greece despite some continuing criticism of Athens' military regime both here and abroad.

The reason for ending the long embargo on planes, tanks, artillery aid other heavy weapons shipments to Greece, the State Department said, is that country's strategic importance on NATO's flank in the eastern Mediterranean.

Trend Established

"Although the United States had hoped for a more rapid return to representative government in Greece," the Department's announcement Tuesday added, "the trend toward a constitutional order is established."

The United States halted arms assistance to Greece after the April 1967 military coup there and critics of the regime — including some U.S. congressmen and Europeans, particularly in Scandinavia — have contended renewing fullscale deliveries would reward an oppressive government.

Official Approval

A Greek refugee spokesman here, Elias P. Demetracopoulos, condemned Nixon's decision today as in effect giving "official U.S. government approval to the Athens military dictatorship."

State Department officials countered that the Athens leadership "has stated that it intends to establish parliamentary democracy" and has taken steps, to resume constitutional government by the end of this year.

The officials said the decision was not linked directly to the current Mideast crisis, but to events in the eastern Mediterranean in recent months. These events include the Soviet naval buildup and largescale Soviet assistance, in weapons and personnel, to Egypt.

The U.S. heavy weapons now earmarked for Greece will cost U.S. taxpayers an estimated $56 million, with deliveries to run over the next 18-24 months.

Washington Has New Incidents By Black Youths

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bands of black youths looted stores and tossed rocks and bottles at police cars along a 20-block area Tuesday night and early today in the second straight night of disturbances.

Police chief Jerry Wilson said 24 persons were arrested, but there were no reports of injuries.

At one point about 70 white-helmeted police moved through an area about a mile north of the White House firing off tear gas canisters at crowds which refused to disperse.

But police said no shots were fired.

Gore Comes Under Gun Of Agnew in Tennessee

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has told Tennessee voters they should elect a Republican to replace Sen. Albert Gore, who "is important only to the radical liberal wing of the Democratic party."

Gore is a prime target in the GOP drive to win control of the Senate, and party leaders believe the Republican nominee, Rep. William Brock, has a good chance to defeat him in November.

Agnew asserted Tuesday night Gore had proposed vast federal spending programs, had a record of votes against administration policy in the Vietnam war and was a leader in the Senate's rejection of Supreme Court nominees Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. and G. Harrold Carswell.

Addressing 10,000 cheering Republicans at a chicken dinner, Agnew asserted:

"That crowd in the Senate which talks so much about ending discrimination, committed an act of discrimination — against the South. They went over to the Supreme Court and nailed a shingle to the door, 'No Southerners need apply!'"

Agnew said Gore had received $60,000 from a campaign fundraising effort by Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., and Senate associates among "a select group of radical-liberal friends."

But when Gore comes back to Tennessee, the vice president declared, "you do not see him bringing down to Memphis the radical-liberal friends he hobnobs with up in Manhattan and Georgetown."

Old Trainer Called Back For Ziggy

CHICAGO (AP) — The man Ziggy tried to trample in 1939 has been summoned to try to coax the 52-year-old Asiatic bull elephant to go outdoors today for the first time since 1941.

Brookfield Zoo officials said George Lewis was called because he is the only man whose orders have brought any response from Ziggy.

They want Ziggy out of his 50-by-30 foot house and into the elephant yard at the zoo so they can enlarge the living quarters and remove the elephant's leg chains.

He has been in chains since he charged and tried to trample trainer Lewis at a Portland, Ore., circus.

Lewis, 59, now a supervisor with the humane society in Seattle, did not think Ziggy would act up again.

He visited the elephant at Brookfield Zoo last July and said the bull remembered him. "They never forget," Lewis said.

Private Use of Police Cars Gives City Side Benefits

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A year's experiment in permitting patrolmen to keep their patrol cars at home has been called "an unqualified success."

Traffic accidents and deaths have declined, felony arrests have increased and the policemen are happy.

Raymond Stratton, deputy chief for operations of Indianapolis' police force, also is pleased with a plan putting policemen in patrol cars, now in its second year.

Stratton says about 470 patrol cars, including four driven by women, are used as private cars when the patrolmen are off duty.

"They keep their police radios on whenever they use their cars," he said. "Over the year, off-duty patrolmen made 100 felony arrests. I think at least 50 of them would not have been made if off-duty men hadn't answered calls."

"In the 12 months up to the time the program started, there were 9,919 traffic accidents and 52 traffic deaths in Indianapolis. In the succeeding 12 months, accidents have dropped 14 per cent to 8,561 and deaths have fallen 23 per cent to 40."

More Pride

Stratton said the patrolmen take a lot more pride in a car they use all the time than in one they draw from a car pool.

"At least nine men have installed air conditioning at their own expense," Stratton said. "About 100 have put in personal radios which cut out auto-

The cars gleam from fresh washings and polishings when they line up for weekly inspections. Four have been taken away from patrolmen because they showed signs of abuse.

One of the patrolwomen, Penny L. Davis said she thought her parked car kept traffic moving at sensible speeds in her neighborhood. She and the other women drivers specialize in nonviolent calls, such as births in unexpected places, dog bites and stolen car identifications.

"Like the Deal"

"I like the deal, and so does my wife," said Patrolman O.T. Blackwell.

The policemen figure the arrangement saves them about $1,000 a year they would spend on private cars.

A side benefit may be friendlier relations between policemen and neighborhood children.

"Kids are always swarming over my car, wanting me to turn on the flashers and the siren," said Patrolman Vernon R. Sears. "I guess I shouldn't—but sometimes I do."

Emergency Runs

On two occasions, Sears has rushed injured children to the hospital when he was off duty.

Indianapolis police have received requests from almost 50 other cities for information on how the take-home plan is working. Los Angeles has installed it on a limited basis for special duty police.

Borman Relates Success Of Efforts by Red Cross

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pointing to its success in the Mideast, former astronaut Frank Borman says the International Red Cross is a "very hopeful" third party to work on behalf of Americans held prisoner in Vietnam.

Borman, who recently returned as an emissary for President Nixon to a dozen countries on the POW issue, gave his assessment to a joint meeting of Congress Tuesday.

"I can tell you that we found a vast amount of sympathy around the world," he said. "I can tell you that the North Vietnamese will receive new and additional entreaties from many of the countries that we visited, and I can tell you that I found, particularly in the International Red Cross, a very hopeful, I think, agency for dealing as a third party for the prisoners in Vietnam."

He acknowledged, however, that the situation was different in North Vietnam because representatives of the agency have not been permitted into the country.

"I strongly urge that the peace groups within this country, if they are really interested in the majority of our prisoners, urge their contacts in North Vietnam to begin dealing with the International Red Cross, and which is the proper and recognized authority for this purpose," Borman said.

His remark brought spontaneous applause from members of the House and Senate plus the public galleries, filled with spectators including about 80 wives and members of prisoners' families.

Other Points

—Borman also made these other points:

—Charges by Radio Hanoi that American pilots, who make up the bulk of prisoners, are war criminals are "utter rubbish."

—There are 19 documented cases of U.S. GI's held prisoner "being murdered or allowed to die in South Vietnam and just recently the North Vietnamese have spoken of five deaths in their prisons."

—Reports of the tiger cages at Con Son prison were misrepresented. One of the blocks has been destroyed and another now is unoccupied. They were small, and overcrowded and long which is the proper and recognized authority for this purpose.

—The U.S. should continue efforts to convince the North Vietnamese of our sincerity in purpose and of the requirement to separate the political question of peace in Vietnam from the humanitarian conditions of incarceration of prisoners.

—The United States should make sure that every effort is made to provide proper care and support for families of the prisoners, and continue to press for use of the International Red Cross in inspection of prison camps.

Concern for Survival Back of South African Feeling Toward Blacks

BY CARL T. ROWAN

DURBAN, South Africa — Although this is only my second column on South Africa, my wife and I are nearing the end of a journey into almost every major center of a land that causes you to admire the technological achievements and gap at the social stagnation.

But before I report further on what has to be one of the strangest societies on earth, fairness requires that I share with readers the question that my wife and I have asked ourselves over and over.

How can so many people be officer of the South African Lawn Tennis Association?

When there are perhaps 500 hotels along 120 miles of beaches north and south of this city, with 400 of them "off limits" for Africans, coloureds or Indians, how can the management of the snootiest "five-star" hotels offer such courteous service to a black American couple in defiance of the law by inviting such non-whites in for dinner, or for cocktails that are forbidden for Africans just as the sale of whiskey to American Indians once was forbidden?

No 'Snow Job'

How can South African whites act like life members of the NAACP in their private dealings with us, yet condone or inspire national policies right out of "Mein Kampf"?

It is too simple to say that they are mere patriots, helping their government to do a "snow job" on a visiting journalist.

It is not enough to suggest that tennis and tea are designed to expunge national guilt over the denial of a visa to Arthur Ashe. Or that tennis association officials were fishing for ways to get South Africa back into Davis Cup play and into the good graces of other sports authorities.

The deeper answer seems to lie in a brooding inward shame that many whites here have because intellectually they sense the wickedness of apartheid and they do not want the entire world to regard them as race-crazy ogres.

"We are not saints," a member of parliament said to me during a luncheon in Cape Town, "but neither are we bastards." "Please write something nice about us," said the woman in Johannesburg as she left the President Hotel in the Transvaal where black diners obviously were a rarity.

Devoid of Race Consciousness

That luncheon in parliament, tendered by Sir de Villiers Graaf, who included several members of his opposition United Party, was so devoid of any consciousness of race that it might easily have taken place in Ottawa, London, or New Delhi.

That anomaly seems to arise from the fact that the intellect rules when white South Africans confront blacks from abroad, but gut-level fears take over where local non-whites are concerned.

"You are no threat to the white man here, because you will soon go," one government official explained, "but the African, the Indian, the coloured — he is a threat. We cannot meet him socially or share our hotels and restaurants with him as long as he is a threat."

The elements of South African life have exploited that threat of the "black peril" and the Club, taking partners from "brown peril" so effectively among eight white couples in round-robin matches.

Friendly Reception

We were received with such naturalness that these couples might easily have been charter members of a Durban Urban League.

We will play later at another tennis club (in swankier surroundings, I am told) but the warmth of welcome will be the same if we may judge from our experiences in Johannesburg, Pretoria, and Cape Town.

In this land where racism undergirds and overclouds every aspect of life, we find people doing things that are so utterly anti-biased that we must wonder how an elected government ever put this nation in the grip of unrelenting apartheid. When a "white" ambulance will drive away and leave an injured black to bleed to death in the street, how does a South African industrialist come to invite us to partners and hosts ever has tennis and tea at his home — and invite in friends and the top to those in power here:

"The absolute first thing is white survival," said Raoul Lindeque, under secretary of the South African Department of the Interior.

Otto Krause, editor of News Check magazine in Johannesburg, put the white imperative even more emphatically:

"The British kept us Afrikaners enslaved for decades," he said. "But they finally told us that they would share power. If the African becomes top dog, he'll have to do it by force of arms."

So there it is: the intellectual commitment to civility and gentility versus the glandular concern for survival, and out of the collision has come the most intimidating, offensive array of laws, decrees, and regulations this side of Moscow.

Congress Takes Aim At Doctors' Tax Dodge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has been asked to close a loophole through which many physicians apparently try to cheat on federal income taxes by failing to list all money received from government health programs.

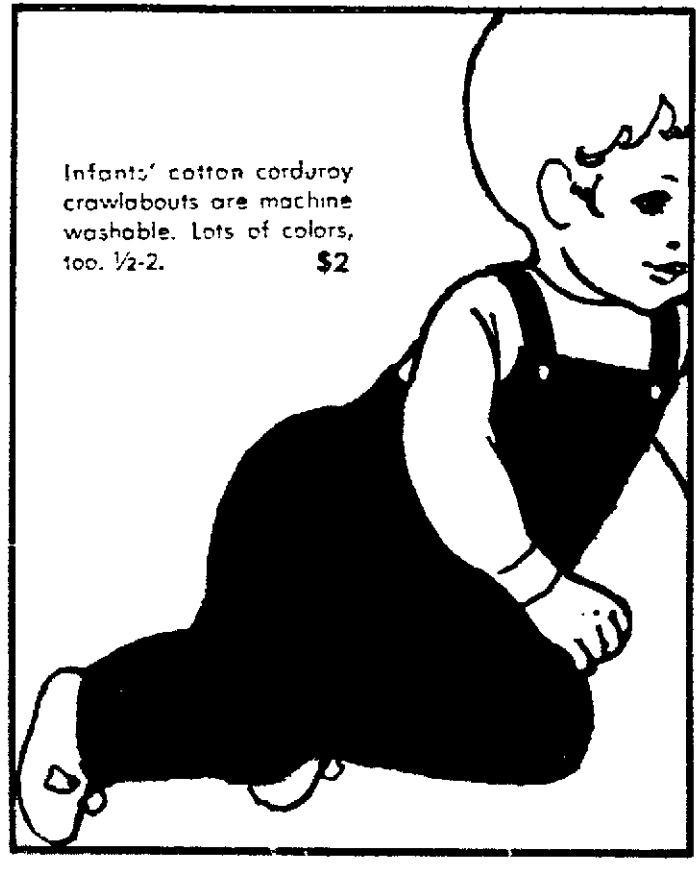

A Treasury Department official told the Senate Finance Committee Monday an audit revealed about half the physicians surveyed who received $2,000 or more from Medicare and Medicaid in 1968 failed to list all such income. Meade Whitaker, tax legislative counsel for the Treasury, urged the committee to write into a pending Social Security bill a provision requiring all persons to report payments of $25 or more to the Internal Revenue Service. This, he said, would permit the use of data processing to search out those who fail to include such payments on tax returns. A similar provision was written into the 1969 tax reform bill but was knocked out in conference because insurance firms objected
